DEFENDS GUARD RAILS

STREET-CAR OFFICIAL ASSERTS CRITICISMS ARE UNJUST.

Showing Made of the Benefits Accruing to New Feature of Morrison-Street Bridge Roadway.

Since the opening of the new Morrison-atreet bridge there has been considerable comment concerning the guard timbers separating the team tracks from the street railway tracks. Bearing on the subject the following statement is made by Vice-President Swigert of the Portland Consolidated Street Railway Company, who was manager of the City & Suburban at the time the contract was made:

It seems to us that the opposition to these guard timbers is largely based upon a wholly stroneous impression as to their relative effect upon iesm and car traffic. People generally seem to forget that the clear width of the roadway on the Morrison-street bridge is exactly the same as the streets leading to it, and the same width as 95 per cent of all the streets of the city, which is to say 36 feet in the clear.

They also apparently forget the fact that any lond that can travel on any part of Morrison street without wholly obstructing street-railway traffic can cross Morrison-street bridge. It is true that some of the widest loads would project over the guard timbers, and cars could not pass them, but it would be delayed.

In case of breakdown, there are removable pertions of the guard timbers, so that following teams can get around the obstacle with very little delay or difficulty, but the truth is that there is practically no danger whatever of breakdowns on the bridge, so long as feams are separated from the rails. During the entire 18 years that the Morrison-etreet bridge has been operated neither myself nor the bridge-tenders can recall a single breakdown which was not directly due to an artempt to cross or turn out of the tracks. The reason for this is perfectly clear, when it is remembered that the bridge floor is smooth. while the streets are always more or less rough, and a vehicle will carry from two to hree times the load across the bridge that will on the streets leading to it.

he only people who are inconvenienced alightest degree are those who may ying a light vehicle behind a heavily-loa nd slowly-moving truck; but is it not better not the relatively small number of such cases hat the relatively small number of such cases e slightly inconvenienced than that the 20,000 o 25,000 people daily moved across the bridge o cars should be unpocessarily delayed. The car pairons who traveled under the old onditions must have a vivid recollection of the delays to which they were subjected; and extainly have a right to be heard on this winter.

There is certainly reason for giving the Fire There is certainly reason for giving the Fire Department access to the street-cur tracks, and this can very easily be arranged by removing the cross rails at either end of the bridge; and to this the company will have absolutely no objections. By doing this, the movements of the Fire Department would be absolutely unhampered, as the cars can certainly keep out of their way, while teams on a roadway entirely open as certainly could not. It seems to me that the Fire Department argument is clearly in favor, instead of against the present system.

ment argument is clearly in favor, instead of against the present system.

It has been repeatedly stated that this is a free bridge, and that the cars have no muteright to special favors than the tenna.

It is true that the bridge is free to all classes of travel except cars; to them it is far from being "free."

The interest charge on the total cost of the bridge amounts to something less than $16,000 per year. Of this the car company is obliged to pay at least $12,000, or three-fourths of the whole, and in the near future, under its present contract, will probably any the entire interest charge on the cast of the bridge, in addition to paying their regular taxes and licenses. Under the circumstances, it is not unreasonable that they should be given a fairly clear right of way, particularly when it is borne in mind that for every individual inconvenienced by this arrangement, 95 are benefited.

question of a clear right of way was the real consideration offered us to cancel our former contract, under which we paid only $1500 per year, and accept the present one, under which we must pay a minimum of $12,000; and by reason of this increased payment every patron traveling to and from the East Bide on these cars is benefited without additional charge.

The present arrangement is entitled to a fair trial, and if this agitation be stopped pending such a trial, we feel absolutely confident it

They assert it will be disastrous for them to trail along in the wake of wagons, when a big fire necessitates hurrying. "We will have to drop in behind the procession of teams," said Foreman Roberts, "and take our time in getting across to the West Side, when we are called there. It is not safe to undertake to get the engine over the guard rails into the center of the bridge, as has been sugted that we might do. We will have time in crossing and so will the West Side engine in answering alarms according to the running card, on the East Side. District Engineer Holden obects to the partitioning of the bridge.
