

FIGHT FOR SPOILS

Clackamas County Democrats Nourish Hopes,

BECAUSE OF REAMES VOTE

They Will Center Strength on County Offices, but Republicans Have Good Record—Brownell Favors for Congress.

OREGON CITY, Or., Feb. 28.—(Special.)—With the naming of a date for primaries and a County Convention by the Republican and the calling together of the Democratic Committee, Clackamas County politics have been set in motion. This being an off year in state politics, little interest attaches to the approaching election, although the Democrats, who are unusually active this year, promise to provide as much entertainment as their limited number of performers will admit.

The Congressional situation in this county is somewhat peculiar. It is by no means friendly to Mr. Herrmann, as the vote of last June attests, when Reames carried the county by 261 majority. In the interest of harmony, however, it is conceded that the Congressional delegation from this county will favor Senator George C. Brownell if that gentleman becomes a candidate. While Brownell has not announced his candidacy, it is known that he is very industriously engaged throughout the district in promoting some interest, not necessarily his legal practice, which is already extensive. Other than this, all is speculation as to where Clackamas County will stand in the election. The strength of the respective candidates cannot be reliably determined before the County Convention selects the Congressional delegation.

There will be three tickets in the field in June. The Republicans, Democrats and Socialists will be represented. With the exception of county Judge T. F. Ryan and Commissioner Brownell, the Republicans do not expire for another two years, all of the present Republican county officers have served their first term. The general feeling among voters is that the administration of affairs for the past two years has been so good that they are not inclined to change.

It has been years since Clackamas County has been in better condition or had brighter prospects for the future. Under the administration of affairs there has been a general cutting down of expenses in all departments of the county government. The extent of these reductions is shown in a recent report issued by Secretary of State Dunbar. In 1901 county expenditures aggregated $67,000, while for the year 1903 the total was $57,000. One year ago Clackamas County was paying interest on its bonds at a rate of 10 per cent, while this year it was paying cash for all road work. This same debt having been wiped out in a single year by a judicious administration of county affairs and by the able officers. The present officers, who, without exception, will be candidates for re-election to succeed themselves for a second term, will point to this record with pride. A more business-like administration of county affairs has never had in Clackamas County.

There will be some strife among the Republicans in the nomination of three Representatives. Senator Brownell holds over another term, as does also Holman, the 2nd Senator. Hans Paulsen, of George, who served in the lower house of the Legislature, will be a candidate for re-election, but, if H. A. Webster and C. G. Huntley, the other two Representatives, are candidates to succeed themselves, they are not likely to be elected. The fact is, they are developing a number of other aspirants for these positions, which may only be made after a lively contest. With no Senator to elect the election of legislative candidates does not seem the usual feature of the year.

There will be an interesting contest among prominent Republicans in the election of a chairman of the County Central Committee. This office has been filled for two years by J. C. Campbell, but, like many of his predecessors, he has not pleased all, and some of his political enemies are after his scalp. When questioned as to whether he will ask for the chairmanship, Campbell says he has no intention of doing so, but he looks wise and readily replies that he has really tired of politics and desires to quit the business in order to engage in an honorable vocation. If, in an effort to elect him as chairman, his political opponents anger him he might make a fight to hold the job for another term, not particularly because he desires to be chairman, but just to keep the other fellow from getting there. Actually, there are many of whom I have done the most love me the least," lamented he to a reporter today.

Among those who are candidates to succeed Campbell are: E. P. Rands, City Engineer, and D. W. W. Rands, City Engineer. It is also currently reported that Chris Scheibel or Grant R. Dimick would not refuse to accept the place if tendered him.

