

CAUGHT IN A TRAP

Dr. Clarence Loneberry Meets the Wrong Young Lady.

ARRESTED ON THE STREET

Asked at Police Station, He Explains Why He Attempted to Make Engagement With Fourteen-Year-Old Girl.

Stepping up to address a girl whom he had never seen but had made an engagement with by telephone, Dr. Clarence Loneberry, inspector in charge of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, was arrested last night on the corner of Fifth and Washington streets at 4:45 by Officer Kay. Immediately afterwards he was confronted by an indignant older sister and a little later harangued out the whole affair before Captain Moore. Loneberry in the end gave bond for $200 to appear before Judge Hogan this morning.

Loneberry explained that a woman, a trained nurse, whom he knew slightly, had telephoned him during the afternoon asking if he would like to marry a young lady friend of hers. He took the name and telephone number but did not make use of the information till later on. He was told to call her up, he said, and it would be all right.

When he called up the girl, at the number indicated, he asked, he alleges, for Florence Gould, sister of the girl. He asked for Blanche, Florence is 23 and Blanche is 14.

Blanche, explained Miss O. Gould, the oldest sister in the family, to Captain Moore, came to her during the evening at their home on West avenue and the Base Line road, telling her that Dr. Snow, a friend of the family, had called her up and asked to meet her over town, and asked if it would be all right.

Miss Gould knew no Dr. Snow and it took little time for the older sisters to get the story out of the girl as to how she was to dress, and to dress Florence in that manner, when the two sisters, leaving the little one at home, appeared at the police station and asked for an officer to accompany them while they trapped this Dr. Snow.

When Loneberry saw a slender girl standing in the middle of the car tracks at Fifth and Washington, dressed as he expected, he walked up to her and addressed her, calling her by name. She seemed almost speechless, but Officer Kay looked far otherwise when he took Loneberry by the arm and marched him off to the expectant Captain Moore.

It took about 15 minutes to make clear to Loneberry that he had picked up with the wrong girl. He believed he had been trapped for one purpose or another, and he did not see wherein it was his duty to pick up with a girl as old as the one he had met. He then explained that he had never seen either of the girls, and that he thought he was making an engagement with a woman, not a child.

He expressed surprise when told that he had been speaking over the telephone with Blanche, saying as before yesterday morning and gave but little trouble either to the public or to the employees of the company. A few mistakes were made and some wrong transfers were given, but it will be but a short time until patrons of the company learn the new rules and the system will work with great smoothness and convenience.

The management of the company is very much gratified at the ease with which the change from the old plan to the new was made, and is confident that it will be less than a week before there will be no further misunderstandings on the part of anyone.

NEW TRANSFERS IN EFFECT.

Street-Railway Patrons Experienced but Little Trouble With Them.

The new transfer system inaugurated by the Portland Consolidated Railway Company went into effect yesterday morning and gave but little trouble either to the public or to the employees of the company. A few mistakes were made and some wrong transfers were given, but it will be but a short time until patrons of the company learn the new rules and the system will work with great smoothness and convenience.

The management of the company is very much gratified at the ease with which the change from the old plan to the new was made, and is confident that it will be less than a week before there will be no further misunderstandings on the part of anyone.
