No Better Example of the Weakness of Words

Was ever given than in the inadequate and superficial description of the vastness and intensely interesting—from economical and emotional standpoints—features embodied in the GRAND EXPOSITION AND EXPLOITATION OF AMERICAN PRODUCTIONS as being demonstrated this week by Olds, Wortman & King. Like a vast network of railroads, the exhibition covers every section of America, and embraces its products. We congratulate our good conferees upon their continuance of co-operation in the splendid work mapped out by this modern giant among American stores, and their conduct of it along strictly original (?) lines. Stores, like individuals, cannot become imbued with too much of the American spirit. It elevates and broadens, and lifts one out of sordid ruts onto higher planes, where man's humanity to man is best exemplified. American customs call for shorter hours of labor, which same means a higher price for the laborer's product, which must mean a higher wage for the workman—as supply and demand regulate price. Less goods produced in eight hours than in 12—goods demand better price—the artisan gets it. Time enough in ten hours of a day to sell American products. Let's all get the American habit—"BULLY!" Fingers muscular and dexterous, with values for Monday and all week beckon you today.

The World Drives to America's Shops to Be Shod

The great shoe manufacturing centers of America supply the denizens of every known land with footwear. Land at an English, South American, Australian, or any other foreign port, and the first sight like to greet the eye is numerous shoe-cases bearing the imprint of a well-known Lynn, Brockton, Haverhill, Wakefield, Marlboro, Worcester, Mass., or Detroit, Mich., maker of good shoes. We know thousands of smart dressers adhere to a certain shoe price because the shoes at that price never fail to wear well and conform to the shape of the foot, as well as to Fashion's requirements. Oftentimes that price is $5 or $6. We buy every pair of shoes that comes to this store with a view to its being worn by some particular woman. So one may see—of necessity—it must fulfill every requirement of the $5 or $6 shoe. The

A Mighty "Comparison Sale" Starts Today

A Commanding Feature of "American Week"
Every Theater Wrap and Costume, Every Evening Gown of Every Sort for one week at Half Price

SUPERB CREATIONS, Handsome Silks, Rare Laces, Magnificent Velvets, Rich Brocades—unmatchable productions of the world's most noted designers. Portland women know full well the incomparable style, standing and quality mark of the Olds, Wortman & King creations. Paris, Berlin, Vienna, London and New York have selected, with critical eye, their choicest gems from garment-makers, famous among royalty itself. This house is conceded, from the fashion-molders of New York to the style-wearers of the Pacific Slope, to be far away and alone ahead of all others west of Chicago in exploitation of authoritative styles. We buy and sell more high-class theater, carriage, auto and evening Wraps and Gowns—twice over—than ALL other Portland stores combined. So now, starting today, we're going to open the flood-gates—for one week—upon the greatest sale of these high-class garments ever held in all the West. 'Twill be mighty costly to us—NOW—but once and for all, in this matchless, unprecedented feast of rare values, by this unparalleled "COMPARISON SALE," we'll prove to the most skeptical mind the premier leadership, now and always, both in style, showings from authoritative sources, and value-giving, of this—Portland's best and foremost store.

THEATER WRAPS range from $50 to $250
CALLING AND CARRIAGE GOWNS $75 to $250
COSTUMES AND EVENING GOWNS $35 to $500

Among them are many of the famous Mlle. Schroeder's latest and newest creations, just in from this celebrated New York modiste's showrooms. Mlle. Schroeder, is accepted authority on all that pertains to fashion in dress among New York's "Smart Set" and swellest dressers. Early choosing is wise.

FLIRTING IN CHURCH.
Are Ours More Decorous Than English Young People?
Chicago Chronicle.
Coquetting and love-making in church have been carried to such a pitch in London that the dean of Norwich devoted his sermon a week ago to a protest against the prevailing habit of young people using the cathedral during holy services as a place to carry on flirtations. To make the dean's words more effective, 70 stewards and one detective have been enrolled for the purpose of preventing flirting in the nave. Any young person who has a frivolous air is compelled to go into a front seat where the eyes of the congregation are on him. If the flirting is not then stopped the young person is taken in hand and marched out of the building. The necessity for such detective service in church was thought to have disappeared long ago. During the first two centuries of settlement in New England the churches were in the lookout for miscreants, and flitting men were appointed to keep watch of the young people. These detectives walked up and down the aisle and to and fro flourishing a long stick. Occasionally one would cry out in a re-pulchral tone in the midst of the sermon: "I perceive there is whispering in the gallery," and all eyes were turned in the direction of the offender. Love-making was rigidly looked after and all other nonsense of a similar kind. For the last 10 years the flitting man has disappeared, even from the most remote rural districts of New England. It was thought that a growing self-respect and the influence of republican sentiment in the way of self-reliance had done away with the necessity for a constant watch-dog during church service. Of late no complaints have been made of suspicious love-making in churches on this side of the water. Perhaps our young people know how to carry themselves with more decorum than their English cousins. Perhaps they have plenty of opportunity elsewhere without trespassing on the privileges afforded by church-going. Perhaps they have other ways of conducting business.

At all events, it does not take 70 stewards and one detective to look out for flirtatious couples in American churches.
As to Long Heads.
London Daily Mail.
There was a good deal about long heads in the form of long words, in the Huxley memorial lecture delivered last night before the Anthropological Institute by Dr. J. Deniker, of Paris. The following are some of the terms used: Hyperdolichocephalic (very long headed). Dolichocephalic (long headed). Sub-dolichocephalic (moderately long headed). Mesocephalic (medium headed). Sub-brachycephalic (moderately short headed). Brachycephalic (short headed). Hyperbrachycephalic (very short headed).
