DEAD.
UNKNOWN MAN—Buried beneath 250 tons of coal at the bottom of the river.

One unknown man was instantly killed and four others painfully injured at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, by the sudden capsizing of the barge Monarch, laden with coal for the steamer Arabia, alongside which the barge was moored at the time of the accident.

William Doyle, foreman of the barge, was not on the boat at the time of the accident, having left it but a few moments before to telephone to the headquarters of the Oregon Round Lumber Company, owners of the boat.

Police officers were sent to the scene as soon as Police Headquarters was notified of the accident, and Coroner Finley arrived shortly to take charge. Diverted from his work, the steamer Arabia was unable to raise the body of the dead man last night. It is believed the unfortunate is buried beneath tons of coal.

The accident occurred without a second's warning. The men had removed about 220 tons of the 600 tons with which the barge had been loaded. The unknown man who lost his life was on the outer side of the vessel, working on the pumps. The other four were unloading the coal. Foreman William Doyle had just left the barge to go to a telephone to communicate with the office of the Oregon Round Lumber Company.

Suddenly the barge listed to one side. The men working did not notice it, thinking the listing was caused by the waves of a passing steamer. Officers on the steamer Arabia cried to warn the men, but before they could understand the barge swerved quickly to one side, completely "turned turtle" and the men were thrown down into the fearful vortex in the path of 280 tons of coal.

Four Taken From River.
By the force of the wave following the movement of the barge, four of the five men were thrown out between the barge and the steamer, some of them being buried completely under the waves. The cries could be heard above the hissing of the turbulent waters.

Arabia's Men Do Heroic Work.
But for the heroic work and presence of mind of the officers and men of the steamer Arabia it is doubtful if any of the unfortunate would have survived. As soon as the four men were taken aboard the steamer and carried to the quarters of the steamer, it was ascertained that another was still missing, and that he was the unknown victim. The lifeboats continued the search in the darkness for some time, but were unable to find any trace of the man.

Work Had Delayed Accident.
The unfortunate "unknown" who, last night, lay in a sepulcher of ruins, had, without knowing it, pumped for his life for two hours prior to the accident. About 3 o'clock, Foreman Doyle became aware of the fact that the barge was filling rapidly, and not desiring to take one of the other employees from the work of unloading the coal, he looked for a man to set to work on the pumps. The unknown victim was on Columbia Dock No. 2, at which the Arabia is moored, and immediately told the foreman he was looking for work. He was employed and told to pump.

MORE WOOL CLIPPED
Production Increased, Despite Fewer Sheep Raised.

AVERAGE FLEECE IS HEAVIER
Flocks the Smallest on Record Since 1898—Slow Growth of the Industry Notwithstanding Dingley Protective Tariff.

The National Association of Wool Manufacturers, with headquarters at Boston, has just issued its annual review of the wool trade in this country. It contains valuable statistics and information of this industry, carefully compiled by W. J. Battison. According to the report the number of sheep fit for shearing April 1, 1904, was 38,342,072, as compared with 38,244,000 of the preceding year. This shows a falling off in the United States flock of 94,528. It is the smallest number of sheep on record since 1888, when the number was but a little short of what it is in 1904.

But notwithstanding this reduction in the flock, the quantity of wool produced has increased according to these estimates, 4,333,022 pounds, the gain being accounted for in the increased average weight of the fleece, which is placed at 6.50 pounds this year, against 6.25 pounds in 1903. The report says that on the whole the wool crop was well grown, without tenderness and of good staple, due to one of the mildest winters experienced for years on the ranges, and to an abundance of succulent food.

THE NEW YEAR'S OREGONIAN
The best advertisement for the 1905 Fair that Oregon's people can send to their friends in the East, will be a copy of the New Year's Oregonian that will be published Monday morning next.

Production of pulled wool for the year is estimated at 42,000,000 pounds, bringing the total production for 1904 to 297,782,022 pounds. The year 1898, when the production was 248,538,138 pounds, marked the high point in wool production in this country, and the flock of 47,233,663 was also the largest on record. From 1883 there was a gradual fall in the production, due to the fact that, in spite of the operation of free wool on the industry was also the largest on record. From 1883 there was a gradual fall in the production, due to the fact that, in spite of the operation of free wool on the industry was also the largest on record.

HEARD IN THE TROUBLE SHOP
The Tale of Seaman Hanta—Poor Mount Tabor—Helped to Reform

"If Your Honor thinks you can reform these people, I am willing to let you have the chance," said the Deputy City Attorney. "I thank you for the chance," said the Judge. The Deputy City Attorney grew red in the face again. "We've got a little home in Mount Tabor; we can go there and live," announced Mrs. Smith.

"I've got a barber shop downtown and I'm going to keep it," said Mr. Smith. "No, he's not," said Mrs. Smith. "He's going home with me." "She can go where she pleases; she got me into this trouble," said the lord and master. "He got me into it, Your Honor," said the woman. His Honor threw his hands into the air and called for help. Bailiff Goitz rushed to the rescue. When he got to the defendants found himself in a delightful mixup. He had been engaged by the husband and wife to defend them against charges of vagrancy. Now the husband and wife were each accusing the other, and he knew not which way to turn. The husband had testified that he had no funds, but took nothing on the other hand, from his wife. The wife had said that she did not earn funds in an unlawful manner.
