DIVORCES GIVEN TO FOUR

Mrs. Anna Mahon Claims Her Husband Married Her for Her Money, and Will Not Work—Charges of Cruelty Were Made.

Four divorces were granted by Judge Frazer yesterday. On complaint of Esther L. Adler the bonds of matrimony existing between her and Isaac L. Adler were dissolved. They were married in Portland in April, 1899. Mrs. Adler testified that she gave her husband money to embark in business, but he failed. He did not support her and was abusive, she claimed. Minnie Louise White was divorced from Elmer Ellsworth White. She testified that he frequently told her he would repay the money she had given him. On September 15, 1904, she said, he struck her a violent blow, cutting one of her ears and bruising her temple and head. She fled in her night dress into the street to seek the protection of a police officer. On another occasion he struck her and pulled her by the hair along the floor. She then left him, going to her father's home. Mrs. White further testified that her husband had an ungovernable temper. He frequently threatened to kill her, and she was afraid to live with him. The litigants are now in Moscow, Idaho, in 1892. They have three children. White is employed at the Baker Theater and, among his other duties, operates the moving picture machine. Two of the children, boys aged 9 and 11 years, have been working at the theater, one as an usher and the other distributing programs. The father has had the custody of the children, but as the decree of the court gave them to the mother, Judge Frazer ordered the sheriff to turn them over to her. An order was also made requiring White to contribute $7 per week for the support of the children. White's weekly stipend is $20.

Married for Her Money.

A sensational story was told by Anna E. Mahon, who was granted a divorce from J. T. Mahon, and was allowed to resume her maiden name, Johnson. Mrs. Mahon testified that she was married to the defendant in Vancouver, Wash., October 22, 1904. She had been acquainted with him for a year previous, and he represented to her that he was a man of good habits and had a good position in San Francisco. At the time of the wedding Mrs. Mahon said she had $1200. Soon after the marriage she learned that her husband had no position, would not work and evidently had married her to get what money she had. When she refused to give him money he forced her to do so by beating her. He compelled her to go to London and San Francisco, and draw money for him, which she did to avoid a scene with him on the street, so she said. He accused her of flirting with a man at the theater and choked her for a confession from her, and threatened to choke her to death if she did not admit it. During 1904, she said, she lived with him, she left the fellow in November, 1904, when Mahon went to Salt Lake City.

Got Married Too Soon.

Rosetta Carter, formerly Rosetta Ogle, nee Pool, was divorced from Alvin C. Carter because she was married to him 12 days after she obtained a divorce from J. H. Ogle. The divorce from Ogle was granted in Portland, September 18, 1895, and she was married to Carter September 30 at Vancouver, and lived with him until January 10, 1905. The law provides that six months must elapse before a divorced person may remarry. Mrs. Carter said she was ignorant of the law when she took Carter for a husband, and upon ascertaining the fact that the marriage was void ceased to live with him. Under the statute the marriage is void and Judge Frazer declared it so. Louise M. Mackey, who has sued William C. Mackey for a divorce, yesterday filed a petition asking that her husband be required to pay her $25 per month and $250 for suit money. She alleges that he is able to pay, as he owns property in Elgin, Ill., worth $2500 and in South Dakota of the value of $3000.

SUES HUSBAND FOR SUPPORT

Mrs. Drake Also Tells How She Agreed to a Separation for $75.

It developed at the trial of the suit of Matilda Drake against her husband, F. P. Drake, an employment agent on North Third street, for support, that Mrs. Drake, when on a visit in Illinois last Summer, wrote her husband affectionate letters and in response Drake wrote telling her he had applied for a divorce. Mrs. Drake returned, Drake induced her to sign an agreement releasing him from all matrimonial obligations in consideration of $75. Then Drake offered to obtain her a place cooking and a position for her daughter Haast, by a former husband and told her the employment fee would be $20. Drake wrote a letter to W. Green, a friend, telling about the place he had for his wife, concluding as follows: "I hope you will explain to Mrs. D. that the office fee will be $25 for her and Haast. Judge Frazer scored Drake for abandoning his wife and then having the nerve to try to charge her $250 to get her a job as a cook. Drake explained that he had a partner in business, and it would not be fair to rob his partner. The litigants were married about five years ago, and for a while lived on a farm near Vancouver. Mrs. Drake furnishing the money to stock the place. They had a quarrel, which Mrs. Drake says was only of a trivial character. In June last she went to a living being her daughter here. Drake testifies that at that time they agreed to separate forever. Mrs. Drake testified that this was positively false. She merely went away on a visit and had to borrow money from relatives to get back. During her absence Drake wrote her a letter containing the following statement: "I will tell you what I am doing and expect to do in the future. I have commenced suit for a divorce and I expect to be a single man and you a single woman within a month, so you had better make your plans." Mrs. Drake consulted a lawyer, who sent Drake a letter threatening him with prosecution if he attempted to get a divorce. Mrs. Drake returned to Portland. Drake says he will furnish her with a home if she will live with him as his wife. Mrs. Drake testifies that she thought as if he is in earnest about it, and furnishes her a home she can live in. She says she doesn't want to have to work over a wash tub and stove for a living, but replies that he is a poor man, and was poor when she married him. B. S. Pague appeared as attorney for Mrs. Drake and A. H. Tanner for the defense. Arguments will be made before the court today.

New Charge in Arson Case.

An information against A. B. Coon, E. Miller and J. B. Hatchelor, charging them with the arson in setting fire to the southwest corner of Fifth and Madison streets, was filed by District Attorney Manning in the State Circuit Court yesterday afternoon. The fire occurred on Wednesday, November 23, 1904, but did not prove serious. Coon, Miller and Hatchelor were indicted by the grand jury. The specific charge was that they set fire to the exclusive right to make and sell the Rex nut-luck in the United States, Canada, Great Britain and other countries of the world; also deeds to four lots in Holladay's addition and other property valued at $495. Sirard was in his petition that at a meeting of the board of trustees of the company in Washington, D. C., held on January 19, 1905, he was elected treasurer of the company. Rourke was the former treasurer, and Sirard alleges that he has refused to deliver the property and documents under his control. Judge George set the case for hearing February 15.

H. J. Sirard filed a petition for a writ of mandamus in the State Circuit Court yesterday against N. W. The property consists of the exclusive right to make and sell the Rex nut-luck in the United States, Canada, Great Britain and other countries of the world; also deeds to four lots in Holladay's addition and other property valued at $495. Sirard was in his petition that at a meeting of the board of trustees of the company in Washington, D. C., held on January 19, 1905, he was elected treasurer of the company. Rourke was the former treasurer, and Sirard alleges that he has refused to deliver the property and documents under his control. Judge George set the case for hearing February 15.
