NEED OF GOOD ROADS

Sentiment Is Unanimous at the Salem Convention,

PUZZLE IS HOW TO GET THEM

President Scott's Solution is an Appeal to Government Aid and System in Expending Funds on Oregon Highways.

SALEM. Or., Dec. IL-(Special.)-The Oregon Good Roads Association met in annual convention in Salem today, with a large attendance from nearly every part of the state. At the opening session this afternoon 250 delegates were present, and this number will be materially increased by those who arrive tonight and tomor-

"How to Get Good Roads" is the prin cipal theme of the addresses, for there is no doubt upon the proposition that there is need of much improvement in the highways. Supervision by competent engin eers, care in establishing grades, and the issuance of bonds to raise the necessary funds for permanent work, were some of the suggestions made in the addresses to-day. President Campbell, of the Univercity of Oregon; Director Withycombe, o the Agricultural College, at Corvallis, and Manager Tom Richardson, of the Com-mercial Club of Portland, will be among he leading speakers tomorrow. Mayor F. W. Waters, of Salem, who himself an enthusiast in favor of perman ent road-building, and who has materially aided in roadwork in this vicinity, welomed the members of the convention to Salem. Mr. Waters urged the recom-mendation of the Brownlow bill. He inted to the work in good road-building n Marion County as a guide for state egislation, and praised Governor Chamberialn for the use of convict labor on highways near the state institutions.

After thanking Mayor Waters for his dial words of welcome, President John Scott delivered his annual address. Mr. Scott urged the necessity of system in road management, and the need of pub-lic education on the subject. The solution of the problem, he believes, is in Government aid. He said:

There never has been a country that has built good public highways that did not receive aid from its general government to defray a part of the expenses of their construction. I flet that the time is not far distant whe ment will pay a part, the state a part, the ounty a part, and possibly the respective road istricts and adjacent property-owners will pay reases, thus divided, will not fall very heavily money to go at road-building in a scientifi I would, therefore, recommend that this on exert its influence in the endear to cause such regislation to be enacted.

By way of introduction, Governor Chamberiain said that there is one thing at least upon which all of us -that our roads in Oregon are bad; but if the enthusiasm that has been displayed in the last few years is an indication of what will take place, we shall soon be able to agree that Oregon roads are good. Oregon ought to have the best roads in the United States. He referred to the immense wagon road grants that have been given to road companies in this state-grants amounting to magnificent fortunes—and said that if the terms of the grants had been carried out in good faith, we would now have splendid highways, where we now have nothing but

The new law, substituting the plan of por, received the Governor's commendation, for it does away with a system un-der which roadwork was made a sort of picnic. He also approved the plan of state aid toward building and of National aid, so that this country shall have good highways extending from one side to the creation of new offices, he said that he believes that it is advisable to plan the building of roads under the supervision of a state engineer, or a board of super-visors, so that the roads built will be of visors, so that the the best character.

Speaking of convict labor, the Governor said that he doubts whether prisoners can be used extensively on the roads, except near the prison, for the cost of guarding day and night would make the pien too expensive. He favored the building of permanent roads by convict labor near the state institutions, as an object on to the people of the state.

Ex-Governor Geer, who was upon the programms for Wednesday evening, took the place of Senator M. A. Miller this oon, the Senator being too ill to be

In view of the unanimity of opinion in favor of good roads, ex-Governor Geer eald that the question is not "What?" but "How." Roads must be "built," not "worked." If all the labor that has been used in the last 40 years in "working" roads had been used in "building" roads. the highways of this county would now be high and dry and good both Winter

Ex-Governor Geer agreed that the two great needs in road-building are skill and means, for these are now lacking. For skill we must look to our universities and agricultural colleges, where young men will be taught engineering so that they will be able to plan roads and su-pervise the work of building. The means pervise the work of building. The means inust come from the people, either by taxation, or by voluntary contribution, as has been done in the Liberty neighborhood south of Salem.

He agreed with Governor Chamberlain that the use of convict labor on the roads that the use of convict labor on the roads.

is impracticable. He favored the bonding plan of raising funds with which to build permanent highways "now."

At the close of these addresses a com-munication from County Judge Condon, of Tillamook County, was read, favoring the amendment of section 4337 of the code so as to authorize County Courts to establish tollroads. Representative Kuney, of Wasco, Wasco County, said that crude oil has been used on the roads bear his town with great satisfaction. President Scott is endeavoring to secure copies of a pamphlet showing how oil is used on roads in California. He doubts whether oil can be used successfully on the clay roads of the Wilamette Valley; he believes that oil can be used on the light soil roads of Eastern

CORVALLIS, Or., Dec. 43.-(Special.)-It is not expected now that an increase it the tax levy for city purposes in Corvallia will become necessary as a result of the operation of the local option law. The report of the County Clerk, submitted at a meeting of the Council last night, shows an unexpected increase in the revenue that will be derived from taxes the coming year. The increase ag-gregates 423, and is occasioned by the un-expected increase in the aggregate of the taxable property. The development makes up nearly 25 per cent of the lost saloon

Further, to recoup the treasury th Council has given notice that the city will no longer pay the expense of constructing sewer laterals across the streets, and that where streets are heruafter crossed by laterals for the benefit of property-owners that the abutting poperty must bear the cost. The policy of the city paying for sewers under streets has been in vogue for several years at an expense estimated from $500 to $1800 or more per year. Members of the Council believe that by further economies the exenditures can be kept within revenues in spite of the loss of salcon licenses, and it is not likely that the Legislature will be asked for power to increase the limit of the city tax levy.

