THE MORNING OREGONIAN, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1904.

Lee Mee Gin, at Second and Morrison, was the first to feel the strength of the Sheriffs arm. Deputies entered the dark hallway, came to the strong door, battered it down without hesitation and thrown into the street, whore it was thrown into the gutter for the express wagon to pick up. While this was going on. Sheriff Word, accompanied by one deputy, went through the reat of the building to make an investigation, and containing to make an investigation, and came auddenly upon a Chinaman mark-ing a large bundle of lottery tickets. This Opicential was May Wah, and he was promptly placed under arrest and taken bromptly pinted under arrest and taken to the County Jall, afterward being re-leased on bonds by Justice Reid. From the establishment of Lee Mee Gin the deputies advanced down Second street, their strength divided into three separate companies, each acting inde-pendently of the other, in order that the work might be quicker and the Celestials taken by surprise. It was evident at first that the Chinamen were of the opluon that the raid was to include but one or two houses, as former raids have done, but in this they were rapidly disillusion-ed. As fast as the deputies could tear away the doors they were thrown into the street and picked up by the express wagon. One crowd of deputies took in one side of the street and Sheriff Word and the remainder of the force gave their attention to the remaining side. Crowds began to gather and match the work of the sheriffs, some applauding, some con-demedia. that the raid was to include but one an to gather and match the work con-mining. Chinamen stood about in inches, saying nothing, but evidently inking a great deal. There was not the ist show of resistance at any of the Next door to the north of the house oc-cupled by Hose and Chemical No. 1 is the strongest door in Chinatowa. This was promptly slammed in the faces of the officers, harred and holed, and an in-vitation extended to those who desired to take off the door and go shead and do it if they could. The present limit is seven mills, District Attorney Sullivan carried the case to the Court of Appeals here, where he argued not only the constitutionality of posed. The present limit is seven mile, unless payments of interest on bonded debt may require a higher tax. A plan will be suggested for improving several streets within a given districts all at the same time instead of one thoroughthe law, but also showed that the Northern District of Ohio might be invaded by Chinamen if the decision of Judge Wing stood. It was argued the case was one of great importance on the deporting of fare. The present system entails hard-ships upon property-owners along an im-proved street, since traffic gravitates to it from poor streets and the life of the imsamen in all parts of the United from poor streets and the life of the im-provement is curialled.
