NEEDLEWORK GUILD EXHIBITS SEWING.—
The exhibition of sewing given by the Portland branch of the Needlework Guild of America at Parsons Hall yesterday afternoon was viewed by a large number of guests who called between 2 and 5 o'clock. The display was the work accomplished in one year by the guild and was comprised of garments of every description which are to be distributed among the needly of the city. Cases of absolute need are given first attention and the garments are distributed through the Salvation Army, Volunteers of America, Poor Farm, Haby Home, Refuge Home, Boys' and Girls'-Aid Society, hospitals and other institutions. The Portiand branch of this guild is composed of 19 sections, each of which is supposed to contribute not less than 119 garments annually. Each director is asked to give two garments and to seis asked to give two garments and to secure at least ten garmentmakers and one member who contributes money. Mrs. number who contributes money. Unitarian Alliance members were entertained yesterday afternoon by an instructive paper on "Old Louisiana," read by Mrs. C. B. Colby, editor of the Woman's Tribune, and by music furnished by Miss Edwina Mastick and Miss Copeland. Miss Mastick sang a petty little Irish song, "Shoogy Shoo," and "Three Green Bonnets," each well suited to her fresh, well-trained voice. Miss Copeland's contraits solo, "Goodby Sweet Day," and her encore selection were also heard with much pleasure. The alliance is very busy at present getting ready for the annual banaar to be held the first week in December. In fact, all branches of the church work are active at present, the young people holding frequent rebearsals for their play, which is to be presented at Parsons Hall, and the committee for the sele of Thanskgiving dainties are making elaborate plans for their sale, which is to be held the Wednesday before Thanksgiving. day and fumigated by Health Officer Evans. NEW TELEGRAPH LINE TO NORTH NEW TRIEGRAPH LINE TO NORTH-HEAD.—The United States Weather Bu-reau silne between Fort Canby and North Head, which has been in bad working or-der for the past two days on account of injuries received by the wires during the recent storm, is again in good condition and messages are now being transmitted. The trouble was caused by a number of large trees below unconted by the storm. The trouble was caused by a number of large trees being uprosted by the storm, whose fall broke the wires. To improve the service, a contract was made yesterday to run a new line from North Head to the Pacific States Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s line near the military reservation at Fort Canby. By reason of this new line the Weather Bureau officials here will have a double service for their messages with North Head by two different roads. The new line is being conent roads. The new line is being con-structed free of expense to the Govern-ment through the couriesy of District Manager Thatcher, of the Pacific States Telephone & Telegraph Company.

East Side Street Congested.—Owing to the constant congestion of street-cars, bassengers and vehicles of all sorts at the intersection of Union avenue and East Burnside street, Chief Hunt yesterday gave orders to station a policeman at this place. There have been several narrow escapes, although no serious accidents have occurred. Last evening at 6 o'clock all street-car traffic was blocked at the interection of East Burnside and East Third streets by a big truck of W. M. Stoops getting stalled. It was pulled out by one of the cars.

WOMAN RESERVE RESCUE.-Yesterday Joseaph Buchtel dragged an aged woman from the front end of an approaching express-car at the intersection of Union avenue and East Burnside street, so quickly that she thought she was being kidnaped. The act of necessity was not gently performed, and at first the woman was inclined to resent what she considered uncalled-for rough treatment, but she was finally made to understand that Mr. Buchtel had only saved her from possible sections in their

George Ade, deservingly lucky dog, wrote "The County Chairman" from first-hand information. He was born and lived his outh in an Indiana hamlet called Kentland, and there, among the folk he knows best, he laid his play. The home of Jim Hackler, Lucy Rigby and Sassafras, was Antioch, but it might just as well have been Lecompton or Silverton, for it is the typical country town of the North and West as it was in the early '80s. The types are real, not buriesques as in the case of almost all our rural dramas, and when they walk upon the stage they step out of the cherished past of all of us who are country-bred. They awaken such memories that while we laugh with them and at them, there is almost a heartache in the recollection which comes to us of the old days when we were 20-odd years nearer Lincoln than we are now and all things were so much better.

