announced and the protests were so strong that Governor Chamberlain ignored the nominations and appointed a man of his own choosing.

Senator Wright's bill, S. B. 167, provides that the Governor shall make appointments after the expiration of the terms of the present incumbents. It also requires the State Board of Examiners shall grant to any person a certificate of admission to practice dentistry upon such person showing by affidavit that he has been in the actual practice of dentistry in this state for five years prior to January 1, 1905.

The last session of Wright's bill is rather remarkable for the reason that it seems to prohibit advertising or using the letters "D. D. S." whether one has been admitted to practice dentistry or not. The section reads: "Any one advertising to practice dentistry in newspaper, circular or otherwise, or shall append the letters 'D. D. S.' to his or her name, shall be prima facie evidence that such person is guilty of violating the provisions of this act."

HOUSE IS NEARLY A UNIT.

Majority of Directors of a Corporation Must Live in State.—SALEM, Or., Jan. 26.—(Special)—The House this morning refused to pass a bill to permit the majority of the directors of a corporation to dwell outside the state and only one vote was recorded in favor of passage—that of Holcomb of Multnomah. The measure was fathered by Smith of Josephine, who was ill of the chamber when "Shall the bill pass?" was put by the Speaker, and he did not return until the roll call was half done. Smith voted "No" for he believed he was responding to the question, "Shall the bill be indefinitely postponed?" Those who opposed passage were Linthicum of Multnomah and Speaker Mills, who called Mills of Yamhill to the chair when he took the floor. Linthicum argued that the bill was one of harmony with the corporation policy which had been in force in Oregon for 50 years, and which upsets one of the best protections in our corporation laws.

Linthicum mentioned the case of the O. R. & N., of whose 15 directors eight live in Oregon, owing to the present law. In this way the affairs of the corporation are conducted in Oregon, he said, subject to the limitations of the laws of this state, and in greater or less degree to the public sentiment of the commonwealth.

Mills followed up Linthicum's argument by saying that one of the best corporation laws for protection of Oregon's interests is the requirement that a majority of the directors of corporations organized in the state. Such was the fact, he said, in the case of the O. R. & N., the biggest corporation in the state, "because the people can put their hands on the eight resident directors. Those directors are of us and among us and responsible to us." Mr. Mills called the bill "vicious" and hoped that it would be defeated. He was surprised that Smith, who posed as a friend of the people, should advocate a bill so clearly in the interest of corporations.

Smith returned to the House after the debate was closed, but was permitted to argue his side of the case when it came his turn to vote. He said that his sole object in wishing for the passage of the bill was to increase the revenue of the state from the corporation tax. He resented the aspersion that his bill was "vicious," whereat Speaker Mills rose and gracefully withdrew the adjective.

BROWNELL'S EFFORT IS BARREN

Eight-Hour Labor Bill is Overwhelmingly Defeated.—SALEM, Or., Jan. 26.—(Special)—Not even the eloquent pleas of the silver-tongued orator from Clackamas, Senator Brownell, could overcome the adverse report of the Judiciary committee, and his eight-hour labor bill was overwhelmingly defeated. The only Senators voting for the bill were Senators Avery, Brownell, Croston and Miller.

When the bill had been read the third time Senator Brownell made an extended argument in favor of its passage. He argued that the laboring people of Oregon demand the enactment of an eight-hour law and they expect it at the hands of the Republican party, which is in power and which has always posed as the friend of the laboring man.

There was no discussion against the bill, but it met defeat by a vote of 4 to 25.

Normal Schools Pull Together.

SALEM, Or., Jan. 26.—(Special)—Abolition of any of the Normal Schools does not seem probable at this session of the Legislature, and the ways and means committees are not likely to omit any in making up the appropriation bill. The Normal School interests are pulling together and political considerations make it next to impossible to centralize the normal work in one institution. Chairman Vawter, of the House committee on ways and means, said tonight he did not think it advisable for the State to reduce the four Normal Schools to one. All of the schools were well attended he said. In other states, he remarked, it is not customary to have but one Normal School. "Our appropriations for Normal Schools are small," said he. "In comparison with those made by other states. Economy is well enough, but it should not be so stringent as to impair the citizenship of the state."

STATE SENATORS OF THE OREGON LEGISLATURE AND SOME OF THEIR HOBBIES

DONE BY THE COMMITTEES.

Measures Passed Upon by Workers of Washington Legislators.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Jan. 26.—(Special)—There was a joint meeting of the subcommittee of the House and Senate tonight, at which it was decided to hold an open meeting next Tuesday evening, at which the representatives of the railroad companies and all other interested may appear before the committee. The committee is engaged in eliminating undesirable sections from the several bills presented, with the idea of evolving a committee bill for introduction.

There will be an open meeting of the joint irrigation committees on the Wednesday following, and a large number of notices have been sent by members to persons in Eastern Washington who may desire to appear before the committee. It is expected that the Government expert, George H. Maxwell, will also be present.

The House Committee on Privileges and Elections tonight decided to recommend for passage the Twitchell bill, which provides a system for identification of voters in elections. The bill requires that three shall be a column added to the registration poll-books, in which the voters shall sign his name opposite his registration signature, the latter being hidden from his view.

The House Committee on Mines and Mining approved the coal-oil inspection bill, and the Public Morals Committee decided to recommend for passage the bill providing for a paid chaplain at the State Penitentiary.

The Senate Committee on Constitutional Revision tonight discussed the bills extending to booming and logging companies the right of eminent domain.

The bills are the most important to the timber interests of any that will come up at this session, and the committee decided to invite the representatives of lumber and logging companies to appear before the committee Friday afternoon.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, after listening to five chiefs from several of the larger cities, decided to recommend the passage of the Firmness Relief Association bill, which provides for pensions to be paid disabled or retired firemen out of the tax on insurance premiums levied by the state.
