INDIANS TAKE TO POULTRY-RAISING.—The efforts made by The Oregonian of late to arouse increased interest in the poultry business and induce farmers and poultry-raisers to increase their output of eggs and chickens so as to fully supply the home demand at least, are attracting attention in all parts of the state. J. U. Garrison, of Forest Grove, long a chicken-fancier and breeder of choice varieties, in commending The Oregonian's action in this matter, states that even the residents of the Klamath Indian reservation have become interested, as is shown by the fact that the United States Government, through O. C. Applegate, Superintendent of that agency, has requested him to furnish 300 eggs of the barred Plymouth rocks and black legborns for these people. It is not so far to ship eggs or chickens from Klamath to Portland as from the East, and many carloads of these articles are annually shipped here from all parts of the East. All that is required to produce enough eggs and poultry for home consumption in Oregon is a little forethought and energy, which will be well repaid.

GRAND SIRE GOODWIN SEES THE FAIR.—John B. Goodwin, grand sire of the Oddfellows, spent yesterday seeing the beauties of Portland—the Rose City. Yesterday morning the distinguished head of the I. O. O. F. was taken for a ride by the committee on entertainment. They rode out to the Lewis and Clark Fair grounds and walked through that beautiful place. Mr. Goodwin was greatly impressed with the beauty of the location, and prophesied a great Fair for Portland. Other parts of the city were visited. Mr. Goodwin was deeply impressed with the natural scenic beauty of Portland, and especially its floral beauty, which is not excelled by any place. In the afternoon the party went to Oddfellows' Home, and was received with a warm welcome by those for whom it is maintained by the order. This morning Mr. Goodwin leaves for the South.

NO TRACE OF GUISEPPE MOROSE.—In spite of an exhaustive search, the police have found no clew to the whereabouts of Guiseppe Morose, who disappeared from his home at 211 Columbia street, June 4. The fact that Mr. Morose has been ill for some time prior to his disappearance has caused his father-in-law, S. A. Arata, much alarm. The missing man is 59 years of age, of medium height, has a brown and gray mustache, and wore a blue suit of clothes and soft, black felt hat at the time he was last seen. He formerly lived at 89 Sheridan street, and at one time was a well-known glazier in this city. He has a considerable bank account, still intact, which leads the police to believe that he has not been a victim of foul play, but his disappearance is one of the most mysterious reported to the police for a long time.

DEATH OF W. P. KRANER.—W. P. Kraner, the Portland tailor, died in a hospital at Salem yesterday after an illness of 12 months, his mind having been affected during the latter part of this time. He was the senior member of the firm of W. P. Kraner & Co., and was formerly in business with George E. Kraner. Previously to that, since his first coming to Portland in 1888, he was in the employ of Currier & Co. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias, and will be buried from Portland tomorrow.

CITY OFFICES HAVE SATURDAY HALF-HOLIDAY.—By ordinance recently passed by the City Council, all the city offices are closed at 1 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. This fact was not generally known, and in consequence a great number of people who were late in paying their water rent appeared at the water office on Saturday afternoon to do so. When they found the office closed, there were some angry people, but if they pay first thing this morning they will escape having their water cut off.

FUNERAL OF MRS. HENRY T. GIBSON.—The funeral of Mrs. Henry T. Gibson, wife of Policeman Gibson, was held yesterday afternoon from her late home, at No. 830 Montana avenue. Rev. Edgar P. Hill, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, conducted the services, and the interment was in Lone Fir Cemetery. Mrs. Gibson was 46 years old, and came here with her husband in 1880. A husband and five children survive her.

Persons desiring to compete should call on or address the secretary of the local Board of Examiners, Customs Service, Astoria, Or.

FUNERAL OF PAYSON H. HATCH.—The funeral of Payson H. Hatch, who received fatal injuries Saturday in an accident at the Weinhard building, will take place today, at 1:30 P. M., from Finley's Chapel. Interment will be at 3:30 P. M. The body will be taken to Oregon City on the boat leaving at 3:30 P. M.