There is also some discussion as to an off year and being unduly encouraged as to their strength in Clackamas County because Reames received 261 majority in the Congressional election last year. The Democrats are unusually active and will make a vigorous campaign to wrest from the Republicans the control of county affairs. The attempt can but have a disastrous result because of the lack of candidates within the ranks of the minority party. The Clackamas Democrats have denounced the Populists and anything that favors of fusion and will "go it alone" this year. As a united organization the Democrats have a total of 120 of a total of 600 votes in this county. The strength of the Socialists has been proven to be 300, so that the normal voting strength of the Democrats is 200, not including a scattering vote of about 50. With the present conditions that exist throughout the county and a generally satisfactory administration of county affairs the thinking voter will not be inclined to aid in making a change at this time. In view of these facts the Democrats have slim prospects of success at the coming election in this county.

Through organization is being had of the Democratic forces preparatory to waging the vigorous campaign that is contemplated. "We are too busy engaged organizing our forces to discuss prospective candidates just now," said O. D. Egan, president of a local Democratic club, today. Democratic leaders admit that the party will place in the field a ticket made up of its very strongest men and an especial fight will be made on Sheriff J. R. Shaver, County Clerk F. A. Sleight and Assessor J. F. Nelson.

As to the two laws that have been proposed by initiative petition and will be placed on the official ballot, there is no question but that the direct primary law will receive an enormous vote in this county where the measure received such a flustering endorsement by the political circles. The local option law will have opposition.

BOILERMAKERS ON STRIKE.

Conflict on Southern Pacific's Pacific System Comes Suddenly.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 28.—The boiler-makers on the entire Pacific system of the Southern Pacific Company are on strike as a result of the long standing controvery regarding general advances in rates all along the line. According to the statements of the railroad officials, 500 men quit work.

The railroad officials were surprised when they received the official notification, inasmuch as the negotiations were still pending over the adjustment of the wage rate. The increase sought by the boiler-makers is about 10 per cent. President George M. McKee, of the District Lodge, who is at the head of the Brotherhood of Boiler-makers throughout the Pacific division of the Southern Pacific, said that the strike was ordered after a long and fruitless course of negotiations with the railroad company.

P. J. Small, general superintendent of motive power and maintenance of way of the company, discussing the situation, said: "The trouble has been brewing for some time. The Southern Pacific Company has been paying the highest wages of any road in the United States except the Santa Fe, which is paying the same wages as our company on its western branches. It is expected that the balance of the boiler-makers employed by the company will go out on Monday."

House Burns While They Are Away.
OREGON CITY, Or., Feb. 28.—(Special.)—A house owned by Mrs. Charles Bolde and occupied by M. S. Bolde was burned with all its contents today during the absence of the Sugarman family in Portland. The loss is about $300, well insured.

THANKS TO PAYNE.

President Gives Credit for Boediers' Conviction.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The President yesterday sent the following letter to Postmaster-General Payne:

"White House, Washington, Feb. 27, 1904.
"My Dear Postmaster-General—While all the work of the Postoffice Department and the Department of Justice in connection with the postal frauds is not yet over, there is already to the credit of the department, and therefore primarily to your credit, such an amount of substantial achievement that I take this opportunity to congratulate you personally on it.

It is impossible to expect that corruption will not occasionally occur in any government. The vital point is the energy, the fearlessness and the efficiency with which such corruption is cut out and the corruption removed. The success of the prosecutions in this case as compared with previous experiences in prosecuting Government officials who have been guilty of fraud or other offenses, is a testimony to the fact that you are a source of encouragement to all men who believe in decency and honesty in public life. What has been accomplished by you, by those who have worked under you in your department, and by the Department of Justice, redounds to the credit of our whole people and is a signal of triumph for the cause of popular government.

"If corruption goes unpunished in popular government, then government by the people will ultimately fail; and they are the best friends of the people who make it evident to the public that corruption is in connection with public office, and must be a source of encouragement to all men who believe in decency and honesty in public life. What has been accomplished by you, by those who have worked under you in your department, and by the Department of Justice, redounds to the credit of our whole people and is a signal of triumph for the cause of popular government."

—HON. H. C. PAYNE, Postmaster-General.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE.

