Tacoma Will Welcome Gambling Men.

MAYOR INSTRUCTS POLICE

Saloon-Men Name the Chief and Two Captains.

"LIBERAL" POLICY PROMISED

New Democratic City Executive Says That Enforcement of State Felony Law is the Province of the County Officers.

HEADS OF POLICE FORCE. Chief Thomas Maloney—Appointed after approval of the saloon element. He is to have complete control of gambling, under the Mayor's orders. Captain Charles D. King—Served under Pawcett government of 1897, when Tacoma swarmed with wolves who fattened on returning Klondikers. Captain George Lawrence—Once manager of the Owl, the most notorious variety theater and gambling-house in the city.

TACOMA, April 20.—(Special)—Tacoma is to be a wide-open town under the administration of George P. Wright, who has just taken over the Mayor's office. Perhaps the town may not be as wide open as it was prior to the time the gambling felony bill passed, but there will be as much latitude given as possible to the liberal element. The administration will go back to the saloon system which Mayor Louis D. Campbell discarded a short time ago. Campbell, under pressure from the churches, took the position that to collect taxes from the saloon of the town and from others who violated the law was to go into partnership with the law-breakers. In his campaign he preached this doctrine himself, insisting that no "unclean" money should come into the city treasury.

Not Fincial About the Source.

The new Democratic Mayor has no such scruples about handling money that comes in through the Police Court. He holds that the city needs the revenue and that it is only through a saloon system that the Police Department can keep a check upon the petty criminal classes. And one of the first movements of Mayor Wright's police force will be to round up the women of the town and bring them into court to pay fines again.

When gambling opens up again there will, of course, be no attempt made to levy fines upon the men who own the saloons. The administration cannot take cognizance of the saloon element prosecuting someone under the gambling felony act. The games will empty open and be conducted without interference.

Slot machines will probably go back upon the counters of cigar stores and upon saloon bars. There is a movement afoot among the slot-machine men to test the constitutionality of the state law that prohibits the use of slot machines. The new administration will not permit the money machines to be operated, but the card machines which give merchandise for successful hands can go back as soon as the preliminaries are arranged.

Gradual Lapse to Gambling.

There will be no formal statement given the saloon men that they can reopen gambling, but this is well understood. And yesterday Mayor Wright said in an interview with an Oregonian representative that he intended to follow a "liberal" policy in his administration.

The poker games have never been closed in Tacoma and there has never been any attempt to close them. Since the gambling felony act went into effect the poker games have been sent upstairs and they have not been intruded upon the public so much. But anyone looking for a game could find poker in plenty.

When roulette and faro is dealt again in Tacoma the same policy of secrecy or reticence will be followed. These gambling games will have to go up to the second floor or even further up from the street. But it will not be difficult for anyone to find the games.

Chief Will Be the Go-Between.

The Chief of Police will have charge of the gambling problem and the new Mayor will not interfere with him, so long as, in a general way, he follows out what are Mayor Wright's ideas. This action of the Mayor in giving over to the Chief of Police the control of the city is rather significant.

Thomas Maloney, named for Chief, was appointed after a consultation with the saloon men. They were perfectly satisfied with Maloney, otherwise he would not have gone into office. Charles D. King, who was a police captain during the Pawcett administration in 1897 when the town was filled with criminals preying off Klondikers, is back in his former position. Of late King has been a private detective, a calling that has kept him in touch with a certain class of inquiry work.

Gambler for Police Captain.

The most remarkable appointment, though, is that of George Lawrence, who is the second police captain. Lawrence had charge of the Owl gambling rooms while that resort had games in full operation. The Owl was the most notorious variety theater and gambling-house in the city, running a dozen or more games of doubtful percentage. Lawrence, at first a dealer, was later a manager of the gambling rooms of this house.

During the municipal campaign Lawrence did general work under pay from saloon men in furthering Wright's interests. For all of this he is paid again by his appointment of Police Captain. There is some complaint even among saloon men over this appointment.

The Police Department is slated for a cleaning out of the First Department for a moderate shakeup. Already in the Police Department men have come from Tacoma who have served in the department for from ten to 15 years. Some old policemen whom politics disturbed years ago are going back on the force. It is to the Police Department that Mayor Wright looks for an enforcement of his "liberal" policy.

