Make Stupid Plays and Appear Sleepy.

OAKLANDS NOW LEAD SEALS

Morning Game Is Public Property Until Fourth Inning, When Raymond and Thielman Let In Two Unnecessary Runs.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5 .- (Special.)-The Commuters, by taking a brace of games from the Browns today, sneaked past the Scale and left Harris' outfit buried quite deep in the subcellar. The only chances the Browns had to make a showing were lost through stupid plays. Twice with no one gone and a runner on first, the Dugs endeavored to swat the ball over the fence. Their ambitions were eadly thwarted, the Oaklands pulling off a double play in each instance. In the seventh Nadeau was safe at first on his own single. Beck flew out to center, Nadeau advancing, and then before Steelman had a chance to do anything Nadeau went to sleep and was caught three feet off the base. Had he been playing ball instead of speculating as to his next year's salary he would have been scored by Steelman's clean drive for two bases.

The morning game was public property until the fourth inning. Then Raymond booted a couple of balls and Thielman let one too many kinks out of his arm in throwing to Raymond, the sum total of this galaxy of brilliant plays being two runs. Double plays were common, and both Graham and Jake Thielman did good work in the box.

Eldred had a regular Labor day holiday in heating the field that hooked up with her in the last race. Alarie sent her away with the speed of a centaur, and at time she was five lengths in front of Estraza, who finished second. She spreadeagled her field throughout the route and won as she pleased by two lengths. Es-traza was next best, and the best that Kelly could do with Algaretta was to fin ich third by half a length.
