Japanese Continue Attack on Port Arthur.

Large Guns Said to Have Been Placed on 203-Meter Hill.

THE HARBOR CAN BE SWEPT

It is Also Proposed to Make Retreat of the Slave to Laotle Mountain Impossible-Tunnel Now Being Run to This Point.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—According to a Tokio dispatch to the Standard, there is official rumor that the Japanese have hauled large caliber guns to the top of 200-Meter Hill, whence their fire has a sweep of the whole harbor. This report doubtless goes beyond the facts; but arious dispatches indicate the progress the Japanese are making in the reduction of Port Arthur. Japanese here explain the great importance of the capture of 203-Meter Hill, which, besides giving command of the harbor, will serve as a wide breach made by the wedge the Japanese had previously driven in between the Etz group and the Russians' last retreat in ravines of Laotie Mountain. They declare that retreat to Laptie will be effectually cut off, and it is not unlikely that Laotie will be simultaneously attacked in the final assault.

Bennett Burieigh wires to the Daily Telegraph from Chefoo that in the last assault the Japanese lost 490 men in one hour's fighting. They claim to have captured two more of the nortneastern forts and a third, which is part of the West Kekwan fort. They assert, Mr. Burleigh idds, to have effected a lodgment at Pigeon Bay, thus turning the fort on 903-Meter Hill, and that they are now tunneling from the gorge below Laotle Hill, which they hope first to damage and then rush. The dispatch continues:

Russia Fears Crisis Is at Hand. ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 30, 2:28 A. M .-Foreign reports of the fighting at Port Arthur are accepted here very seriously. If the Japanese have taken 200-Meter Hill, as reported, commanding the whole sarbor, it is believed that the situation is critical. Experts on Port Arthur topography assert, however, that it is more likely that the Japanese have occupied some positions at the base of the bill, and believe that owing to the concentrated fire of the covered forts the Japanese will find the top of the hill untenable if they ar-

Oyama's Army on the Shakhe Has Been Reduced to 150,000 Men.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 28.—According to information which has reached the War Office, Field Marshal Oyama's strength is much smaller than hereto-fore believed, tending to confirm the theory that a large force has been withdrawn to assist in storming Port Arthur. This information is to the effect that not much more than 150,000 men are now confronting General Kuropatkin, but that the Jepanese lines are heavily fortified in order to check any aggressive movement which Kuropatkin might undertake long ugh to enable the Japanese to hurry up reinforcements by rail from the penin-out arousing the suspicions of the Japanese that anything had happened. On the evening of November 27 a party of Russian volunteers practically wiped out the village of Nagama, situated at the foot of the double-humped hill opposits Poutioff (Lone Tree) Hill. The Japanese had been occupying a building in this village every night and hampering the Russian sharpshooters. Attacking the village in the rear, the Russian volunteers drove out the Japanese from the village early in the evening, mined the building and retired. The Japanese subsequently reoccupied the village which was blown up, and almost the whole village destroyed. The Russian losses during the whole affair were three men killed and 15 wounded.

Chinese report that the main Japanese force is located at Shilikhe, on the railroad, three miles south of Shakhe, but it is impossible to estimate its numbers.

The Japanese at close quarters, especially during the night fighting, usually use Russian words and phrases, with the object of misleading their foes, General Linevitch has especially warned the troops on this point.

Leading Editor Says Russian Reforms Will Be Delayed.

AUTOCRACY MUST PREVAIL Ngum Lun May is Unable to Convince

Foremost Spokesman of the Policy Goes On to Say People Have No Conception of the Meaning of Constitutional Government.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 29 .- Prince Meschersky, editor of the Crashdanin, and the foremost spokesman of the autocracy, holds that the inauguration of such reforms as are at present pos-sible in Russia has been actually prejudiced by "the irresponsible agitation for a constitution which is now in progress." Autocracy he considers vital to the life and future greatness of Russia as a nation. Liberal reforms, he maintains, are necessary, but they cannot be introduced except by the au-not be introduced except by the au-tooracy.

Moreover, declares the Prince, a broad plan of reform was already mapped out for gradual introduction when the whole work was thrown ato confusion by the Liberal rebound ic-companied by the discussion of a con-stitution, which followed Minister von Plehve's death. Speaking to the Asso-ciated Press today, Prince Mestchersky said:

"The question is often asked, why not introduce a constitution? Russia might as well ask an American or a Briton why not introduce autocracy? A con-stitution is just as necessary to Great Britain or the United States as au-tocracy is for Russia. Russia without autocracy would cease to be Russian. The greatest contemporary Russian statesmen, men of the most command-ing intellect, like M. Witte, are of this

Constitutional government is impos-sible in Russia for the simple reason that the vast majority of the people have not the slightest conception of its meaning. There are, perhaps, 100,000 Russians who want a constitution, and as they do all the talking, while the remaining 150,000,000 are voiceless, the impression goes abroad that the sen-timent of the majority of the nation desires a change in the form of gov-

Would Be Shortlived.

"If a constitution were introduced to-morrow, it would be shortlived for the simple reason that it would not be based upon the ideas or wishes of the people, and therefore it would only impede real and lasting reforms. Constitutional government would prove an actual danger, because the nation includes races like the Poles and those of the Baltic territory, who are more advanced and developed that the rest. nation.
"We want reforms, not a constitution. "We want reforms, not a constitution. I contend that reform is attainable only through autocracy. The imperial manifesto of February, 1904, laid down a basis of reform, which the government was carefully preparing and gradually but surely, carrying out when Von Piehve's untimely end put a sudden stop to the work. The fundamental idea of this reform is to extend local government by the creation of a small Zematvo, thus beatowing the widest possible measure of self-government. The project contemplated a complete reorganization of the present form of Zemstvos, whereby local afent form of Zemstvos, whereby local af-fairs would be submitted to the control of those immediately interested, and quos-tions affecting the provinces at large would be referred to a representative provincial council under the presidency of

This would probably be begun with the intro-duction of Ministerial responsibilities. At present, each Minister has his own programme or policy, often in conflict with other Ministers. "The reforms would next include the introduction of representative members in the Council of the Empire, giving the nation a voice in legislation. The Ben-ate would be restored to the primary func-tion for which it was created by Peter the Great of controlling the administration of the law and thus becoming a strong safeguard against arbitrariness in admin-

Unfortunately where there is smoke, dirt and dust and little sunlight there also can be found the germs of disease. Nature's great disinfectant is sunlight. Sunlight and fresh air promote the growth of animals and plants but kill the germs of disease. Air, free from dust, such as we have on the sea, never permits the germs of disease to have any chance for growth and development. It is in the factory, the work-shop, the office, that men and women suffer from diseases which are in the dust and the bad air. Such disease germs enter into the blood in two ways, either through the lungs or stomach. If the blood is pure and rich, the liver and stomach in healthy active condition, the germs of disease cannot find a resting place there to multiply. Disease of the lungs, bronchitis and consumption, are very spi to spread through a factory where there is much fine.

The lungs become irritated and the germa find a fertile field for growth. Extreme weakness, feelings of nervous exhaustion, coughs and colds are the warning signals which should be heeded. One should put the system in the very best possible condition right away.

After years of experience in an active practice, Dr. Pierce discovered a remedy that suited these conditions in a blood-maker and tissue-builder, which at the same time alleviates the cough. He called it Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—an alterative extract that assists in the digestion and assimilation of the food in the stomach—so that the blood gets what it needs for food and oxidation, the liver is at the same time started into activity and there is perfect.
