SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 16.-(Special.)-The solato market was hedly handlcapped by in-the stores. There is no present outlet through shipping channels. Until the great incubus of Primary receipts, however, show some signs of diminishing, and it is quite within the bounds of possibility that the rush of new wheat to market attracted by the high prices obtainable is for the moment over, and if large interests also should be un-der wheat, there ought to be no difficulty in burning an enter the and directions. keeping up prices over there and advancing them further. As the crop gradually approaches maturity, giving evidence of good quality and a considerable increase over last year, sellers offer with greater confidence, and a fair busi-ness in the new crop has stready beau conness in the new crop has already been con ness in the new crop has already been con-cluded. Once the market comes under political influences other considerations are thrown to the winds, and until the present tension is re-moved, either in one way or the other, it is useless expressing an opinion on the probable course of the market.

It is estimated that somewhat over 500 carlonds of flour have been bought by the Eastern trade since the movement started, and inquiries and orders tinue to come in. No trouble with the car estuation is reported in this line. But few or-ders have been placed by the Asiatics lately. as they have not seen fit to raise their views to a level with asking prices on this Coast. A good supply of former orders, however, incur full cargoes for the next two regular liners to sail, and the usual quantity of overflow freight will go to the Sound for shipment by the sisamers there. There are also rumors that an independent steamer may be chartered to take care of some of the business that the local line is unable to handle, but the report cannot be confirmed.

HOPS-The market for hope is in an inactive state. Eastern brewers are holding off, evi-dently trying to shake the confidence of holders. Growers want 32 cents or better, and dealers and agents of the Easterners will not talk hope at these figures. The result is a deadlook, the outcome of which depends on which side holds out longest. Should weak holders become frightened and start to unload, a break would be inevitable, but if all growers stand pat, it is universally conceded that they can bring the brewers to time. The fact that the consumers are offering around 20 cents, and are anxious to buy hops at that price, is a pretty good indication that they want the goods. No important sales from first hands were made in the last few days. Statistically, the position is stronger than the actual market, but there is no cause for
