

THE HERO OF HABIT

Stirring Address Given Before Y. M. C. A. Convention.

EFFECT IS PLAINLY MARKED

Earnest Words of Traveling Secretary Parsons Heard by Many Young Men Not Connected With the Organization.

SALEM, Or., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—The power of habit in the formation of character and the shaping of a man's destiny was the subject of a stirring address delivered by W. M. Parsons, traveling secretary of the international committee, at the session of the Y. M. C. A. Convention this afternoon. The meeting was held in the auditorium of the First Methodist Episcopal Church and that large room was crowded with young men.

The meeting was one of the most effective of the convention, for it was attended not only by active workers of the Christian associations, but also by large numbers of young men who are in no way identified with that organization.

Mr. Parsons is a clear, forceful speaker whose fitting illustrations are drawn from common occurrences in every-day life and are therefore more convincing in strengthening his arguments and appeals. That his address this afternoon reached the hearts of his hearers was evident from the number of young men who indicated their intention to lead henceforth a Christian life.

After a brief song service, in which the audience joined heartily in singing hymns that have been familiar to them since their childhood, a male chorus of 14 voices sang "Where Shall I Spend Eternity?" and Mr. Parsons took charge of the meeting. He took the Ten Commandments as his text, and, referring to the one which had just been sung, said that each for himself must answer the question, "Where shall I spend eternity?"

Taking up the subject announced he set forth the manner in which habits, good or bad, are formed, first by single acts, which, if repeated, become the easier to perform and finally leave their impress upon a man's character. It is in the foundation of habits that a man determines whether he shall be master of his own life or a slave of his habits.

As a man sows, so shall he also reap. He that soweth to the flesh shall reap corruption. He that soweth to the spirit shall reap eternal life. Though the penalty of evil deeds may not be imposed speedily, yet every reasonable man who will reflect upon the matter must admit that he who sows to the flesh must some time pay the penalty, with interest, and interest compounded.

In view of this it is the duty of every young man to do something to guard his life against the consequences of evil acts. The speaker said that the habits of mind or body a man forms in youth will be found to be almost controlling powers in his character in later years. A man's character today is the result of what he has been doing in the last few years, months or weeks, in other words, by the habits he has formed. The man who has been doing things that are questionable has been putting rotten matter in the foundation of his character. A man does well to see that every act and habit of his life is clean and pure and sound.

Let every young man in the audience of his character shall stand the test of storm and time. The character that a man builds in his youth is the foundation of his life. His destiny. God does not condemn men to punishment, but at the end of this life each of us will go to the place for which we have prepared ourselves. The speaker made special reference to some of the most serious evils which are to some of the young men to ruin. He deplored the lack of will power, as evidenced by the ease with which young men are induced to do things they know to be wrong. The habit of using profane, impure and vulgar language he declared to be one of the most pernicious of the evils which are ruining young men. No man should tell stories that he would be ashamed to tell in the presence of his mother or sister. Among other evils he mentioned the tobacco habit, drinking, gambling, dishonesty and licentiousness.

The foundation of habits like these makes a man a slave to them and he must throw them off and be master of himself. No power is so effective in keeping a man clean or helping him to overcome evil habits as the acceptance of Jesus Christ as the savior of man. The rule and guide of their conduct.

The closing session of the Oregon-Idaho Y. M. C. A. Convention was held this morning at the Forest Grove Y. M. C. A. building, where the speakers were given by association workers, closing with a parting word from the newly elected president, P. L. Campbell, of Eugene. The last exercise of the convention was conducted, when 500 Y. M. C. A. workers joined hands in one large circle around the auditorium of the church and sang "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

HOGS MUST PAY DAMAGES.

Jury Decides Against Him in Bagley Libel Suit.

HILLSBORO, Or., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—A jury of six sitting with Judge L. A. Reed, County Judge, at midnight last night brought in a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $100 and costs in the libel damages case of Attorney H. T. Bagley, of Hillsboro, against Walter A. Hoge, of Hillsboro, and Mabel Hoge, proprietors of the Forest Grove Times, a newspaper published weekly at the college town, six miles west of this city. Walter A. Hoge is the father of the two other defendants, but claims they own no interest in the paper. Charles Hoge now being a reporter on a daily paper at Lincoln, Neb., and Miss Hoge being connected with the Portland City Free Library.