ASTORIA, Or., Dec. 13.-(Special.)-A meeting of the Columbia River canners and cold-storage people was held here this afternoon for the purpose of discussing proposed changes to the fishing laws. Every packing company on the river was represented except the Seufert Packing Company and the Smiley-Sheldon Company. effort to abolish the closed seasons.

The meeting today was called at the request of Hon. J. G. Megler, of Brookfield who is a canner and a Legislative Repre-sentative-elect from Wabkiakum County, Washington. His object in calling the packers together was to get suggestions from them which he will submit at the conference of the legislative members to be held here on next Thursday. Mr. Meg-ler was elected chairman of the meet-ing and George W. Sanborn acted as the only question put to a vote was the extension of the Spring open season. The vote was almost unanimous in favor of an extension of from five to ten days, which means to August 20 or 25. The expressed opinion of those present was that with this exception the laws as at present are satisfactory if they are strictly en-forced. Especial stress was laid on the necessity of enforcing the Spring closed

The question of a Sunday closed law was discussed at length. The consensus of opinion was that such a measure would be advantageous in that, if strictly observed, it would permit more fish to reach the spawning grounds, but the packers ar-gued that to enforce the law would entail a cost greater than the expense of main taining all the hatcheries on both sides of the river, and therefore it is imprac-

SALEM, Or., Dec. 13,-(Special.) The appointment of a State Text Book Commission of five members is a duty Governor Chamberlain must perform the Spokesman-Review next month. The Commission appoint-

At It can be seen only under good atmosthat time there were a large number pheric conditions and when the control of persons seeking places on the control of the textbook law tending through the center of the valley. of persons seeking places on the Commission, many of them men who had scarcely gained local reputations country pedagogues. Some of the ap-plicants not only urged their claims personally, but secured the assistance of political friends in their endeavor get places on the Commission. ernor Geer took the ground that this Commission is of large importance and its members should be men who have gained state-wide reputations for in-tegrity, business ability and intellec-

ual accomplishments. Governor Geer believed that good business judgment was the primary qualification for a member of the Com-mission. Good business men of education and literary turn of mind could secure aid, if necessary, from schoolteachers, and thus make wise selecions of books, but he did not think it so probable that a Commission com posed of school men, who are often im-practical, would secure the assistance of the judgment of good business men. So the Governor appointed five men, only one of whom was actively engaged in educational work. They were H. W. Scott, editor; W. M. Ladd, banker; P. L. Campbell, precident of Moumouth Normal; W. M. Colvig, lawyer, and Stepher A. Lowell, lawyer. Mr. Lowell decline to serve for the reason that he believed that school men should be apointed Governor Geer appointed Charles A Johns, lawyer, to fill the place, Under the old system of adoption of text-books each County Superintendent had a vote, as also did the presidents of the normal schools. Under that system there was a divided responsibility and there was little opportunity for men book companies sent their agents to ex-ert their influence with the individual members of the board and the agents were generally too smooth for the school men. The American Book Company finally secured almost a monopoly of the textbook business in Oregon and its power was so great that it could dictate the edu-cational affairs of the state. Men lost their positions in the public school service or secured desirable places, according to the likes or dislikes of that company was for the purpose of throwing off this yoke and preventing any text-book company from wielding an improper influence that the new text-book law, known as the

Daly law, was enacted. Under the provisions of that law text-book companies were required to submit sealed bids for furnishing books, and to sealed bins for turner of the commission supply each member of the commission with a sample copy. When the text-book commission met in Ssiem in July, 1991, the text-book companies sent their most able representatives to look after their interests. Among the book agents here were the smoothest salesmen in the country-men who drew large salaries for their services. But these men found that they were "up against it," when they came to deal with the commission Governor Geor had appointed. Text-book men who had dealt with former selecting boards said that they were satisfied that nothing but merit would influence the decisions of the new board. Men who have represented their communities. new board. Men who have represented their companies in nearly every state in the Union declared that no other state had as strong a body of men to select its public school text-books as had Oregon. Though some of the text-book men were not entirely pleased, of course, with the result, all admitted that they had been given a "square deal," and that the text-book commission had acted without improper influence and had exercised intelligible. proper influence and had exercised intelli-gent judgment in reaching their decisions The books adopted by them have been in