Election Over Business Improves.

"Business generally is improving since the election is over, the real estate business especially," said a large property-owner yesterday. "I have not had a satisfactory offer for a lot or block for several weeks till the very next day after election, when I had a very fair offer for two pieces of property. I have considered it a good time to buy, but not a good time to sell during the excitement preceding the end of the campaign, but expect now to part with considerable property and to invest the money in buildings, which I think will be a profitable arrangement. I look to see much real estate in and about Portland changing hands at advanced prices in the near future."

INTERIOR IS BEAUTIFUL.

St. David's Church Reopened After Auditorium Is Decorated.

St. David's Episcopal Church, East Twelfth and Belmont streets, was reopened yesterday morning with appropriate services by Rev. George B. van Waters, D. D., rector, after having been closed for three weeks, while extensive repairs were being made. Th rector congratulated the members on the beautiful appearance of the auditorium and the property as a whole, and the officials and members were highly delighted with what had been done.

The whole of the church property on the half block on East Twelfth, between Morrison and Belmont, has been greatly improved, but in the auditorium the improvements are the most marked. Here the walls have been tinted green and the open truss timbers given a hard-oil finish. In the alcove, behind the chancel, in which the richly carved oak altar stands, the tinted walls of the canopy have been artistically stenciled, which produce a most pleasing effect and contrast with the surroundings. Bright carpets have been laid along the aisles and on the floor of the ample chancel, while under the two side galleries new pews have been placed, so that on special occasions between 400 and 500 may be comfortably seated. Light from the windows has been toned down by the painters' brush, and all glare is absent. In the auditorium there is a softened and mellowed light, harmonizing with the colors of the tinted walls and the natural hard-oil finish of the roof beams. While during the day, under the subdued light falling from the windows, the appearance of the auditorium was most beautiful, its beauty was greatly enhanced at night under the illumination of the many electric jets. These jets are controlled by a switchboard placed in the hall leading to Dr. van Waters' study. The vestibules were also touched up and the walls tinted. The same color is preserved in the rector's study, the choir room and the prayer chapel. On the whole, the interior of the stone church is now one of the most beautiful in the city.

On the outside concrete walks have been laid on the three sides of the church property from the church to the parish house. Painters are at work on the rectory giving it a new coat. Improvements also have been made to the parish house. It is proposed to beautify the lawn between the church and rectory with flowers and shrubbery.

The whole property is conservatively estimated to be worth $60,000, on which there is a small debt. Dr. van Waters says St. David's Church was never more prosperous, while the officials and membership are loyal and enthusiastic in their work.

"We have made these improvements," remarked Dr. van Waters, "to keep pace with the progress of Portland and as a beautiful city, and our vestrymen are all men of progressive spirit, who have inspired the church with their enthusiasm for doing things."

HONORED BY MANY FRIENDS.

George H. Wemple Buried With Ceremony by Firemen and Lodges.

With solemn and impressive ceremony the remains of the late George H. Wemple were laid to rest in Riverview Cemetery yesterday afternoon.

The funeral took place from the First Baptist Church at 2 o'clock; and long before the time set for the services the church was crowded with friends. At 2:15 o'clock the body was taken from Finley's undertaking parlors to the church, being escorted by the family clergyman and pallbearers. The casket was covered with purple broadcloth trimmed with white, the colors of the Elks, in which order Mr. Wemple was tyler and a popular and highly honored member.

The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. Ray Palmer, a very dear friend of Mr. Wemple and a member of the order. A quartette rendered three beautiful selections during the services at the church. The honorary pallbearers were two members from each of the three lodges, while the active pallbearers were six young men who are students at the High School.

In the funeral procession, which formed outside the church, nearly 500 members of the three different lodges of which Mr. Wemple was a member formed in line. Portland Lodge No. 142, B. P. O. Elks, was represented by 200 members; Ivanhoe Lodge No. 30, Knights of Pythias, by 100 members, and Portland Camp No. 107, Woodmen of the World, by nearly 100 members. As the procession marched down to and up Morrison street, the fire-bell tolled in honor of the dead fireman, Mr. Wemple having been assistant chief of the Portland Fire Department a number of years ago. Three special cars conveyed the Elks, Woodmen and Knights of Pythias to the cemetery.