The suit was brought as the result of a lawsuit before a Forest Grove Justice of the Peace, wherein a real estate man brought an action for a commission for property sold. S. H. Huston was counsel for the defense, but as he was going East at the time of trial Mr. Bagley was asked to conduct the case.

At the trial Mr. Bagley introduced witnesses to impeach Mark Noble, the plaintiff. The next day after the trial Noble went in to Hoge's office, his conduct was such that he was very angry and dictated an article, Hoge doing the writing, charging that Bagley came very near being disgraced some years ago as a result of "shady transactions."

According to Hoge's evidence, Noble ran the article as a paid advertisement, and it was purely a business transaction. Bagley brought suit for $500 damages. The defense pleaded in mitigation that when Bagley was Deputy District Attorney in 1888 some 100 or more Forest Grove residents signed a petition asking T. J. Cleaton, then District Attorney, not to reappoint Mr. Bagley as his deputy because he had been guilty of unprofessional conduct. The plaintiff proved by Mr. Cleaton at the trial that he had investigated the charges and found nothing to sustain them, and that a few weeks afterward Mr. Bagley was reappointed to another term of two years.

After the appearance of the article in question Attorney Bagley requested Hoge to make a retraction, but the publisher

replied that he would make none, inasmuch as Bagley had published a statement in another county paper charging Hoge with being a liar and that the article in the Times was unqualifiedly false.

Barring this one charge brought against Mr. Bagley by the petition heretofore mentioned, and which was founded upon a misapprehension and which was exploded by Mr. Cleaton, Mr. Bagley's record as an attorney has always been exemplary. In the case at bar Mr. Bagley was simply after vindication and the matter of damages was secondary. This is the first libel case tried in the county for many years.

SON ON GUARD WITH GUN.

Farmer Evans Has the Drop on the Light Company.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—Six armed men stood guard all last night over a new power line being installed by the Hood River Electric Light, Power & Water Company. Things have not been altogether lovely among the various members of the company, and yesterday when teams bearing a new six-ton dynamo arrived at the farm of N. C. Evans, on which the power-house is located, the gate was found locked and well wrapped with log chains. Mr. Evans is one of the members of the light company.

Inside the gate and pacing up and down the road was a son of Evans, carrying a shotgun. The man in charge of the teams replied that he would make none, inasmuch as Bagley had published a statement in another county paper charging Hoge with being a liar and that the article in the Times was unqualifiedly false.

Barring this one charge brought against Mr. Bagley by the petition heretofore mentioned, and which was founded upon a misapprehension and which was exploded by Mr. Cleaton, Mr. Bagley's record as an attorney has always been exemplary.

In the case at bar Mr. Bagley was simply after vindication and the matter of damages was secondary. This is the first libel case tried in the county for many years.

SON ON GUARD WITH GUN.

Farmer Evans Has the Drop on the Light Company.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—Six armed men stood guard all last night over a new power line being installed by the Hood River Electric Light, Power & Water Company. Things have not been altogether lovely among the various members of the company, and yesterday when teams bearing a new six-ton dynamo arrived at the farm of N. C. Evans, on which the power-house is located, the gate was found locked and well wrapped with log chains. Mr. Evans is one of the members of the light company.

Inside the gate and pacing up and down the road was a son of Evans, carrying a shotgun. The man in charge of the teams replied that he would make none, inasmuch as Bagley had published a statement in another county paper charging Hoge with being a liar and that the article in the Times was unqualifiedly false.

Barring this one charge brought against Mr. Bagley by the petition heretofore mentioned, and which was founded upon a misapprehension and which was exploded by Mr. Cleaton, Mr. Bagley's record as an attorney has always been exemplary.

In the case at bar Mr. Bagley was simply after vindication and the matter of damages was secondary. This is the first libel case tried in the county for many years.

SON ON GUARD WITH GUN.