Jim Hackler, bless his old Souch hat, was setting up the pins in the county con-vention when Bisine and Conkling and Tilden were the popular idols and Gro-ver Cleveland was still Sheriff of Buffalo. He was not altogether good and lovely, but if any one dares call him bad he can get a fight in front of Vance Jimmison's store at Anticoh or Lecompton or Sil-verton any old time, to this day. Then there was Miss Watkins, the flirtatious little milliner whose weakpess was "trav-eling gentiemen," and Uncle Eck, the oldest inhabitant. There was Briscoe, who was too lazy to split wood, but could talk politics from a drygoods box all day. There was also his strong-minded wife, who had to "keep boarders" because her husband was a politician. There was the fly drummer and the colored person called Sassafras. There was Lucy and the young aspirant for her heart and the office. How all the world must have them. There was her mother and alas, also her father.

These people and all the others in the play came back to us through the vista of years as from a long journey, last night at the Marquam, when George hight at the Marquam, when Ge-Ade's play, which deserves to become classic, was given its first Portland; sentation. Sift the plays of the past decades, and you will find smong chaff that "The County Chairman" chaff that "The County Chairman" is one of the few grains of real wheat. It is so good, so true and so helpful with its clear atmosphere, its gentle, kindly satire and its deft touches of pathos, so sweet with the lavender incense of the chest of memories that the pity is all of Portland could not have seen it last night. The company is as fine a one as you could wish for. Theodore Roberts, whose Canby in "Arizona" will never be forgotten, is playing Hackler with this company and his sudiences must want company and his sudiences must want to climb upon the stage en masse to grasp his hand and tell him they're for him. The part simply cannot be done more nearly to the life. One of the best of modern minstrels, George Thatcher, is cast as Sassafras, the negro with a vote to sell, and his selection was an inspira-tion. The darky of his would pass mus-ter for the genuine article in any country community. Lenaide Williams convinced everybody that she was not "assuming" the role of the milliner. She was the lit-tle milliner in every particular, and Will Phillips made a most excellent fresh drummer. Florence Smythe was a charm-ingly natural Lucy, and William Lamp was happily at home in the part of the ROSE SOCIETY MEETS.-An interesting a weak spot in the cast, even to the least f the supera, of whom there were many. If you will hunt up a copy of the "De-mentor" for January, 1882, you will see lineator" for January, 1882, you will see that the ladies' dresses were stylish for the period, as styles go in Antioch. The stage settings are on an ample scale and the old-fushioned incidental music, the "martial band," the campaign paraders, and in fact every detail was exact.

I must repeat that it's a pity all the people of this town can't see the play, which will be repeated towngrays wight, and at will be repeated tomorrow night and at a Saturday matinee. It's a pity you can't all go back to Grigsby's Station or Antioch, or wherever it may be and see "The County Chairman" and our other old-time friends. Those of you who can, should visit with them awhile and when they all go down to the 11:15 train to see you off you will feel glad and grateful to George Ade and the splendid actors in the company for having carried you back to days and scenes which you loved but which like the old, best things are gone save in the lavender-acented memory-box will be repeated tomorrow night and at gave in the lavender-scented memory-box "The County Chairman" op a little while.

NEW LAW PROPOSED BY BOARD OF TRADE FOR OREGON.

Assessment for State Tax to Be Made by State Independent of Counties, and Levy to Be Reduced.

The Portland Board of Trade believes in divorce in so far as the question applies to the separation of the state from cided that the legislative committee draft ssion at the coming seaa bill for subr a bill for submission at the coming ses-sion of the Legislature which should pro-vide for the equal and uniform valuation of the land and property of the state by a state and not a county official. The board takes exception to the present high rates of levy in Multn County and would like to see it lower. It considers that the present system of County Assessors' and individual assessment, as well as the method of levying the state tax, not conductive to the best interests of the state at large. The bill to be drawn up will provide for a State Assessor, whose duty it shall be to oversee the assessment of all the property in the state. This official will place the valuation as near the market quotations as possible, and upon his as-sessment the state will base the state levy, each county to pay in proportion to its share of the total property of the state. In this manner the state tax would be levied entirely separate from the county tax and there would be no reason or chance for the different As-sessors to put down the assessment and thus raise the levy, to the detriment of the county. The county assessment would be in the hands of the county officers, who could adopt the state assessment or not, at their option.

The legislative committee of the board will take the measure up at once and will have a draft completed and revised for the opening of the January session.
