HOMES TRACKED WITH TAR

HOUSEHOLDERS ON NORTH TENTH STREET INDIGNANT.

Crosswalks Are Covered With Sticky Substance That Makes Damaging Footprints on Carpets.

A cry of indignation was raised yesterday by the property-owners along North Tenth street, between Stark and Davis streets. These property-owners and restdents of the City of Portland consider that they have been outraged in connec tion with the recently almost completed new covering and top-dressing placed on hat thoroughfare. The Star Sand Company, J. W. Sweeney and Smyth & Howard were awarded the contracts for repairing the street, the former securing 11 blocks, Smyth & Howard four blocks and J. W. Sweeney one block. The total cost of the improve-ment is $18,085.17. Where new street crossings were necessary the contracts, it seems, were given to Miller & Bauer, who completed their part some time ago.

Now arises complaint from the housewives along the street. Property-owners admit that the street was in a ather bad condition, but complain loudly bout the exorbitant assessment levied upon them for the kind of work done here were a few holes and rough spots here and there along the street. Crushed rock was spread all over the surface, without a pick or shovel being used to break the old surface; then a thin screen-ing of sand was put on and a roller run over the top. For this the property-owners have been assessed about $4.50 per running foot.

A few days ago the city refused to ac cept the crosswalks which were put in with cobblestones by Miller & Baner, and the contractors immediately started take up the first ones and put them down according to the specifications in the contract.

As for the complaint from the house wives, it may be stated that the cobblestone crosswalks were put in at the intersections of Stark, Burnside, Couch and Davis streets with Tenth street. In some of the crosswalks the spaces between the blocks were filled partly with sand and the others with a sticky substance made of coaltar and pitch

Tuesday, when the surface of the cross walks was covered over with a thick coat ing of this mixture and then spread over with a thin layer of white sand, com-plaints commenced to fly faster. The children living any place in the neighborhood for several blocks, on either side of Tenth street, went home covered with the sticky substance, leaving it on everything they touched.

Tuesday evening, about quitting-time, the two crosswalks on Tenth and Couch streets were covered with the conitar and left without a coating of sand. After dark the crosswalk had the appearance of being sprinkled, and people stepped onto them only to find themselves almost fastened. The houses in the near vicinity were all tracked with the footprints o

At the Armory there was much com ment upon the affair, and the carpets, some of which are the finest that can be purchased, are almost rulned. The sidewalks along the street are smeared from one corner to the other.

The members of families living at 423
Burnside, 29 North Tenth and 15 North Tenth expressed themselves as being very indignant over the damage caused their

Some of the property-owners are pre-earing to resist the assessment and make formal protest against paying it.