Appropriation Bills Have Precedence, But Alaska Will Have a Day.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—It is expected that both the naval and army appropriation bills will be reported to the Senate during the present week, and it is intended to take them up for consideration as soon as possible, regardless of all other legislation, and henceforth to give the supply bills right of way to the exclusion of all other matters. The Army appropriation bill has been under consideration by a subcommittee of the military committee for some time, and will be taken up early in the week. The prospect, however, is that the naval bill will be the first to secure consideration by the Senate. Both measures will meet opposition and probably will be debated at length. Tuesday will be devoted to the bill regulating the shipment of Government supplies.

It is not expected that the confirmation of General Wood will be considered during the week, owing to the absence of Senators Foraker and Blackburn, both of whom are expected to return on Tuesday. The general expectation that the case will receive attention next week.

At the request of Beveridge next Thursday the committee on the Smoot case on Tuesday, and it is also expected that the special committee appointed to inquire into the charges against Senator Dyer will proceed with its work during the week.

HOUSE IS INDUSTRIOUS.

Appropriations Well Advanced—District and Indian Bills Next.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The first week in March finds the House with a very small proportion of the big supply measures awaiting its action. The naval was given precedence over other measures, as it is the desire of the leaders to clear up all the regular business of the House as early as possible. The District of Columbia appropriation bill will not be taken up until next week, and will then follow the Indian appropriation bill. The time allotted for general debate on the latter will give ample opportunity for political discussion.

With these two bills out of the way, the postoffice appropriation bill will be taken up before the House adjourns, of which will consume some time. In the meantime the appropriations committee will perfect the sundry civil bill, now in an advanced state of preparation for the time of the session, in order that it may be taken up at the earliest practical moment.

HEALTH OF CANAL ROUTE.

Surgeon Perry Says Towns Can Be Made Sanitary by Much Work.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Surgeon J. C. Perry, of the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, who has been since last month at Colon, making a special study for President Roosevelt of the sanitary conditions of the isthmus, has submitted an exhaustive preliminary report to Surgeon-General Wyman. He devotes the greater portion of the report to the City of Colon, but also describes conditions at Panama and along the proposed route of the isthmian canal.

His conclusions are in the main most hopeful. He describes the present condition of Colon as woefully unsanitary and unhealthy and says that its redemption will be an immense task, but that it should be successful. The climate at the camp along the route of the canal he describes as far superior to that of Colon and Panama, and he says that with proper sanitary regulations the health of their occupants would remain good.

OREGON STAGEDRIVER, NEARLY 80 YEARS OLD

WILLIAM K. STUBBLEFIELD, OLDEST STAGEDRIVER IN THE UNITED STATES, WHO RUNS PROMPTEST STAGE-ROUTE IN OREGON.

ENTERPRISE, Or., Feb. 28.—(Special.)—This city claims distinction for being the starting point of the most prompt stage-route service in the State of Oregon, the route being over a distance of 28 miles between Enterprise and Chico, a country postoffice in the heart of the great range and stockraising section of this country. In an official communication to the Postmaster at Chico, the Postmaster-General says, without reservation, that William K. Stubblefield, of the Enterprise-Chico route, has, up to the present time, the best record of all star-route contractors in the State of Oregon for regular and prompt service.

Contractor Stubblefield further claims the distinction of being the oldest man in the United States engaged in the occupation of driving stage. He will, on his next birthday, be 80 years of age, but is as hale and hearty and spry as many men of 40.

Besides making two trips each way each week over the 28-mile stage route, he while time to haul his own hay and wood; does his own cooking and washing; and, in fact, depends on no person for assistance in earning his salary. In the summer he uses as a conveyance a light buckboard, and in the winter a covered sled.

"Uncle Billy," as he is familiarly known, does not necessarily have to drive stage for a livelihood, and in response to a patriotic nature started with his family for the North with the intention of soon joining the Union Army. They progressed as far as the breaks of the Red River, where he learned that the Confederates would allow nobody to cross the river going toward the North. He, therefore, turned southward again, and stopped in Cook County, which was soon to be the scene of much cowardly and brutal atrocities.

