Multnomah Wins Wrestling Match, but Boxing Contest is Declared a Draw-People Crowd Gymnasium to See Games.

Portland and Scattle mixed up in fistic and wrestling engagement last night and when the melee was over, Portland had won the wrestling bout and Seattle drew a draw in the boxing honors. The event was the interurban meeting of the Multnoman Athletic Club and the Seattle Athletic Club, and the big symnasium of the former club was crowded to standing room. Mayor Williams was there. So was Colonel David Dunne, and a host of other prominent club members and well-known men about town. The ring was pitched in the center of the gymnasium and those who came late found the scars all taken and were contented to take the floor. They were satisfied to do this, for the show, unlike most amateur events was a good one and if kept up to the high standard of last night will prove a very attrac-tive drawing card and will make the club even more popular than it is. Coman Wins From Teller.

Boxing led the fun of the evening. The first event was between Will Co-man and George Teller, a couple of 112-pound youngsters. They battled lik-pound youngsiers. They battled for three rounds. The mill was full of ginger for both lads were willing. At the end of the third round Coman was turned the winner. The main events of the evening however, were the box-ing match between E. Franks, of the

M. A. A. C., and E. Bennett, S. A. A. C., and the wrestling bout between Dave Miller, of S. A. A. C., and Alex De France, of the M. A. A. C. Waen it came to weights Bennett was many came to weights bennett was many pounds beavier than Franks, so the medal for which the boys were to fight was withheld. The battle was to have gone three rounds, but at the end of the third canto the honors were so even that Referce Ed Gless called for another round. At the end of the fourth round honors were still even, so the battle was declared a draw. Franks put up a game battle. He was the aggressor throughout and always car-ried the fight to the lad from Scattle. Pleanest was the shiftest of the two and was content to allow the Multnomah boy to bring the fight to him. In the mix-ups Franks showed to a better advantage, but Bennett had it on him when it came to long-range work. Bennett is a dainty boxer, and shifty on his feet, bu without much of a punch.

De France Throws Miller.

De France Throws Miller.

Alex De France had no trouble in defeating Dave Miller in the wrestling match. De France won the first fall in jig time. He secured a one-arm strangle on Davis and the Scattle man, not knowing how to break the hold, gave up quickly. The second bout lasted longer, but it was clear from the start that De France had Miller at his mercy, and on the second fall won the match with ease. In the wrestlers' preliminary match for the club championship, K. Montague won from Dr. Tuttle in two straight falls. Bud Smith, of Vancouver, was referee.

REUNION AT FAIR IS PLANNED

Captains Creager and Hemphill Will Come to Portland This Summer -Today is Forty-Third Anniversary of Naval Battle.

Captain W. W. Goodrich, of the firm of Goodrich & Goodrich, architects, of Port-land, is one of the three survivors of the gallant crew of 57 men that fought on the Monitor in its great naval battle with the Merrimac. The others are Captain Creager, now sailing the Proteus out of New York, and Captain Hemphill, now in command of the Kearaarge. These two men have arranged to attend the Lewis and Clark Exposition this Summer and Captain Goodrich is awaiting their visit with a great deal of anticipation. They will hold a small, but nevertheless one of the most eventful and interesting, reunions ever held as a result of the Civil War. the Merrimac. The others are Captain Civil War.

Civil War.

"Forty-three years ago tomorrow," said Captain Goodrich yesterday afternoon, "I was abourd the Monitor in the famous engagement with the Merrimac. I still carry with me marks of that famous fight," continued Mr. Goodrich, holding out his right hand, which was slightly disfigured from bones being broken. "The drum of my right ear was also ruined by the terrible concussions of the two II-inch drum of my right ear was also ruined by the terrible concussions of the two II-inch smooth-bores carried by the Monitor.

"As everybody knows," went on Mr. Goodrich, "John Ericason was the de-signer of the Monitor. The money for the building of the ship was furnished by Charles H. Bushnell and as I was employed by them as a marine architect, I laid the Monitor down and superintended her construction. At the time of the en-gagement of the two ironclads, the Monior belonged to Eriesson and Bushnell ugh it was afterwards purchased by

When we left New York harbor there were three dead nearoes hanging to a lamp post. The negroes hanging to a lamp post. The mob assembled, composed of sympathizers of the South, threw rotten eggs and leered at us. Several men even went so far as to try to tear down one of the dead negroes and throw him upon the boat. We left, however, before they could get the noose from off the negro's neck.

"After we left the capes of the Delaware we encountered a West Indian hurricane. Three times our fires were put out by waves pouring over the smokestack. Terrific Naval Duel.

"Our shots would strike the Merrimac's sides rather high. Several of the Con-federate crew atterwards told me that each shot made kindling wood of the backing under the Merrimac's plating. The impact from the 8-isch gun rifles of the Merrimac on the Monitor's turret was awful, and the concussion of our II-inch smooth-bores was indescribable. Seven or eight of our crew were ren-

"I remember one man who was backed up against the inside wall of the turret when the impact of a solid shot threw him over both guns and down the ammunition hatch to the lower deck. The Merrimac ranmed us several times, ex-pecting us to turn bottom up, but the Monitor always remained righted or else I would not be here to tell this story. At times the ships were so close to each other that we could hear the men on the other that we could hear the men on the Merrimac swearing. One time one of our Il-inch shells struck the muzzle of one of the 8-inch rifles on the Merrimac. The force of the shot was so great that it forced the rifle of the Merrimac clear across her deck against the other side. It killed six men and wounded a number of others.
