Duty Confronting the Lutheran Church in America.

PRESIDENT IN THE PULPIT

Address at the Dedication of the Luther Place Memorial Church In Washington, Rebuilt After Damage From Fire.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. - President Roosevelt delivered an address today at the dedication of the Luther Place Memor tal Church, which was seriously damaged just one year ago tonight. The church has been entirely restored.

The President came in while the servpreliminary to the s rmon were in pulpit. At their conclusion he was induced. President Roosevelt said:

obliged so continually to look at matters, there is a peculiar function to be played by the great Lutheran Church in the United States of America. This as a church had its rise to power in, and until it emigrated to this side of the water, had always had its fullest development in the two great races of Northern and Northern Middle Europe-the German and the

The Lutheran Church came to the terwhich is now the United States very shortly after the first permanent settlements were made within our limits, , when the earlier settlers came to dwell around the mouth of the Delaware they brought the Lutheran worship with them, and so, with the earliest Ge settlers who came to Pennsylvania and afterward to New York and the mountain our region in the western part of Virginis and the states south of it.

Waves of Newcomers.

From that time to this the history of the growth of population in this Nation has consisted largely, in some respects mainly, of the arrival of successive waves of newcomers to our shores, and the prime duty of those already in the land is to see that their own progress and developnent are shared by those newcomers. It is a serious and dangerous thing for any man to tear home from the soil, from the agion in which he and his forebearen have taken cost, and to be transplanted into a new land. He should receive all smille aid in that new land; and the ald can be tendered him most effectively those who can appeal to him on the ground of spiritual kinghip.

Therefore the Lutheran Church can do much in helping upward and coward so many of the newcomers to our shores; and it seems to me that it should be. I am sempted to say, well nigh the prime duty of this church to see that the immigrant, especially the emigrant of the Lutheran faith from the Old World. whether he come from Scandinavia or Germany, or whether he belonged to one to drift off, with no friendly hand extended to him out of all the church commion, away from all the influences that tend toward safeguarding and uplifting ready to bring him into fellowship with given a large share of the credit for en

This is not to say we should be a sad and gloomy people. On the contrary, with free institutions, and with equality of rights and opportunity which no other country offers, we should be the most cheerful and light-hearted people in the world."

Continuing, Mr. Cleveland said:

Scientific Research is Now Lacking in System.

PLAN FOR AN ORGANIZATION

Institute of "Exact Science in General" is Proposed, With a Council of Experts Chosen From Various Countries.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.-Official ansouncement of researches along vari- a cientific lines is made in the Yea 1904, just issued by the Carnegie Instition at Washington. In this report Pro fessor Simon Newcomb suggests that while the 19th century has been industriously piling up a vast mass of sistro-nomical, meteorological and sociological data at great expense, the working out of results from these observations is defective and lacks system. To correct this ac-urges the organization of an institute or bureau of "exact science in general," the head of which should be aided by a coun-cil of experts picked from various coun-tries, to advise as to the various departments at work with a view to reaching ments at work with a view to reaching results at small expense which without such organization never would be reached. In this connection the approval of such men as Karl Pearson, of the University College, of London: Lord Raleigh, of the Royal Institution of Great Britain: c. H. Darwin, of Cambridge, and others in greater or smaller degree of the scheme has been secured. Mr. Pearson adds that at least 20 per cent of the scientific observation made and the data collected are worthiess, and no man, however able, could deduce any result from them at all.
Discussing the Southern observatory project, the report says that under the grants from the Carnegle institution, the direction and velocity of the solar motions are being determined from all available material, and before the close of 1906 re-sults are expected from 5000 of the more frequently observed stars. A new deter-mination of the positions of standard stars distributed from the north to the south pole of the heavens will be undertaken

The institution's department of general research in terrestial magnetism reports that its investigations show little progress made along that line, that systematic magnetic surveys of the oceanic areas are entirely lacking and that despite the ap-parently vast accumulation of data such an important question as to whether the earth's magnetic energy is increasing or decreasing, and the annual rate of change cannot yet be definitely answered.

The institution has approved the general scheme of a project for a magnetic survey of the North Pacific, although it has not passed on the details. The proj-ect contemplates the character of a wood-built. built, nonmagnetic sailing vessel, of a proximately 600 tons' displacement, to pu proximately see tons displacement, to pur-sue a lengthy course in the North Pacific Ocean. The confident expectation is ex-pressed that in the neighborhood of isl-ands and coast distortions and tregulari-ties in the distribution of the earth's magnetism will be rovealed by this work and opportunity given for investigating the effect of the configuration of land and water on the distribution of land has offered reasons to believe that an actual change in the amount of heat emitted by the sun occurred in March. 1903, and that if such a change is actually established by carrying on these observations at a higher altitude, the result would have an important bearing on many questions relating to the earth and would be of vital interest in its relationability to the solar constitution."

In a speech at the Cache Stake Conference at Logan today, is reported to have strongly defended polygamy, and predicted that Congress would be unable to stop the practice. In a special dispatch to the Tribune from Logan. President Kimball is quoted as saying:
"These good women in the East want Congress to stop this thing polygamy. I would like to see Congress try it. They will have something on their hands if they do. They want to put this down and legalize race suicide. They can't do it. The more they try it, the more it will

According to the Tribune special, the effect on the large audience was tremendous stirring the deepest enthusiarm and religious fervor, and shouts of approval followed the speaker's utterances.

Logan is one of the strongholds of Mormonism, the seat of a large temple, and the home of Congressman Howell. President Kimball is the son of Heber C. Kimball, one of the former leaders of the Mormon Charch.