Wright's Desire to Please.

"I intend to give this city a liberal administration," said Mayor Wright frankly, when an inquiry was made regarding his policy. "I think the sentiment of the people here is in favor of such a change, and I propose to make it. I do not understand the move by Mayor Ballinger, of Seattle, in closing Seattle. But even though he does make Seattle a closed town, one must remember that there is a great deal of difference between Tacoma and Seattle, and that a policy adapted to one city will not fit the other.

"So far as the work of Mayor Ballinger pertains to cleaning out the crooks of Seattle, I went heartily to endorse it, and if those petty crooks come to Tacoma we will send them right along. We have no more use for that class of population than has Seattle.

Fared Future Actions.

"We had a liberal policy in effect here up to the time Mayor Campbell was recalled upon by the church people to make the change. But even at that poker games are running openly, and I really believe that the hostility of the saloon men toward Campbell was not based on what he had done to them, but upon a feeling that he might impose hardships later."

In answer to a direct question, Mayor Wright stated that the enforcement of the gambling laws was a matter that the County Attorney and Sheriff should undertake. He added that this question would be left in the hands of the Chief of Police.

Saloon men do not propose to resume gambling immediately nor to open up in concert. They propose to open the town gradually and to introduce nothing, but roulette and faro. These games will be played on an upper story.

CERTIFICATE NOT YET FILED.

Williamson's Paper Has Not Yet Reached Secretary of State.

SALEM, Or., April 20.—(Special)—The certificate of nomination of Representative J. N. Williamson has not yet been received by Secretary of State Dunbar. The acceptance of the nomination was telegraphed by Williamson from Washington, and is on file, but the certificate of nomination was evidently overlooked. The Republican Congressional Convention in the Second District passed a week ago, and the certificate of nomination should have been made and filed at once.

Secretary of State Dunbar has telegraphed to James A. Fox, of Pendleton, who was chairman of the convention, and has received a reply saying that the certificate will be here tomorrow. As tomorrow will be the last day upon which certificates can be filed, it is possible where the nominations were made by convention, any mishap in the arrival of the mails might make it necessary to nominate the candidates by petition. The certificate requires that the certificate of nomination be signed by the chairman and secretary of the convention. J. E. Hoffman, of Sherman County, was secretary.

"There is a people possessing a strong individuality and delighting in originality. The fact that this little yet powerful nation is now being recognized is nothing more than an indication that all other Far Eastern powers are awakening to realize the greatness of Japan," said Mr. Elliot.

GRAND ARMY STIRRED

Camp Fires Blaze With Joy Over Escape of General Bedell's War Orderly From a Paralytic's Fate.

When Mr. Ross C. Duffy, of No. 13 Russell avenue, Nashua, N. H., was suddenly prostrated by a paralytic shock, the deepest concern was felt throughout the town in which he had been a prominent official.

Grand Army men were especially solicitous, for in the Civil War Mr. Duffy had acted as General Bedell's orderly while serving with Company F, Third Regiment, New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, and after the war he became a member of General Foster Post, G. A. R., and rose to be department vice-commander.

The general anxiety felt about him after his sudden shock in the latter part of 1901 was slightly relieved by the news that he had come out of a state of unconsciousness which had lasted for five days, but as week after week went by and he made no further progress, one leg remaining paralyzed, it was concluded that the highly honored veteran must at best remain a cripple for life.

Suddenly, to the surprise and delight of every one, Mr. Duffy appeared on the street in unmistakably robust health, and was overwhelmed by congratulations and inquiries. "The regular treatment," said Mr. Duffy, "didn't do a bit of good, so far as my paralyzed leg was concerned. My left leg remained cold and dead, and I had been too active a man to be content to be housed up with one dead leg if there was any possible way to cure it. I finally stumbled on help by the merest chance. I got my clew out of a Boston paper from the story of a war comrade, John Hunter, of Chico, Cal., who had been cured of a desperate attack of locomotor ataxia by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I sent for a box of the pills at once, and in less than a month afterward I, too, became a perfectly well man as the result of using them, and I have remained so ever since. No more vertigo, no more trouble with my stomach, none with my kidneys; in fact, every organ seems to be doing its proper work. I certainly have good reason to be thankful to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." These pills are sold by all druggists throughout the world.