Such an abundance of flowers as decorated the grave is seldom seen even in Portland, where they are so plentiful, several vehicles being required to take the floral offerings to the cemetery. Among the floral pieces were a dozen or more unusually handsome offerings, prominent among which were those of the Fire Department, the Woodmen, Knights of Pythias and the Elks, that of the latter lodge being a magnificent pedestal and column 11 feet in height and several feet in circumference, on one side of which was an elk's head most artistically made of flowers. The grave was covered with flowers after the ceremony at the cemetery, and many had to be placed at one side of the grave.

WESTWARD WITH LEWIS AND CLARK

JUNE 13, 1804.—We passed at between four and five miles a bend of the river and two creeks on the north, called the Round Bend Creeks. Between these two creeks is the prairie on which once stood the ancient village of the Missouris. Of this village there remains no vestige, nor is there anything to recall this great and numerous nation, except a feeble remnant of about 30 families. They were driven from their original seats by the invasions of the Sauks (Sacs) and other Indians from the Mississippi, who destroyed at this village 200 of them in one contest, and sought refuge near the Little Osage on the other side of the river. The encroachment of the same enemies forced, about 20 years since, both these nations from the banks of the Missouri. A few retired with the Osage and the remainder found an asylum on the Platte River among the Ottoes, who are themselves declining. Opposite the plain there was an island and a French fort, but there is now no appearance of either, the successive inundations probably having washed them away, as the willow island, which is in the situation described by Du Pratz, is small and of recent formation. Five miles from this place is the mouth of the Grand River, where we camped. This river follows a course nearly south, or southeast, and is between 80 and 100 yards wide where it enters the Missouri, near a delightful and rich plain. A raccoon, a bear and some deer were obtained today.

If the historic old Dame of Frederick, who waved the Stars and Stripes in the face of Stonewall Jackson's troopers long ago, or if perchance Julia Marlowe and she together had happened into the Baker last night there would undoubtedly have been a very bad few minutes. If either of these estimable ladies had recognized themselves as portrayed in Barbara Fidgety they would assuredly planted a damage suit against the offender in the cold gray dawn of this morning. The melancholy story of Whittier's Barbara was amazingly distorted into hilarious farce, and people laughed where aforetime they had wept or thrilled with patriotic fervor.

"Barbara Fidgety" is undeniably funny, tuneful in spots and from a burlesque standpoint a satisfying Summertime entertainment.

Rice and Cody do their Dutch stunt in misfit Union uniforms. For the liberties they take in the country's uniform they should no doubt be courtmartialed and shot, but they will not be. The verdict of the court is that they are good-natured and harmless when not taken too seriously. A reprimand and a slap on the wrist will do for them. Lou Harlow has lots of fun as Barbara and since the audience is in her confidence everybody who witnesses the performance will have a good time with her. Sidney De Grey takes off the heroic Federal Captain well enough to earn a medal for gallantry in action and Bobby North, as the scrambled-brained lover in the scene of "The Telephone Girl" which he burlesques is at his best.

The Elleford Company closed a successful engagement at Cordray's yesterday in Carl Haswin's old play, "A Lion's Heart." The drama selected for the good-bye bill was just the sort to appeal to the audiences, which had become very fond of the organization which has played so creditable a season here. It was replete with heart throbs and emotion, interspersed with enough comedy to give it spice. The action of the play moves from a country fair in France to an English country-house, thence to the Swiss Alps and finally to the penal settlement in New Caledonia.

In it there was plenty of latitude for the villain and his hirelings, and the hisses which they received were evidence that their villainy was realistic. The better element as represented by the leading man, with a wrong to right; the leading lady, who suffered for others, and the juveniles, the ingenue, the light comedy "gent" and the "fliers" surmounted all their difficulties and came up for the denouement smiling and married ever afterward. There was nothing overlooked which goes to constitute a regulation melo-thriller.

