MONEY NOT LACKING

$4,230,659 Available for Irrigation in Oregon.

SEVERAL PROJECTS HAMPERED

Government Engineers Now Bending Their Energies to Bringing the Klamath Scheme to a Successful Termination.

Oregon has contributed nearly $1,000,000 more to the National reclamation fund than has any other state. The fund on June 30 was $23.012.836, of which $4.230,659 was derived from public land sales in Oregon and $2,725,362 in Washington. The reclamation act of Congress directs the Secretary of the Interior to expend at least the major portion of each state's contribution within that state so far as may be practicable.

A large sum of money is therefore ready for expenditure in Oregon on irrigation works. The reclamation service has had projects in mind in several different parts of Oregon, but has encountered obstacles in each. The Deschutes country is a favorable area, but the reclamation service has stayed out because private enter-prise is at work there under the Carey act. The project on Butter Creek, Umatilla County, was not pursued because conditions were not found adapted to the storing of water in reservoirs. The projstoring of water in reservoirs. The project in Harney County has been deferred because F. H. Newell, chief of the reclamation service, is convinced that not enough water is available. The project in Malheur County seems to be held up by a wagon-road company which holds alternate sections of land in the Irrigable area.

Klamath County presents one of the best irrigable areas in the whole West, and the reclamation service is now working on plans there. But the project in that county contemplates the use of lake waters, to the detriment of navigation and the injury of several private irrigation companies; consequently legal problems are presented which are likely to retard the Government's plans.

E. H. Newell and other members of the he Government's plans.
F. H. Newell and other members of the reclamation service were in Klamath County last week, examining the situa-At his suggestion a waterusers' association was formed, to clear the way for the Government's securing lands for the project. At Bonanza Mr. Newell said: People Must Choose

"The principal stumbling-block to this development is that private enterprise has begun work here. Government work and private work cannot go together here. It is up to you which you want! While we will say that every man who has private rights will be protected, yet the Govern-ment will not pay extravagant prices for work which has been done.

"The private enterprise comes in not to velop the country as the Government oes, but simply and solely to make a roll. They simply intend to make as such money as possible out of the people. Their policy is to get the most money for least outlay. The private company build the works which it can build in the cheapest manner and charge as much as the traffic will bear. The company in the field puts it at $10 an acre and 7 per cent interest on deferred payments. The interest is the main thing. I think if you figure on a basis of $10 and interest and a maintenance of $10. muintenance of $1 a year you can see that the Government works at $20 an acre are cheaper than the corporate works. The Government does not charge interest, and the maintenance will be nominal."

You have before you practically two propositions, one of Government con-struction of works at actual cost withprofit and interest and finally owned by the people; the other to turn water pratically to corporate control and to let it be sold to your people from time to time as they may

CORBETT TO FIGHT WINNER OF COMING CONTEST.

Would Meet Either Nelson or Britt in an Effort to Regain and Wear the Championship Belt. ,

Young Corbett has not given up hope of regaining his laurels in the ring. Reports from San Francisco have it that the Denverite is willing to meet the winner of the Nelson-Britt fight and that he intends to get down to work for the fight. Corbett has not whined since he was beaten by Nelson, but he seems to be anxious to mix it with the winners of the fight which takes place December 20. Alex Greggins has the January date, and he says that if Corbett will place blinself under his management he will make the match. Also if Corbett agrees to this that he will have to hike out to a ranch

Viewing the Corbett-Nelson fight from any angle there is no getting around the At Klamath Falls a big meeting was held. Mr. Newell said that, with the co-operation of the people of that county, the project could be carried forward to consummation. About 200.— was seven pounds over weight, and that productive. > From the manner in which Britt and Nelson have arranged their battle there is to be little trouble about the final arrangements. The fighters, according to the San Francisco Bulletin, met and dis cussed the subject of a referee. Eddy Grany was selected, but owing to his illness he may not officiate. On this point the Bulletin gays:

"If you gentlemen here want the Government to build the works without profit and without interest, and to turn them over to you in annual installments at cost without interest, now is the time for you to come forward on this proposition.

"When a water-users' association has been organized, and has obtained the signatures of the land-owners under the project, the Government will ward on this proposition.

"When a water-users' association has been organized, and has obtained the signatures of the land-owners under the project, the Government will then be ready to begin construction.

"The association enters into a contract with the Secretary of the Interior. The latter agrees to construct the project and furnish the water to the people and also recognizes the association as a representative of the various landowners. He also agrees not to furnish water to a person not a member of the association. The only obligation assumed by the association is that it will pay the cost of construction. For each year that active will be an assessment covered the second of construction. For each year that active will be an assessment covered the secondary of the land of the paid the association will have the right to sell a mane land for the payment due that year that water is furnished in April. If the other hand of the payment need not be made until the payment and the payments. The Secretary of the Interior has given it as his opinion that private parties had not a right to take water from a navigable body of water."

Shaver having lived within its shadow ince there was such an institution and having taught in the first school there, meeting then in a loghouse. The Central School, at East Fourteenth and Washington, is now the Hawthorne, and the new one at Twenty-first and Raleigh is the Anthony L. Davis, the bearer of that name having been one of the earliest and foremost of Oregon educators. Frederick V. Holman, a son of J. D. Holman, has long had a standing offer before the board to present a library to the school which might be named after his father.

vor of the changing of names, saying that there were a lot of worthy pioneers who could not be honored, but the game went on, though he did not play.

The business of last evening's meeting of the board was confined to auditing bills, but there was a great deal of discussion as to additional rooms and build. ings which will be necessary in certain parts of the city. The discussion brought out the direction in which the stork has been flying. The West Side is pretty well off, but the East Side is in cryin need of more schoolrooms. Sellwood has ten rooms full, and the board contemplates adding eight more. Williams-ave-nue is using two portables and an office; Highland is using two portables; Ockley Green is using two portables and a hall; Holladay is crowded; the Shaver School also needs enlarging.

Albina in general is full of little folks and the board contemplates relieving the congested condition by recommending the purchase of a block somewhere on Tilla-mook street and building a big school there. This will help out the Shayer and the Holladay-avenue Schools.

Besides the present work Mr Harrison has in contemplation a volume of more on the folk-lore of the Esquimaux, which has never been adequately all away at the coast or were busy in their handled on account of the difficulty in inner offices, Mr. Scullin left for the more securing material. He obtained his from "squaw men," who had learned the le-gends from their Indian wives. He has a creation story, with a flood, a Sam-son and a Jonah in it. There is even a Christ, but Mr. Harrison believes that this was picked up from early connec-tion with the Greek Church. There is a tribe far north, of which Mr. Harrison has some myths, which is called: "The men who obey the sun." Their myths are singularly like those of the Axtees
