

HISSES FROM ALL

Mrs. Chadwick Finds No Friends at Home.

GREAT CROWD AT DEPOT

Woman Is Jeered Along Entire Route to Prison.

POLICE HAVE TO BEAT MOB

Prisoner Is Hurried to Jail, and There Her Nerve Fails Her for a Few Minutes—Five More Indictments Against Her.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 14.—Indicted five times by the United States grand jury at the exact minute her train rolled into the station, Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick came home to Cleveland this afternoon. She was greeted with jeers, hoots and hisses by the crowds that gathered in the station when her train arrived and howled at by hundreds gathered in front of the Federal building. The last sound that reached her from the outside world, as she passed into the stuffy all-enclosing office of Sheriff Barry in the County Jail, was the hoarse cry of derision from the people massed in front of the doorway. She made no attempt to give ball, and after a brief stop in the office of the Clerk of the United States Court was taken to the jail. She is held tonight in a cell in the women's department of the jail, and her palatial residence on Euclid avenue, of which the furnishings alone are valued at $50,000, is occupied by her maid.

She maintained her courage to the last, but her body failed her, and when she had mounted the three flights of stairs leading to the tier of cells where she is to remain, she collapsed utterly and fell in a dead faint. But for the aid of Deputy United States Marshals, who held her up and almost carried her along as she mounted the stairs, she never would have been able to reach her cell. Breathless, pale and shivering, she was barely able to reach a chair, as the steel door of the woman's corridor swung open to receive her.

Revives in a Few Seconds. She sank feebly into the chair, her head fell backward, and but for the Marshals she would have rolled to the floor. Water was quickly brought to her, and in a few seconds she revived, and was again a woman of business. Her first request was that her lawyer, Sheldon O. Kerruish, be sent for, and she was soon engaged in a conference with him concerning her defense. There is small chance that she will be able to leave the jail before her trial.

There are now seven indictments against her—five additional charges having been laid against her in the Federal Court this afternoon. It would require surety to the amount of at least $100,000 to give her freedom, and there is nobody in Cleveland who will furnish that amount for her. She has herself no idea of giving bail, and will remain in jail. She has the best cell in the place, but it is not a nice cell, nor is the County Jail of Cuyahoga County a nice jail, even as jails go.

Mrs. Chadwick's train was scheduled to arrive at 11:50 in the morning, but it was three hours late. The delay of the train served but one purpose, that of increasing the crowd of curious at the station. As early as 11 o'clock there were several hundred persons at the station, but their presence was hardly noticeable. There was more than the usual number of policemen present, but not enough to excite suspicion of anything unusual.

Crowds Begin to Increase. Shortly before 1 o'clock the train was posted on the bulletin board as three hours late. The news of this delay quickly reached the business centers, and from 1 o'clock on the crowds began to increase. Soon the platforms and approaches to the station were thronged, and more police were ordered to keep clear the exits from the trainshed.

About 1:25 United States Marshal Chandler drove up to the station in a carriage and scoured out on the platform. He said Mrs. Chadwick had telegraphed him from Ashtabula asking that she be allowed to consult her counsel, Sheldon O. Kerruish, at the station before being driven to the Federal building. The Marshal stated, however, that he would object to any consultation in the station because of the crowd.

Almost with every minute's delay the crowd grew in size and the patience and effectiveness of the police were severely taxed. Soon it was rumored that the train had passed through Collinwood, a suburb about six miles out, and the police immediately cleared the platforms, drove back from the gates the crowd and formed a line through which Mrs. Chadwick would have to pass.

Mob Breaks Through Police. When the train finally rolled into the station, there was a rush from the further end of the iron fence that kept the crowd of curious from the tracks. This mob had broken through the police, swarmed over the fence and through the gates upon the tracks, so that when the train came to a standstill there were about 100 persons about the cars.

When the train drew into the station at Cleveland, Mrs. Chadwick caught a glimpse of the great crowd which swarmed about the trainshed and was grouped on vantage points on the heights surrounding the station. She instinctively shrank back into a corner of the drawing-room and said: "I cannot see why all these people should be here."

After the train had been emptied of its passengers, United States Marshal Chandler, of Ohio, stepped aboard her car, where he was introduced to Mrs. Chadwick, who asked that she be taken out as speedily as possible, and preceded by Emil Chadwick and Freda Swanstorm, the nurse, the party made its way to the platform and thence through the dense crowds to a carriage in waiting.

WARSHIP IS SUNK

Japanese Finally Send Sevastopol Down.

LAST OF LARGE VESSELS

Port Arthur Success Follows a Series of Attacks.

FORTRESS IS HARD PRESSED

Japanese From 203-Meter Hill Command a View of Entire City and Harbor, and Are Dropping Shells Everywhere.