The members of the cast were given a flattering farewell. There were many vigorous demonstrations, a number of curtain calls, and Myrtle Selwin came in for a bouquet of roses.

Last night's performance closed the Elleford season, and the members of the company will leave for San Francisco today for their Summer's rest.

REMEMBER THEIR DEAD.

Knights and Ladies of the Maccabees Hold Memorial Services.

Impressive memorial services were held by the assembled tents and hives of the Ladies and Knights of the Maccabees of this city yesterday afternoon in Ringler's Gymnasium. The services were in memory of all Maccabees who have died since the organization of the order 13 years ago, and many relatives of deceased members were present. Rev. G. W. Denniston conducted the exercises, and fine vocal music was provided. Mrs. Margaret Smith's solo, "Be Thou Strong," was a beautiful selection and perfectly rendered. The solo, "The Home Land," by Mrs. Ellen Kinsman Mann, was impressive and well sung.

Henry St. Rayner delivered the memorial address, his appropriate remarks making a deep impression on his hearers. After the audience was dismissed, the flowers which had been contributed in great quantities were distributed among the hospitals of the city:

The programme was:

REGISTER MORE VOTERS.

Direct Primary Law Requires Books Be Opened for November Election.

By a provision in the direct primary law enacted last Monday at the polls, registration of voters will be resumed this Autumn for the November elections. Heretofore the registration law has been deficient in that respect, for it has required electors to register prior to May 15 in order to vote in November for President, or else to vote on the affidavit of six freeholders. County Clerks throughout the state are now required to reopen the registration books "between September 20, 1904, and 5 o'clock P. M. of October 20, 1904, and between the same dates in each and every year thereafter in which there shall be an election of Presidential electors."

In November the first elections for prohibition will be held under the local option law on the same day as the election for President, namely, November 8.

WILL BE DECIDED SOON.

Suit With Taffe to Be Tried This Month--Right-of-Way for Portage.

Governor Chamberlain expects that the suit of the state against I. H. Taffe for ground for Celilo canal will be settled in Judge Bradshaw's court at The Dalles this month. He does not believe that the matter will be taken outside the Oregon courts, though Taffe seems determined to fight to the very last ditch.

The Governor says that the State Board will proceed with the portage project after the canal right of way shall have been secured. "The National Government," said His Excellency yesterday, "wants a canal right of way free of any easement or other incumbrance, and such we are aiming to secure. After we shall have obtained it, we shall be in a position to dicker for the portage. I believe that an arrangement can then be made with the War Department for using parts of the canal ground for the portage, of course, on condition that the portage shall not interfere with construction of the canal."

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

The Fashionable Theater.

The Arcade is Portland's fashionable vaudeville theater. It first brought vaudeville into favor with the best theatergoers of the city, and the clever bills of each week are holding this patronage. This week the Millar Brothers will introduce their famous diorama with war scenes from the Far East.

Sanford and Darlington are two clever devotees of the comedy sketch. Walter Jones is a character impersonator whose talents are not to be excelled, and Annie Goldie is a negro delineator with merry ways. Friedlander Brothers introduce a novel musical act. Kate Coyle sings an accompaniment to illustrated songs in a sweet contralto.

Panoramic views and moving pictures of the opening of the St. Louis Exposition will be shown on the American bioscope. Many men in the public eye will be recognized on the canvas. The vitagraph also has a new series of illuminated slides and pictures.

Star Theater to Open.

Portland's latest theater is the Star, Park and Washington streets, which will open Monday, June 20. It is the best equipped 10-cent vaudeville house on the Pacific Coast, thoroughly fireproof with large exits. Every modern appliance to insure the comfort and coolness of patrons has been provided. The bill that will start the Star on its popular career has already been signed and will be one of the best ever witnessed in Portland.

There will be one more teacher than formerly. The directors voted to increase the salary of the principal $10 per month, and those of his assistant $5 per month.