Farmer Evans Has the Drop on the Light Company.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—Six armed men stood guard all last night over a new power line being installed by the Hood River Electric Light, Power & Water Company. Things have not been altogether lovely among the various members of the company, and yesterday when teams bearing a new six-ton dynamo arrived at the farm of N. C. Evans, on which the power-house is located, the gate was found locked and well wrapped with log chains. Mr. Evans is one of the members of the light company.

Inside the gate and pacing up and down the road was a son of Evans, carrying a shotgun. The man in charge of the teams replied that he would make none, inasmuch as Bagley had published a statement in another county paper charging Hoge with being a liar and that the article in the Times was unqualifiedly false.

Barring this one charge brought against Mr. Bagley by the petition heretofore mentioned, and which was founded upon a misapprehension and which was exploded by Mr. Cleaton, Mr. Bagley's record as an attorney has always been exemplary.

In the case at bar Mr. Bagley was simply after vindication and the matter of damages was secondary. This is the first libel case tried in the county for many years.

SON ON GUARD WITH GUN.

Farmer Evans Has the Drop on the Light Company.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—Six armed men stood guard all last night over a new power line being installed by the Hood River Electric Light, Power & Water Company. Things have not been altogether lovely among the various members of the company, and yesterday when teams bearing a new six-ton dynamo arrived at the farm of N. C. Evans, on which the power-house is located, the gate was found locked and well wrapped with log chains. Mr. Evans is one of the members of the light company.

Inside the gate and pacing up and down the road was a son of Evans, carrying a shotgun. The man in charge of the teams replied that he would make none, inasmuch as Bagley had published a statement in another county paper charging Hoge with being a liar and that the article in the Times was unqualifiedly false.

Barring this one charge brought against Mr. Bagley by the petition heretofore mentioned, and which was founded upon a misapprehension and which was exploded by Mr. Cleaton, Mr. Bagley's record as an attorney has always been exemplary.

In the case at bar Mr. Bagley was simply after vindication and the matter of damages was secondary. This is the first libel case tried in the county for many years.

SON ON GUARD WITH GUN.

Farmer Evans Has the Drop on the Light Company.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—Six armed men stood guard all last night over a new power line being installed by the Hood River Electric Light, Power & Water Company. Things have not been altogether lovely among the various members of the company, and yesterday when teams bearing a new six-ton dynamo arrived at the farm of N. C. Evans, on which the power-house is located, the gate was found locked and well wrapped with log chains. Mr. Evans is one of the members of the light company.

Inside the gate and pacing up and down the road was a son of Evans, carrying a shotgun. The man in charge of the teams replied that he would make none, inasmuch as Bagley had published a statement in another county paper charging Hoge with being a liar and that the article in the Times was unqualifiedly false.

Barring this one charge brought against Mr. Bagley by the petition heretofore mentioned, and which was founded upon a misapprehension and which was exploded by Mr. Cleaton, Mr. Bagley's record as an attorney has always been exemplary.

In the case at bar Mr. Bagley was simply after vindication and the matter of damages was secondary. This is the first libel case tried in the county for many years.

SON ON GUARD WITH GUN.

Farmer Evans Has the Drop on the Light Company.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—Six armed men stood guard all last night over a new power line being installed by the Hood River Electric Light, Power & Water Company. Things have not been altogether lovely among the various members of the company, and yesterday when teams bearing a new six-ton dynamo arrived at the farm of N. C. Evans, on which the power-house is located, the gate was found locked and well wrapped with log chains. Mr. Evans is one of the members of the light company.

Inside the gate and pacing up and down the road was a son of Evans, carrying a shotgun. The man in charge of the teams replied that he would make none, inasmuch as Bagley had published a statement in another county paper charging Hoge with being a liar and that the article in the Times was unqualifiedly false.

Barring this one charge brought against Mr. Bagley by the petition heretofore mentioned, and which was founded upon a misapprehension and which was exploded by Mr. Cleaton, Mr. Bagley's record as an attorney has always been exemplary.

In the case at bar Mr. Bagley was simply after vindication and the matter of damages was secondary. This is the first libel case tried in the county for many years.

SON ON GUARD WITH GUN.

