In length and elevation be sufficient to give the necessary control of the ebb flow, no works in addition to the south jetty will be required. The board is, however, not satisfied that this will be the case. It therefore recommends the construction of a north jetty at such time as its necessity becomes apparent, and in case the south jetty alone falls to produce or maintain a permanent 60-loot channed.
 The plan of improvement at this time, therefore, covers the full construction of the south jetty, but should that this will be the comparison of a north jetty, but should that the outpare of the south jetty will be undertaken.
