The following summary tells how Ely's Clerks met with that glorious, but awful defeat. Isn't it too provoking?

Galdand, 15 runs. Oakland, 2 runs.
Oakland, 21 hits.
Portland, 9 hits.
Oakland, 3 errors.
Portland, 5 errors. Oakland, 5 two-baggers. Portland, 2 two-baggers.

Need anything else be told of that Sur day matinee? Hardly, unless you would tell how Chollie Druhot lasted just two innings and a half and how Butler, who ed him on the firing line, was hammered for 15 hits, four of which were Certainly it "was to laugh." Why, that session was as funny as a kite without a tail, a clock without hands. It was an afternoon engagement that was easily solved, one that made Manager Ely weep and wall and say things which will ever bar bim from knocking at St. Peter's gate for admission. If those Portland players had been created reptiles, they would have been snalls and if those Commuters had been created animals, they would have been flors, for they fell upon poor Batteries— Butler and literally tore him to Really it "was to laugh." And those the fans who stayed for the end of the show remained to laugh. A small boy, clutching his 15 cents in his earth-solled fingers, remarked as he rushed for the bleachers: "I hope there'll be lots of hitting." There was. In the first inning Oakland was closed out by a fast double from Steelman to Spencer after Ganley had been morgued on an infield swat. Portland started really "sassy like." Dev-ereaux failed to nail Drennan's bounder and McCreedie sacrificed him to second. Nadeau drove him across the rubber with a single and a few minutes later Phil scored on an error by Franks. With these two runs easily dropped into Portland's hopper, the Sunday crowd settled back with the blood of high expectations pounding through their veins.

en came Druhot's undoing. Schaffey,

Strick and Devereaux all three smashed out singles in quick succession, which netted one run for Caklard. Then the little southpaw came back to earth, fanned Lohman and Buchanan fouled out. It was getting out of a tight hole and the "put-ups" settled back with a sigh of relief. This was just a preliminary skirmish, for nd failed in the second, even after Francis had jammed out a double and Butler had walked. Francis was caught off the switch at second, making two down, and Drennan failed to get a piece of the pie when he hit to Strieb. That was all for Portland, unless it is added chasing their heads off from this period until the call of time in the ninth inning. Druhot's brief rest did him no good. When he faced Oakland for the third round he was still groggy, and the scene which followed was full of pathetic humor. Ganley singled and stole second. Franks singled and sent him to third. Then Dru-hot walked Kruger, got his mark for a wild pitch and with McCreedle's error it began to shower runs. The last straw came when the little south-exposed twirier hit Schaffey in the back. Butler then came to get his. He got it. Strieb singled and it went out so far that two runs were added, making a total of four runs.

Those Commuters were thristing for more blood when they came up in the fourth and the wang of the bat against the bail sung a requiem to the hopes of the assembly. Two singles and two doubles netted three more runs. Two singles in the fifth were good for one run. In the six a two-base clout, a single and an in-field fumble registered two more runs. contained skipped the seventh canto be-cause of dummy playing, but came back in the eighth with three singles and a double, scoring four more runs. By this time the official scorer's bell-ringing arm became cramped. Word was sent to Pete Lohman and he caged his lions. The score: PORTLAND. AB. R.

tie between Whalen and Hall, with a toss-up for choice, but the Loo Loos got the better support. In the second game Newton, although hardly extending himsel, shur out the locals in seven innings without a hit, and on the other hand. Jones, who was on the slab for the locals, was touched up in a lively way in three innings. The score:

SALT LAKE, May 8.—Butte wound up the series here this afternoon by losing to the home team in a slow and uninter-esting game. The locals fell upon Sporer in the first inning and when the bombardment had ceased they were eight runs to the good. After that, Sporer settled down and allowed but five hits the remainder of the game.

Wiggs was very erraite at times, pre-senting the visitors with six of their seven runs in passes. The miners, how-ever, were unable to hit him effectively, nine of them striking out. The feature of the game was a fast double play by Runkle and Shafer. The attendance was Hotly-Contested Class Meet of Oregon Agriculture College.

CORVALLIR Or., May 8 .- (Special.) A big crowd watched the Oregon Agri-cultural College athletes in an interclass meet yesterday afternoon. Much rivalry and class spirit had developed, and there was much interest in the various con-tests. The funiors won with a good lead, the seniors failing second, the freshmer third and the sophomores fourth. Williams, the crack sprinter of last year, was able to maintain his supremacy over Smithson, the sprinting freshman, but in every event the men finished dan-gerously close to other. Smithson and Moores tied in the high jump, and at the same time tied the college record of five feet five inches.

Good time by several men in the mile run was one of the surprises, and the unexpected broad-jumping of Chaud Cate was another. By stipulation, four places were allowed and no man was permitted to take part in more than four events. It was also agreed that first places should ount four, seconds three, thirds two and fourths one. The final scores were: Junior, 6044

SAFE BUT IN THREE EVENTS. Eugene Candidates for Track Team

The men are showing up

Hayward put his men through their various work-suts.

The team will be greatly weakened by the loss of McKinney, the big football player, who has been called to his home in Baker County. He was counted upon as a first place winner in at least twe events, the hammer-throw and the discus. McKinney will return to college next Fall, however, so the football team will not suffer from his absence.

Hug continues to show great improvements in the weights, and his friends say that he will give Jackson of the Oregon Agricultural College a close rub in the shot-put. Frizzell and Kerran have begun to train for the weights since the departure of McKinney, and either may begun to train for the weights since the departure of McKinney, and either may be able to fill his place.

Probably the greatest surprise of the year is Swift, the mile runner. Swift is a senior in college, and this is the first time he has ever made a good showing in athletics, although he has trained every year. He is running in great form this year, and will in all probability be sent after the Northwest record in the mile ruin.

Captain Perkins is running tae half-mie and quarter-mile, and is showing his old-time speed. "Dutch" Thayer should have an easy time winning the hurdles in any meet held in Oregon, now that Coates has left the Oregon Athletic Club. The new hurdling form which Hayward has taught Thayer is giving good results, and he saould lower his previous record.

The team is still badly in need of a sprinter, jumper and a pole vaniter. There are several candidates working hard in these events, but they have not been showing up particularly well.

The Western mind finds it difficult to understand the Japanese temperament. There is such a mixture of modernity and medievalism, such a combination of the Occident and the Orient, such an in the Occident and the Orient, such an in-tertwining of supersition and science, that it is not easy for us to unravel its qualities. The Japanese are able to unite enthusiasm with quiet behavior, impetuousness with a high degree of craft, the most ardent militarism with a which leads to giving war pessels spirit which leads to giving war vessels the names of flowers. Probably no other people in the world is at once so warlike and so pacific, so masculine and so fierce and so polite. What to us seem the most contradictory traits exist side by side. Our occidental imaginations thus find it practically impossible either to analyze or to synthesize the Japanese, although forced to recognize the formidableness of the resultant of the national traits.

Mongolian Pheasants in Yakima. North Yakima Republican,

Reports have come in recently from several districts in the county to the effect that some of the Mongolian pheasants liberated a few months ago had apparently taken up their abode there. They seemed to be settled for good. This is gratifying news to the sportsmen of the Valley, who were so anxious to have the country stocked with these fine game birds, but were not certain they would stay. The people generally are warned not to kill the birds. They are protected by law, and the penalty for killing them is heavy.
