ASPHALT COMPANY MAKES REPAIRS. The repairs to the asphalt pavement in strips and patches of various sizes which have of late been in process on Alder have of late been in process on Alder street and places on Sixth street, between Alder and Morrison, have attracted the attention and aroused the curlosity of many. As the same repairs were made a year ago, and the asphalt being taken up and replaced appears to be in as good condition as any of the rest, inquiry into the matter elicits the information that the repairs made last year were not satisfactory, and the Asphalt Company admitted that the material used was not satisfactory. The company asked the city authorities not to assess the cost of the work when it was completed, saying that work when it was completed, saying that It would procure good asphalt and do over It would procure good asphalt and do over the repairs at its own expense, which is new being done. This information was satisfactory to all concerned, except some property-owners, in front of whose places repairs have been made where none were made last year, and for which, as far as they could see, there was no necessity. The officials of the Asphalt Company ex-plain this by saving that the places newly plain this by saying that the places newly repaired in most cases should have been repaired last year, but as the decay was not so plainly to be noticed as in other places, the Inspector let them pass for the time. Now he has marked a number of these places, especially on Sixth street, between Washington and Morrison, and they have been repaired. These are the first repairs that have been made on this part of Sixth street, although the pave-ment has been down II years, and in places along the gutter was quite badly decayed. This statement is published for the information of all concerned. RIBE OF RIVERS STOPS FIRMING.-The business of fishermen and fishdealers in this section has been more than usually precarious this Spring, on account of the numerous rises and falls on the rivers. For some time a fair supply of saimon has been received here from the Lower Columnia, and a week ago more shad were being caught than could be disposed of. The last rise put a stop to fishing en-tirely, and for several days no salmon or shad have come to market from the Lower Columbia, and none could be ob-tained from the Sacramento or the Sound. Dealers have been in a bad fix, having to fall back on the Rogue River for their supply of salmon, which has been shipped from Grant's Pass. Fishermen from Eagle Cliff, who were in the city yester-day, say the fall in the river during the past day or two leads them to hope that they will be able to supply the market with salmon and shad in a few days. One who has been fishing in the Columbia for 25 years says the volume of water bia for 25 years says the volume of water sent to the sea by that river this year is greater than he has ever seen before, for there has been a flood going down since March I. He thinks that with the check given by the present cool weather all danger of any very high water is past for this soason. He expects to see the salmon coming in as soon as the water recodes a little more in such schools as have never been seen before, and which it will be impossible to care for properly.

WITH THIS PAPER SINCE 1862

He Brought the First Hoe Single Cylinder Press to Portland-He Was Civil War Veteran, High Mason, Prominent Citizen.

Louis F. Chemin, about 65 years old, and who was for 42 years foreman of The Oregonian presaroom, died at 2:15 o'clock this morning at his home; 528 Morrison street. He was selzed with a convulsion earlier in the night, after which he sank into coma, from which he did not recover consciousness. He was born at Third and Pine streets, Philadelphia, Pa., his family being of French descent, and at an early age he started to learn the printing business. While yet a youth he became a nember of the Philadelphia volunteer fire department, and one of its most fearless

It was then that Mr. Chemin determined on a Western career, and in the year 1862 he sailed by way of Panama for Sar Francisco. He had only worked for a short time at San Francisco, when The Oregonian required machinery for its pressroom and Mr. Chemin was intrusted with the work of placing the machiners in order, bringing to Portland the first Hoe single-cylinder ever seen in the Pacific Northwest. Mr. Chemin settled down to become one of the solid, hardworking pioneer citizens of this city, and one of his first homes was on Park street near Flanders. He afterward moved to - Third street.