When the State of Texas voted on the question of whether it withdraw from the Union with the other Southern States, only two votes were cast in Cook County for secession, while in all the surrounding counties the secessionist sentiment and vote was overwhelming. A concerted move was made by the secessionists to wipe out the male population of Cook County. Mr. Stubblefield accidentally heard of the intention, and hurriedly left with his family for Western Texas. Within a few days 46 of his neighbors were hanged and 20 more shot by a mob made up of the residents of the surrounding counties, and led by Pat Saunders, until late years a resident of Wallawa County, who died a year or so ago in Union County. Mr. Stubblefield considers that he had a narrow escape. For nine more years he lived on the frontier of Western Texas. He then moved to Eureka Springs, Arkansas, and engaged in the fruitraising business.

In 1884 he came to Wallawa County and settled on the lower Imnaha, 60 miles from the nearest town, and ten miles from the nearest neighbor. He planted an orchard of 2000 trees and vines, and also raised hay to sell to the cattlemen who came down into the lower altitudes of the Imnaha to winter their cattle. In 1886 he disposed of his property and moved to Enterprise, where he has since resided.

"Uncle Billy" has the further distinction of having been married four times, is father of 13 children—10 sons and 3 daughters—and at the present time his posterity will reach the number of 85, among whom are a number of great-grandchildren. He has the appearance of easily living to the century mark.

and feathered. He was allowed to go on promise to leave town tomorrow.

MAY BE NO DEBATE.

McMinnville and Albany Disagree on Date for Contest.

McMINNVILLE COLLEGE, McMinnville, Or., Feb. 28.—(Special.)—The league debate between Albany and McMinnville Colleges, which was scheduled to take place here on March 4, may not materialize. This is regretted by the McMinnville College Literary Society, as they have an unusually strong team and have long looked forward to this meeting.

The difficulty has arisen from setting the date for the annual banquet of the Senate, the leading literary society of Albany College, on the night set forth in the constitution of the Debating League for the Albany-McMinnville debate. Albany has asked McMinnville College to postpone the debate because their debaters are members of the Senate and do not wish to miss the banquet. This McMinnville feels that she cannot do, because the date of the Albany-McMinnville debate is fixed by the constitution of the Collegiate Debating League, and the judges are already secured.

In a somewhat similar case between Pacific College and McMinnville last year, one of the Albany team this year, who was then president of the Debating League, refused to allow the schools to violate the constitution by postponing the debate.

OREGON INSURED ARE SAFE.
Deposit With State Insures That Only Solvent Companies Are Admitted.
SALEM, Feb. 28.—(Special.)—That a fire such as that at Baltimore could not possibly impair the contracts of Oregon insurers is due to the insurance laws of this State, which require a deposit of $5000 in the state treasury. Secretary of State Dunbar, who is ex-officio Insurance Commissioner, mentions this, among other things, in a letter in which he assures Oregon property-owners that their insurance has been rendered less secure because of the heavy losses at Baltimore. The man who presented the question resides in another State and was afraid some of the companies would heavy losses might fall in answering his letter. Mr. Dunbar said that no Maryland companies are writing insurance in Oregon, and continued:

"So far as reported by insurance journals, the losses sustained in the Baltimore fire by companies authorized to do business in Oregon, have in no wise impaired their solvency, but all have more than sufficient surplus to meet their liabilities. In fact, they can bear their losses without cutting very deeply into their surplus funds. I am advised that many of the foreign companies have been authorized to draw upon their home offices for all funds necessary to pay Baltimore losses, so that their funds in the United States may remain intact.