Farmer Evans Has the Drop on the Light Company.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—Six armed men stood guard all last night over a new power line being installed by the Hood River Electric Light, Power & Water Company. Things have not been altogether lovely among the various members of the company, and yesterday when teams bearing a new six-ton dynamo arrived at the farm of N. C. Evans, on which the power-house is located, the gate was found locked and well wrapped with log chains. Mr. Evans is one of the members of the light company.

Inside the gate and pacing up and down the road was a son of Evans, carrying a shotgun. The man in charge of the teams replied that he would make none, inasmuch as Bagley had published a statement in another county paper charging Hoge with being a liar and that the article in the Times was unqualifiedly false.

Barring this one charge brought against Mr. Bagley by the petition heretofore mentioned, and which was founded upon a misapprehension and which was exploded by Mr. Cleaton, Mr. Bagley's record as an attorney has always been exemplary.

In the case at bar Mr. Bagley was simply after vindication and the matter of damages was secondary. This is the first libel case tried in the county for many years.

SON ON GUARD WITH GUN.

Farmer Evans Has the Drop on the Light Company.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—Six armed men stood guard all last night over a new power line being installed by the Hood River Electric Light, Power & Water Company. Things have not been altogether lovely among the various members of the company, and yesterday when teams bearing a new six-ton dynamo arrived at the farm of N. C. Evans, on which the power-house is located, the gate was found locked and well wrapped with log chains. Mr. Evans is one of the members of the light company.

Inside the gate and pacing up and down the road was a son of Evans, carrying a shotgun. The man in charge of the teams replied that he would make none, inasmuch as Bagley had published a statement in another county paper charging Hoge with being a liar and that the article in the Times was unqualifiedly false.

Barring this one charge brought against Mr. Bagley by the petition heretofore mentioned, and which was founded upon a misapprehension and which was exploded by Mr. Cleaton, Mr. Bagley's record as an attorney has always been exemplary.

In the case at bar Mr. Bagley was simply after vindication and the matter of damages was secondary. This is the first libel case tried in the county for many years.

SON ON GUARD WITH GUN.

Farmer Evans Has the Drop on the Light Company.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—Six armed men stood guard all last night over a new power line being installed by the Hood River Electric Light, Power & Water Company. Things have not been altogether lovely among the various members of the company, and yesterday when teams bearing a new six-ton dynamo arrived at the farm of N. C. Evans, on which the power-house is located, the gate was found locked and well wrapped with log chains. Mr. Evans is one of the members of the light company.

Inside the gate and pacing up and down the road was a son of Evans, carrying a shotgun. The man in charge of the teams replied that he would make none, inasmuch as Bagley had published a statement in another county paper charging Hoge with being a liar and that the article in the Times was unqualifiedly false.

Barring this one charge brought against Mr. Bagley by the petition heretofore mentioned, and which was founded upon a misapprehension and which was exploded by Mr. Cleaton, Mr. Bagley's record as an attorney has always been exemplary.

In the case at bar Mr. Bagley was simply after vindication and the matter of damages was secondary. This is the first libel case tried in the county for many years.

SON ON GUARD WITH GUN.

Farmer Evans Has the Drop on the Light Company.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—Six armed men stood guard all last night over a new power line being installed by the Hood River Electric Light, Power & Water Company. Things have not been altogether lovely among the various members of the company, and yesterday when teams bearing a new six-ton dynamo arrived at the farm of N. C. Evans, on which the power-house is located, the gate was found locked and well wrapped with log chains. Mr. Evans is one of the members of the light company.

Inside the gate and pacing up and down the road was a son of Evans, carrying a shotgun. The man in charge of the teams replied that he would make none, inasmuch as Bagley had published a statement in another county paper charging Hoge with being a liar and that the article in the Times was unqualifiedly false.

Barring this one charge brought against Mr. Bagley by the petition heretofore mentioned, and which was founded upon a misapprehension and which was exploded by Mr. Cleaton, Mr. Bagley's record as an attorney has always been exemplary.

In the case at bar Mr. Bagley was simply after vindication and the matter of damages was secondary. This is the first libel case tried in the county for many years.

SON ON GUARD WITH GUN.