In all these 42 years he was one of The Oregonian's most faithful servants and grew up with the paper. Mr. Chemin was an expert in judging the value of property and he amassed quite a large sum of money which he carefully and judiciously invested in property in different portions of the city. He was a thirty-second degree Scottish Rite Mason, was also a member of the Portland Lodge of Elks, No. 142, and a volunteer fireman. In politics Mr. Che min was a Republican, and although he never held office was a member of several county conventions of his party try gave rise to the report that there would soon be competition in the local field. Mr. Brown yesterday said there was no truth in the report. "We shall manufacture ice exclusively for our own needs," said he. Dr. A. E. Mackay was summoned last evening and was with him until his death. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

MAY BUILD LARGE SCHOOLBOUSE.—The directors of the St. Johns district are considering the advisability of building a much larger schoolhouse than first contemplated, owing to the locating of the The Oregonian which Mr. Chemin saw Portland Woolen Mills and other indus-tries in St. Johns. It was first proposed to build a two-room annex at the back end of the present four-room structure, and bids were asked for according to grow from a village weekly to a metroolitan daily was founded December 4 1850, and was at that time a sheet of four pages, six columns to the page, and was published weekly. To do this it will be necessary to issue bonds, and this action will probably be taken in a short time. Mr. Brown has the plans for an eight-room schoolhouse prepared, so the contract may be let when desired.

In 1862 the first single cylinder power ress ever brought into Oregon was in stalled in the Oregonian pressroom by Mr. Chemin. It threw off 1200 sheets an hour printed on one side, or 600 complete papers, and this was so much faster than TO PEDESTRIANS.—Cars ceased to cross anything else ever used in Portland that morrison bridge and pedestrians were per-it gave the Oregonian a decided success mitted to cross yesterday on the causeover its rivals. It did its work admirably for ten years, when i was superceded by a machine double its take about ten days to raise the bridge floor. The floor of the draw will also be raised, so the cars can be operated as capacity, which in a few years had to give way to a still faster press. By 1884 the circulation had grown to such a magniusual. Nothing of the upper works of the Morrison bridge now remains, and the floor rests on piles for the entire dis-tance. MISSING MAN IS FOUND. E. V. Allen Is Arrested and Charged With Insanity.

E. V. Allen, for whom the police have been looking since Monday, was arrested on the charge of insanity at the corner of Fourth and Taylor streets by Special officer Tichenor, at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Allen had written a letter to his wife, declaring his intention to commit suicide. When arrested Allen said he was then on his way to the County Jail to give himself up to the authorities. He had every appearance, however, of a hunted man, four days' growth of beard and generally unkernot appearance.

To a reporter Allen admitted that he had read newspaper articles that were published about him, but had no explanation to make. He denied that he was in hiding and when asked why he did not stay at home with his wife, said that was a family matter. "There is a report that she tried to poison you; is there anything in that?"

"No; she never tried to polson me."
Allen said there was no trouble between them, but he refused to say where he has been of late. He said he was not fill, nor out of his mind, but had nothing to say by way of enlightening the public concerning his strange conduct. He says he has lived in Portland two years, and was employed recently as a street-car conductor by the City & Suburhan Street Railway Company.

He does not appear to be at all out of his mind, but as there is an insanity complaint on file against him he will no doubt have an examination on this charge in the County Court. On May 20 Mrs. Allen appeared before

Jay Dpton, Clerk for Judge Webster, and styned a complaint against her husband, charging him with insanity. She said he had attempted suicide, and that she was afraid he would harm himself, and she wanted him locked up. When officers went in search of Allen, he could not be found, and his mysterious disappearance was then reported. Leading members of the Woodmen suspected that Mrs. Allen knew more about the case than she pretended, and at their request Deputy Sheriff John H. Moore was sent to her house on Starr street, in Albina, early yesterday morning. The officer arrived upon the scene at 5:30 o'clock, expecting to find Allen there, but was disappointed. Following instructions, he brought Mrs. Allen to the Courthouse, and after the members of the Woodmen had interviewed her she was allowed to depart. Mrs. Allen tele-phened to C. H. Piggott, attorney, to call and act as her legal adviser, and he re-sponded at once. It was soon after Mrs. Allen and her counsel left the Sheriff's office that Allen was seen walking along Fourth, near Taylor street.