TOKIO, Dec. 15 (Noon).—It is reported that the Japanese have successfully torpedoed the Russian battleship Sevastopol. A report from Vice-Admiral Togo, telling of a series of former attacks on the Sevastopol, has just been given out. It follows: "Commander Kasama, commanding the torpedo flotilla on Monday night at midnight attacked the Russian battleship Sevastopol, lying outside Port Arthur. The result of this attack has not been ascertained. Subsequently two torpedo-boats under Commander Masudo attempted several attacks, facing the enemy's vigorous fire. The shock of the explosions of torpedoes was felt, but the next day the Sevastopol remained in the same position. None of our vessels was damaged. "On Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock in the morning another torpedo flotilla under Commander Arakawa attacked the Sevastopol, but the result of this attack was not learned. In this attack a shell from the enemy struck the funnel of one of our torpedo-boats and another struck the engine-room, disabling the vessel and she lost her freedom of motion and was towed away by her comrades. There were no casualties. "Again at 6 o'clock on the morning of the same day a torpedo flotilla under Commander Komaki attempted an attack, but was exposed by the enemy's searchlights and, being subjected to a heavy fire, was unable to accomplish its purpose. "Simultaneously, Lieutenant Adachi, commanding two torpedo-boats, approached the enemy's ship and discharged torpedoes which were seen to explode, but with what effect is not known. These attackers were also exposed to a heavy fire and both were hit once and three men were wounded. "The commander of the naval guns overlooking Port Arthur reporting at 10 o'clock Tuesday night said: "Today's bombardment was principally directed against the arsenal and torpedo store at Tiger's Tail Peninsula and the vessels anchored in that vicinity. The storehouse was set afire, and burned in about an hour. About six shells struck the ships and three vessels used for various purposes were destroyed. One took fire and sank. The bombardment of buildings caused serious damage. The result of the indirect bombardment of the Sevastopol has not been ascertained, owing to the inclement weather. "The Sevastopol was the only battleship at Port Arthur to escape damage by the Japanese bombardment from 203-Meter Hill. Official Japanese dispatches said she appeared to be lying in the east harbor; that only the tops of her masts were visible to the Japanese gunners, and that her hull was completely hidden by a hill. (An unofficial report circulated at Tokio said that on December 7 Japanese torpedo-boats had attacked the Sevastopol at the mouth of the harbor, but the result of the attack was unknown. A dispatch from Tokio December 11 conveying an official report said the Sevastopol continued at anchor outside the harbor, possibly returning at night. Her anchorage, according to the dispatch at that time, was inside the outer boom, which protected her against torpedo attacks. In this connection it may be interesting to recall the fact that, according to the same dispatch, the whereabouts of the Russian torpedo-boat destroyers continues to be unknown, and it was thought they had taken shelter outside.)

REGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Dec. 14.—The House committee on public lands today voted to postpone indefinitely action on the bill to repeal the timber and stone act. This action means there will be no land-law reform this session. This result was expected, especially in view of the fact that the Public Lands Commission has not yet made a final report. The bill passed on today was by far the most important of the land-reform bills pending; but when it was passed by the Senate last session there was a distinct understanding with the members of the House committee that it should not be reported to the House during the present Congress.

President Denies Clemency.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The President has denied executive clemency to Mrs. Philip Dodge, from whom the Government seized a pearl necklace several years ago. The sale of the necklace by the Government, which was postponed in order that Mrs. Dodge's attorney might present the matter to the President, will now proceed. The necklace has been valued at $3,000.

Line of Main Defenses Unbroken.

MUKDEN, Dec. 14.—Late dispatches received at headquarters from Port Arthur, by way of Cheetoo, declare that the situation there is by no means as desperate as it is reported by foreign newspaper dispatches. The line of main defenses is unbroken, and there is plenty of ammunition and food.

MITCHELL MUCH GRATIFIED.

He Wins Important Committee in Face of Muc's Opposition.

REGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Dec. 14.—Senator Mitchell was highly gratified today to receive the appointment as chairman of the committee on interoceanic canals, which will handle all legislation hereafter enacted affecting the Panama Canal and the Canal Zone. He succeeded the late Senator Hanna.

A very strong fight was made to keep Senator Mitchell out of this position, and it was only when all endeavor to force Senator Platt to accept the place failed that the position was given to the Oregon Senator.

DREDGE FOR OREGON HARBORS

Committee Is Impressed With the Suggestion of Hermann. REGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Dec. 14.—Representative Hermann appeared before the rivers and harbors committee in support of his bill asking an appropriation of $100,000 for a dredge to be used on Oregon coast bars.

Representative Hermann has received assurances from Chairman Burton and other members of the committee which lead him to believe the committee will incorporate in the river and harbor bill a provision for the dredge. The committee is unwilling to make further appropriations for the coast projects, most of which have been adversely reported upon by engineers, though it is impressed with the idea of building a dredge which can be used on all these bars.