"Policy-holders in this State have an additional safeguard in the deposit of $5000 required of all fire insurance companies, which deposit cannot be withdrawn until the Insurance Commissioner is fully satisfied that the claims of all policy-holders have been sufficiently met by the insurance or otherwise. While this requirement may, to some extent, have the effect of placing a limit on the number of companies engaged in business in this State, it bars the admission of companies having limited funds only, while, on the other hand, insurers have the satisfaction of knowing they are fully protected in companies with large capital and surplus, such as are now authorized to do business within the State. If your insurance is placed in admitted companies only, you can rest assured that it is in reliable companies."

Public antagonism is so strong that Dowie has been refused rooms at a fashionable hotel.

WORK OF BLIND CHILDREN

EXCELLENT EXHIBIT FOR ST. LOUIS EXPOSITION.

Pupils of State School Do as Accurate Work by Sense of Touch as Those Who Can See.

SALEM, Feb. 28.—(Special.)—Visitors to the Educational Department of the Oregon Exhibit at the St. Louis Exposition will be astonished when they view the work of the pupils of the Oregon State Blind School. Work that would be a great credit to children who have the use of their eyes will be on display, and proof will be presented that this state is giving to its blind children as good an education as that which will make life much more pleasant for them and for the people with whom they must associate in their daily lives. Though the purpose of the school is not to teach these children trades by which they may make a living, it does give them manual and intellectual training that will make them self-helpful and far from dependent. Some of them will be enabled to contribute materially to their own support, and all of them will find their lives made happier by the instruction and training the state is freely giving them. So far as may be, the results of the work of the school will be indicated by the exhibit.

As might be expected, the exhibit will consist largely of articles made in the manual training department. One of the simplest of these articles is a box for knives and forks. It is made in two compartments, of lumber three-eighths of an inch thick, the dividing piece between the two compartments being also as a handle. It is just an old-fashioned knife-box such as is found in almost every family. It was made by Margaret Flower, who is 12 years old and totally blind. This has been her year in the manual work. In making this box, which she did without any help whatever, she made every joint fit perfectly, drove every one of the 36 nails so that it went into the wood as if it were a splinter, and the hole in the handle was cut in exactly the right place and with curves evenly balanced.

Another pretty piece of work, but more difficult, is a footstool, with a cane top. The stool is a frame with all joints fitting perfectly. Around the edges of the top 24 holes were bored on each of the four sides, and through these the ends of the cane were drawn. The canes were woven through lengthwise, crosswise and crisscross each other diagonally, and a neater piece of work has never been done by a professional maker. The stool is the work of Mabel Templeton, of Echo, aged 14 years. Alban Reese, of Prairie City, aged 12, contributes to the exhibit a box of symmetrical shape, having a cover with brass hinges and a lock set into the wood. A similar box, larger in size, was made by Myrtle Buzan, of Pendleton, aged 12. These two articles are particularly good, for they show the pupils of the school as perfectly in their place, though every measurement was made and every cut of a tool executed by a child who had no use of the sense of sight.

The exhibit will also contain a ham-mock and a fly-net for horses, such as a number of the pupils of the school make without difficulty or assistance. These articles are made of very good and are as good as those made by a professional American flag and a complete outfit of doll's clothing, made by girls at the school. Each one of the white stars was sewed upon the field of blue, and all are arranged upon a symmetrical plan. A large doll will be dressed with clothing made by the girls, and this will show not only their ability in handling the needle, but also their skill in designing.

The literary department will be represented by typewritten work, and by maps made upon boards by pressing in small tracks so as to show boundaries, rivers, cities, mountains, etc.

In keeping up with the times, the children at the Blind School are not the least behind their contemporaries who can see. A little girl of 12 years was working at a map this morning and was asked to point out Russia, Japan, Korea, Manchuria, St. Petersburg, etc., and this she did without hesitation. She gave an account of what has already taken place in the war between Japan and Russia, told how the war had been brought about, under what advantages and disadvantages the two countries are operating, and, in fact, had an understanding of the situation as could be gathered from the daily newspapers which are read in the hearing of the children every morning. A boy of 12, Frank Sanders, of Astoria, was asked to point out the location of the Pacific Ocean, and he pointed it out with a pencil and paper.