The Woodmen of the World give little credence to the insanity story of Mrs. Allen, and believe that she is to blame for the trouble. J. M. Woodworth, cierk of Multnomah Camp, No. 77, of which Allen is a mem-ber, said last night: "We don't know what course to pursue as yet. I have been in telegraphic communication with the head of the order all day, and while we will undoubtedly have to expel Allen from the order, we can do nothing until we receive instructions from Den-"I understand from some of the me bers of the lodge who interviewed Allen this afternoon that he said that he never attempted suicide by taking laudanum. He admitted that he bought the laudanum, but says he poured it on the ground and that it was just a trick played as a forerunner to the drowning game. He also stated that his wife was with him when he wrote and posted the letter to C. H. Piggott, declaring that he tended to commit suicide, and said that the plan was of his wife's invention. He said that he met his wife in December

FRED ROBINSON, A SPECTACU-LAR DRUNK, ARRIVES.

Borrows Money From All Graduates of the College and Gets Into Jall Frequently.

Where is Fred Robinson?
Ask the Yale alumni,
Did he bleed them? Ask 'em.

Whether Fred Robinson is a Yale man has not been definitely decided, but he certainly string all the Tale men in town on the strength of their alma mater. He on the strength of their alma mater. He is said to be a clever man when he is sober, but he remained in that condition for such a short time after he arrived here a few days ago that his cleverness has to be judged from drunken actions. Somehow he got a list of all the Yale graduates in town and systematically borrowed money from them, averaging $3 to $5 a man. He even went to Oregon City after orev. He was getting rich City after prey. He was getting rich rapidly, but was unfortunately getting very drunk at the same time. That land-ed him in jail.

At the station he told a very sad tale about being doped and being found head-ed for the hospital, guided as if by a higher instinct, when arrested. On his higher instinct, when arrested. On his respectable appearance and on that Yale respectable appearance and on that tale record of his he was presumed by the police to be a very ordinary drunk. He was allowed to go free.

From that point began his drunken vagaries, of which when he sobers up in whatever town he is shipped to by his dear college chums who do not wish him here, he will probably know nothing, as he has plainly been cruzed by liquer for he has plainly been crazed by liquer for he has plainly been crazed by liquer for three days.

Tuesday evening he boarded a Morrison-street car, going up town after the theater. He addressed a man standing on the rear platform by the name of one of the men he had bled, and finding himself unrecognized told the man addressed that even if he were in evening clothes he might speak to him. Going into the car he sat down and lifting his foot placed it gently in the day of an old Jewish lady across the way. The conductor threw him off. Thereafter he tried to clean out several bars and drug stores, threatening to kill a number of people who would not buy him drinks, and keeping up the pace all night was finally landed in jall again the next day, after having become known all night was finally landed in jall again the next day, after having become known to half the town by addressing women on the streets and other gentle prac-tices. He went the rounds of the Yale men again locking for money. This time he was turned down good and hard. Again in jall he remained there until sober enough to contrive a means of escape. Wednesday night was quiet at the Police Station and the portion of the building occupied by the new cells made of bars was not entered by the jailer for a long enough time for Robinson to crawl up the water pipe, passing through his cell, bend the bars apart on top far enough to put his head through and drag his body after. He crawled out on his hands and knees so that the officers on duty could not see him. Before leaving he turned on a water faucet so that the whole inner portion of the ground floor was soon flooded, and the drunks, who were a cheerful crowd, had to get upon the bunks and draw up their feet, probably thinking they were in Venice. Yale, meanwhile, was acquiring a verunsavory reputation about town on the strength of this unworthy son, so the old grads got together and decided to ship him elsewhere. They found on inquiry that there was just one way he could go. South as he had left a reputation north and between here and Chicago that would prevent him from returning. So South he is to wend the uneven tenor of his way, which will be paid by subscrip-tions taken up among the Yale men.