Farmer Evans Has the Drop on the Light Company.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—Six armed men stood guard all last night over a new power line being installed by the Hood River Electric Light, Power & Water Company. Things have not been altogether lovely among the various members of the company, and yesterday when teams bearing a new six-ton dynamo arrived at the farm of N. C. Evans, on which the power-house is located, the gate was found locked and well wrapped with log chains. Mr. Evans is one of the members of the light company.

Inside the gate and pacing up and down the road was a son of Evans, carrying a shotgun. The man in charge of the teams replied that he would make none, inasmuch as Bagley had published a statement in another county paper charging Hoge with being a liar and that the article in the Times was unqualifiedly false.

Barring this one charge brought against Mr. Bagley by the petition heretofore mentioned, and which was founded upon a misapprehension and which was exploded by Mr. Cleaton, Mr. Bagley's record as an attorney has always been exemplary.

In the case at bar Mr. Bagley was simply after vindication and the matter of damages was secondary. This is the first libel case tried in the county for many years.

SON ON GUARD WITH GUN.

Farmer Evans Has the Drop on the Light Company.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—Six armed men stood guard all last night over a new power line being installed by the Hood River Electric Light, Power & Water Company. Things have not been altogether lovely among the various members of the company, and yesterday when teams bearing a new six-ton dynamo arrived at the farm of N. C. Evans, on which the power-house is located, the gate was found locked and well wrapped with log chains. Mr. Evans is one of the members of the light company.

Inside the gate and pacing up and down the road was a son of Evans, carrying a shotgun. The man in charge of the teams replied that he would make none, inasmuch as Bagley had published a statement in another county paper charging Hoge with being a liar and that the article in the Times was unqualifiedly false.

COALBOON PUT GROWS

Oregon Is Crowding on Mark Set by California.

SOON WILL BE IN THE LEAD

Figures Given by the United States Geological Survey in Annual Report—Washington Product Is Much Greater.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Nov. 26.—While the State of Oregon is producing less coal than other states of the Pacific Coast, the recent development of its coal deposits are rapidly swelling the output of the state and bringing Oregon up to California. The prospects are that within another year Oregon will take precedence over California, though Washington is so far in the lead as to be safe from competition for many years to come.

According to the annual report of the Geological Survey, the total coal production of Oregon in the calendar year 1903 was 12,144 short tons, valued at $221,031. Compared with 1902 this is an increase of 2,498 short tons in quantity and of $99,554 in value. The increased production is due in large part to the reopening of the Beaver Hill mine in Coos county. The entire production of the state is lignite, and most of the product is shipped to San Francisco by water.

The report does not give much detail about the coal industry of Oregon, aside from a table of production for the past ten years, from which it is seen that the total output last year fell below that of 1896 and 1897. There were employed in coal mining in Oregon last year 235 men, who worked 255 days. In 1902 there were 235 men employed, working 234 days.

Washington's Output.

The 1,132,723 short tons produced in Washington last year was valued at $1,390,675, or $1.19 per ton. The production of the state has increased regularly since 1894, and the increase in 1903 over the preceding year was particularly noticeable. This increase amounted to 512,609 tons, in quantity, and $68,284 in value. The production has increased over 100 per cent since 1897, and more than trebled since 1891.

"Washington is the only one of the Pacific Coast States producing true coal," says the Geological Survey. "All of the product from Oregon and California is lignite in character. Some of the Washington coals have the characteristics of anthracite, and some are true coking coals, and some natural coal has been produced."

The use of mining machines has not been successful in Washington. Twenty-two were in use in 1898, and four in 1901. Conditions were not found favorable to their continuance, and their use has been abandoned, no production by machines having been reported since 1902.

The statistics of labor employed in the coal mines of Washington show that in 1902 the average production per man was 609 short tons, and in 1903 570 short tons, the average tonnage per day per man also increasing from 2.22 tons in 1902 to 2.35 in 1903.

