DEFENSE MAKES OBJECTIONS

Contention That Testimony Does Not Connect Defendants With Crimes Charged is Overruled-Proof May Show Conspiracy.

"This is the forest primeval. The murmuring pines and the hemlocks.

Bearded with moss, and in garments green, indistinct in the twilight, stand like Druids of eld, with voices and and prophetic—"

Testerday was the glad Thanksgiving day; that all-American day when turkey rampant and joy is rife, but the morning brought no smile to anyone in the land-fraud cases, unless it was to the Paints a Primeval Forest.

It was all so quietly and so evenly done that hardly a ripple occurred in all done that hardly as ripple occurred in all the session. The lawyers, the court, the defendants and the spectators listened to the story of the old surveyor, and as he progressed could hear the murmuring of the primeval pines and first clustered around the base of Mount Jefferson, could feel the cold of the June snow that hid from sight any chance signs of humankind, and could look up through the virgin forest to where the Spring stars smilled down upon the mountain life, rough and young, that he depicted. life, rough and young, that he depicted, stretch of unbroken wood and a vision of tumbling stream; not the smell of the new-mown hay, nor the lowing kine or the everpresent note of the industrious the everpresent note of the industrious hen, as pictured by the defense. And as the testimony progressed, unbroken except by an occasional objection from Judge Pipes, Frank H. Wolgamot crushed the handkerchief perpetually held in his hand. McKinley Mitchell frowned, and Miss Ware and Mrs. Watson forgot to smile. It was the time for the prosecution to be gay. tion to be gay.

The witness, who had been sworn on the day preceding, was called at the opening of the court. He stated in beginning that he had been in the employ of the Government for a number of years; that he had worked on more than 30 cases on land made up of boulders and barren water consideration in 15 of the states of the Union. On this present case he had gone into the vicinity of township 11, south of range 7 east, on or about June 14 of the present year, and had finished his work about 10 days later. On his trip he had been accompanied by Robert and Benjamin Pierce, S. C. Dilley, George W. Pritts and a packer taken along to care for the camp effects.

Just about this time Mr. Pipes objected to the testimony of the witness on the ground that he was not qualified as an expert. He had not had experience enough. Barber showed that he had been testimony was objected to by Judge Pipes on the ground that it was incompetent and did not connect the defendants in any matter with the crime charged. The court overruled the objec-curing his final certificate at the Ore-gon City land office. Barr testified at that time to having built a house and established a residence on his land in September, 1832. The house was of logs, 16 by H feet in dimensions, with a barn and a few acres in cultivation, all valued at $600. He had been absent from his claim for from four to five months each year, in order to get money to work his claim and make his home. He had improved and cultivated about one-hair acre of land for the past eight or nine

"Mr. Barber," questioned Mr. Heney, "what signs of habitation did you find when you visited this claim of Barr's?" No Improvements on Barr Claim.

"There were no signs of human habitation. No trees had been cut, and there were no signs other than those made by the Government surveyors in surveying the land."

"What kind of a road was there?" asked the examiner.
"It was a very heavy forest, and a per-

Mr. Heney asked to read the testi-mony in the case of Miss Emma L. Por-ter, made on filing upon the northeast quarter of section 32 on the land in ques-

Mrs. Porter testified that she had estaba residence on the land in October, She had built a house of logs, 20 1832. She had built a house of logs, 20 by 20 feet, with four rooms and a woodshed. She had chickens, a horse, a cow and a barn on the land to the value of $500. She had resided upon the land most of the time since the time the house was built, never being absent more than three months at a time. The time that she apent away from the place was spent in Portland, when she worked to make a living and to secure money for the improvement of her homestead. She had cultivated one-quarter of an acre and had grown crops ever since settling on the property. She had never made another homestead entry, and had no property except what was on this claim.

"When you examined the Porter claim," asked Mr. Heney of the witness, "did you find a house?"

No House on Porter Claim.

"I didn't find an open piece of ground ig enough to hold a house." responded he witness. "The land was very moun-ainous. Near the creek there were fourtrees that had been cut. I want to mention this particularly, because it is the only place in all of the 20 claims where there were any other marks than those land fraud cases, unless it was to the faces of the attorneys for the prosecution, who at this time introduced their first evidence which, it is declared, wis connect the defendants with the crime of conspiracy against the Government and place them face to face with the bars of a Government prison.

A. W. Barber, the Government Surveyor, was the man who laid the pitfalls which may entrap the defense and deliver them bound with damning circumstance and trussed with statements, false and fraudulent, into the hands of the Government camp. Mr. Heney then introduced, one after the other, the final testimony of all the the other, the final testimony of all the cases cited at the beginning of the day. On none of them had any signs of cultivation been found. No roads could be discovered, and in going to the Joseph Wilson claim it had taken the party three hours to go three miles by the old Minto trail, which was overgrown with brush and practically impassable.

The warmest day was Wednesday, November 9, 67 degrees; the coldest, Friday, November 4, Shingle Market in Bad Way.

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Nov. 26.—(Special)—The shingle market in the north-western part of the State of Washington is in a deplorable state. The lumber situation is little better. The prices on all grades of shingles have dropped within the last ten days, and none of the lumber merchants are making any money. According to the shingle men's statements the remedy lies in the milisectors ing for a month or six weeks. This plan is contemplated, and will go into effect about December 1

NEWSBOYS HAVE DINNER

YOUNGSTERS CAUSE VIANDS TO DISAPPEAR.

Ninety-One Line Up at Tables and Make Away With Turkey and Other Edibles.

If there was a newsboy in Portland yesterday who did not get all the good things he wanted to eat for his Thanksgiving dinner it was his own fault.

There are 31 newsboys on record, however, who did not go hungry or partake of ordinary fare. They gathered at J. O. Wickham's restaurant on Sixth street and got such a "feed" as many of them will not know again until Christmas, or perhaps until next Thanksgiving Day. There was no dinner more thoroughly enjoyed than that of the newsboys. They were on hand long before dinner time, were on hand long before dinner time, and just to give them a pleasant appetizer some charitably inclined individual amused himself by throwing nickels into dinner was announced, there was a mighty rush for table space, and a terrific din was kept up by the hungry youngsters until the steaming viands appeared, and then a sudden hush came over the assembinge, which was not broken until the last available densert had been "pun-ished," when they again directed their whole attention to hurling jokes at one another and engaging in repartee. Their menu included oyster soup, tur-key and cranberry sauce. English plum pudding, celery, candy, cakes, nuts and

It was late in the afternoon before the dinner was ended, and that there had been something unusual in newsboy circles was apparent from the loud and the evening paper.

"Say, Jim." one of the youngsters was overheard to say after the dinner. "I fooled that waiter down there at the dinner and made him believe I didn't git no puddin'—and I got three pieces." "That's nothin'," returned Jim. "I done the same thing an' got five dishes of it an' say, wasn't it great?"
