GOING BACK TO CHINA.

Corpse of Lou May Will Be Shipped to the Orient.

Back to the land of his birth, the Celestial Empire, resting in a richly-orna-mented casket, will be shipped the body of Lou May, a prominent Chinese mer-chant, who died at St. Vincent's Sanita-rium three weeks ago. May was 30 years of age, and the disease that caused his death was tuberculosis.

But few dead Chinese age accorded the listinction which will be shown Lou May. In most cases where the wearers of pig-tails die in this country, they are buried here, and afterwards their bones are ex-humed, packed in a box and returned to their native heath. May goes back looking quite life-like, having been embalmed by an undertaker. Weird services will be held as the steamship Arabia leaves for the Orient with the dead Chinaman

E. H. SOTHERN TONIGHT.

Famous Actor to Present "The Proud Prince" at the Marquam Grand.

E. H. Sothern presents "The Proud Prince." the new play by Justin Huntly McCarthy, author of "If I Were King." at the Marquam Grand Theater tonight and tomorrow night. This will make one of the most important dramatic events ever seen in this city. The production is the most elaborate in point of spectacular magnificence of any that Mr. Sothern has ever presented. The tremendous success that greeted Mr. McCarthy's first play, "If I Were King." assured distin-guised attention to his newest offering, "The Proud Prince." which may be said to be a reverse in its story of "If I Were King," for in the latter play a vagaond outcast was raised to a Prince, and in "The Proud Prince," a King is lowered to an outcast. The scenic embelliehmenta are many in number and are laid in Sicily in the 13th century. There are many elec-trical effects, and music plays an impor-tant part. Besides being romantic and poetic, the play has a supernatural and religious theme that will commend it to the churchgoer as well as the regular theatergoer. There are many thrilling moments and big crowds. Fifty-two musical numbers are interspersed, and 150 people

Mr. Sothern's organization embraces so many well-known artists, that their ap-pearance here is a dramatic event of tself. The curtain will rise promptly at 8 o'clock. Remember the early curtain,

SMALLPOX PATIENT ESCAPES. George Palmer Refuses to Stay in County Pesthouse.

George Palmer, supposed to be afflicted with smallpox, escaped from the pest-house yesterday morning, and is roaming about at will with the police and members of the City Health Department on

Palmer applied Saturday afternoon to Dudley Evans. County Health Officer, to be committed to the County Hospital, saying he was suffering with rheumatism and neuralgia. He was sent to the institution and Sunday, morning the house physicion, Dr. Bowles, on visiting Palmer in his room, decided that he had devel-oped a case of smallpox. He ordered the man to go into a tent so he would be isolated from the other inmates, and at once funigated the room which he had occu-pled. Paimer refused to remain in the tent and was consequently forcibly taken to the pesthouse, which is near by. Yesterday morning he ran away from the pesthouse, returning to his lodgings at 299 Salmon street, where he got some money and left. Mrs. Evans ascertained this fact and disinfected the premises and vaccinated the immates of the house. The next step was to notify the police author-ities to capture Palmer and at last ac-

The Armory was filled by 2000 perons last night who gathered to witness the last inspection of the Portland companies of the Oregon National Guard to be held before the boys in blue leave for their Summer camp at American Lake on July 7. As they were put through the different maneuvers by the officers their concerted work brought repeated cheers and applause from the spectators who lined the galleries, filling every seat and aisle. The six bodies of men worked as one, the sound of their arms as they ordered them, the rattle of the bayonets as they fixed them, sounding as one man at drill. General Funston, accompanied by his aides and an escort from the National Guard, reviewed the troops, marching in front of the long lines as they stood at attention. Colonel C. V. Gantenbein con-ducted the inspection as the commander of the Third Regiment.

SALOON LICENSE GRANTED.

Troubles of Rohse's Park and John Sinner Are Ended.

Yesterday was saloon men's day before the liquor license committee of the Coun-cil. For the last several meetings strong anti-saloon delegations have been in attendance, but vesterday afternoon the were lacking and the other side got about what it wanted. The license of Robse's Park in Fulton, recently rescinded by the committee be-cause two girls who had spent the even-ing in the resort had been afterward ar-rested in another saloon, was returned after Robse's attorneys had spent some time talking to members of the cor

Chairman Sigler and Dr. Whiting had made a personal investigation of the com-plaints made by residents of the vicinity of Twenty-fourth and Vaughn streets against a license being granted to Fred Reifenrath. As it was close to the ballpark entrance, the license was allowed, though Mr. Flegel stuck to it that there were too many saloons in the vicinity already.

John Sinner's troubles with his revoked license because of a fight in his saloon at East Seventh and Falling streets, 19 weeks ago, were ended. The committee practically admitted that it had made a mistake in revoking the license without hearing any testimony, and granted a new license to Sinner. Again was Mr. Flegel's negative vote overruled by Mesars, Sigler, Whiting and Zimmerman.

SAY TUG WRECKED VESSEL.

Owners of Schooner Merchant Sue Wheeler Lumber Company.

The loss of the schooner Merchant, at the mouth of the Nehalem River in August, 1902, is the cause of a suit now being tried in the Federal Court, in which Eschen et al., who owned the ill-fated vessel, are proceeding against the Wheeler Lumber Company, owners of the tug

George R. Vosburg.

The libellants claim the tug was responsible for the loss of their schooner, while the defendants set up as a defense that, through poor steering on the part of the schooner's crew, she did not follow the tug, and on that account got beyond control of the Vosburg, drifted ashore and was afterwards wrecked. They further contend that the Merchant's timbers were so far decayed as to make it impossible to save the craft after she struck the

The libeliants place the value of the Merchant at $3000 and the freight on her at $1400.