Six counties are producing all the coal mined in Washington, and the products for the past year being shown in the following table:

County	Product, tons	Value, $	Men employed
King	225,560	$2,124,250	1,602
Kittitas	330,716	1,948,261	1,620
Pierce	572,800	1,258,230	1,035
Spokane	1,132,723	1,390,675	4,768
Whatcom	21,197	25,765	160
Totals	2,132,723	$1,390,675	4,768

There were more men employed in the mines of Washington last year than in any previous year in the history of its coal mining. The aggregate value of its coal product exceeds that of any other year, the price per ton was 1.19, and in any other year except 1901. In that year the price fell to $1.05 per ton; last year it was $1.19.

Coal in Alaska.

The year 1903 was not particularly notable for the production of coal in Alaska. The production so far is limited entirely to fuel which is used locally, and does not exceed a few thousand tons each year, though some of the coal-bearing areas give promise of being of considerable importance. In Southeastern Alaska, the Admiralty Islands, which at one time promised to furnish lignite for local use, have been entirely abandoned. Three hundred miles to the westward, however, near Controller Bay, coal of excellent quality, and which occurs in veins of commercial importance, has been found on the Behring River. This coal resembles the harder bituminous coals of the East, and it does not do it justice to say that it is of good grade. The production of the entire Yukon field did not exceed 100 tons during 1903.

The demand for fuel on the part of the placer miners on Seward Peninsula has led to a careful search for coal in that field, but with only moderate success. One small basin has furnished probably 100 tons for local use. "This area lies in the northeastern part of the peninsula, on Chicago Creek, a tributary of the Innachuck River. Coal is said to find a ready market at this mine at $10 a ton.

Another possible source of fuel supply is to be found in the Cape Lisburne coal fields, lying about 200 miles north of Nome. Here coal is known to occur in considerable quantities, but it has been developed very little. In 1901 several cargoes were mined and sold in Nome for $15 and $20 a ton, in competition with Comox and Washington coal at $15 a ton. All the mining last year was confined to the cropping along the sea cliff and was carried to ships in small boats.

NORTHWEST DEAD.

Mrs. Belle Huson.

SOUTH BEND, Wash., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—Mrs. Belle Huson, an old-time resident of this city, died suddenly today of heart failure. She was about 18 years old, was born in Pennsylvania, and has lived here about 15 years. She left a husband, C. E. Huson, and three children, Mrs. H. J. Hubler, Mrs. J. Stout, of this city, and Bert Huson, now in Nevada.

John P. Soule.

SEATTLE, Nov. 27.—John P. Soule, the "pioneer art photographer," and founder of the Soule studio in New York and Boston, died suddenly from an apoplectic stroke at his home in this city this afternoon. He was a native of Maine and 71 years old.

Timely Rain in Umatilla.

PENDLETON, Or., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—The first heavy rain in six weeks fell here this afternoon. The rainfall was fully half an inch and is believed to be general over the county. Up to today the total rainfall this autumn was a fraction over an inch, and in some sections of the county the precipitation was still less. In the dry lands north and west of Pendleton the rain was needed badly, as much of the fall-sown wheat was beginning to rot in the ground.

Marshfield City Ticket.

MARSHFIELD, Or., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—The caucus by the Town Board nominated last night Frank P. Norton, A. J. Savage, J. H. Hibbard, W. O. Douglas, James H. Flanagan and John Preuss for Councilmen and C. L. Pennock and W. H. Hyde for Recorder. Three Councilmen and one Recorder are to be elected on December 6 from this list. Norton and Hyde are the present incumbents.

Money Found on Weber Place.

AUBURN, Cal., Nov. 27.—The money, amounting to $600, of which the Placer County Bank was robbed last May, has been found in a cowshed on the Weber place. The money was buried in an old five-pound lard can, Adolph Weber, who is under arrest on the charge of murdering his parents, brother and sister, has been formally charged with having also held up the bank.

Lizzie Prien Pulled Off Beach.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27.—The school-teacher Lizzie Prien, who sailed from here last night for Europe, ran ashore about one mile south of the Cliff House. She was pulled off early this morning.

AT THE THEATERS

What the Press Agents Say.

"RIP VAN WINKLE" TONIGHT.

Thomas Jefferson, Son of Joseph Jefferson, in His Father's Play.

Thomas Jefferson, son of that grand old gentleman and actor,