merits and a final decision reached. Mrs. E. H. Goodwin appeared before the grand jury yesterday in an effort to have her husband indicted for unlawful inter-course with another woman. She was acmpanied by a lady friend, who was also ess. Mrs. Goodwin expressed herself while at the Courthouse as very derous of seeing her husband punished. Myrtle L. Howard has sued Harry How and for a divorce because of cruel treat ment. They were married at McMinnville February 16, 1904, and Mrs. Howard alleges that it was but a short time afterwards er husband commenced abusing her. He failed to support her, threatened her and ordered her to return to her parents' home. In May she avers he went to sea and returned in August. He did not provide for her long after his return, com-plaining that she was too expensive, and told her to go to work.

UNITARIAN BAZAAR OPENS. Large Display of Attractive Christmas

Wares on View.

The Unitarian bazaar opened yesterday afternoon with a large display of unusu ally attractive things for sale. A large number of people patronized the basaar, - ST finding it a pleasant place to stop and talk to friends besides affording an opportunity to buy pretty things for Christmas gifts Mrs. George C. Cressey presided yester-day at the candy table, at the "fellow-Baker (ship" table adjoining which Mrs. J. P. Wager and Mrs. Matlack sold articles sent by members of Alliance branches all over the country. The doll show, which is a feature of the bazaar, is in charge of Mrs. R. B. Lemson, Mrs. James D. Hart and Mrs. E. W. Crichton.

Mrs. Watson and Mrs. Bay were at the domestic table and a corner where various Salt La San Fr artistic fitings in the way of water colors and Christmas cards were sold was in charge of Mrs. J. J. Burnett, Miss Knox Walla and Mrs. Archie Pease assisting. Miss Burnett sold cookbooks containing recipes by members of the Alliance. At the housekeepers' booth were Mrs. R. S. Mc-Loran and Mrs. Southwork, and at the domestic table Mrs. Watson presided. Mrs. E. P. Walte had the fancy work booth, Ington Mrs. D. Schindler and Miss Atwood the and in the refreshment room were W. H. Patterson and Mrs. Alden.

Mrs. W. H. Putterson and Mrs. Alden. The bazaar continues today with an in-teresting programme, which Miss Sears and Miss Gile have arranged, tonight. SCOBED MAJOR NEWELL. SCOBED MAJOR NEWELL. SCOBED MAJOR NEWELL. Jacob Rile Refers to Him in His Seattie Lecture.

Major Cicero Newell, well known in Portland Grand Army circles, and a resi-dent of East Portland for several years, was the subject of a scathing scoring in Scattle a few days ago by Jacob Rits, the veteran newspaper man and reformer, in the course of his lecture on "The Battle of the Slums." Since leaving Portland Major Newell has been military instructor at Vashon School for boys; he was also connected with the Reform School in Scattle, and now is with the Newell In-dustrial School on Mercer Island. From this latter school two boys escaped shackled, and they told a story of hardship and suffering, reflecting severely on Major Newell's management. Mr. Rifs, in speak-ing of this incident in his lecture, said: "When I read in your morning paper today that two boys shackled together had undergone great hardships in orde

where his severity with the boys, it is dnied Dr. Larkin and Dr. Lincoln, and said, caused his dismissal. For several years he was machinist at the Willamette Iron Works and also at Wolff & Zwicker's and is said to have been a good workman He tried to run an undertaking establish ment in the Holman block on Grand ave nue and East Washington street, bu failed. For several months prior to his de parture Major Newell tried to induce the Portland Board of Education to establish an industrial school in connection with the public schools, appearing before the board several times to urge his project, but his scheme was turned down. Major Newell was a member of George Wright Post, G. A. R., and was prominent in gatherings of the veterans, but was considered by hi comrades as a man of peculiar disposition
