"DARLING OF THE GODS."

Sale of Seats Begins This Morning at the Grand Theater. "

The war between Japan and Russia, which just now seems to be going all in favor of the Mikado's empire, has served to awaken acute interest in anything and to awaken acute interest in anything and everything Japanese. It is natural to suppose, therefore, that an unusual wel-come awaits the arrival of Miss Blanche Bates at the Grand Theater next week, when this great artist, supported by the Belasco Company, from the Belasco The-ater, New York, will present for the first time here a drama of old Japan entitled "The Darling of the Gods." This is the first Japanese play to be produced in New York where it ran for side. Ryan then took the entire $21,000, or what was supposed to be that amount, in currency, put it in a grip and took it down to deposit it in a hank. Instead of taking it to a bank he took it to a saloon and de-posited it there. He then returned to the recommend abuvel a result which he al-

The authors are Mr. David Belasco and Mr. John Luther Long, the distinguished literateur from Philadelphia, whose sto-ries of Japanese life have graced the pages of important magazines for the last six years. The star of the organisation is Miss Blanche Bates, who, in the role of the Princese Yo-San, daughter of the mighty Prince of Tosan, has given the tineatrical world one of the gratest in-spirations ever known. For a long time WELCH FOLDING BEDS have led all others, and small wonder. They're easy to operate, perfectly balanced, built of the best material, last longer and give more comfort and satisfaction than any other folding bed made. That's saying a good deal, but we can prove it.

The cases are all built of selected wood, finely finished, and perfectly finished. Most of them are fitted with the NATIONAL SPRING, reinforced at ends and center with steel ribbons, and made with 24 auxiliary springs in end attachment. Every bed is fitted with steel castors and patent headboard. We have them with mirrors and without.

Every day this week there will be a practical demonstration of these beds in our big corner window. Will show you how easy it is to be comfortable and save room at the same time.
