COURTESY TO A SICK MEMBER Bill by Van de Vanter is Advanced

on Calendar and Passed. OLTMPIA. Wash. March 2.—(Special.)— The real work of the Legislature was completed about 3 o'clock tills afternoon, when the House and Senate passed their lest bills and began the consideration of when the House and Senate passed their last bills and began the consideration of only such measures as had passed both houses, but had been amended by one or the other within the preceding few hours. The House ceased to follow the regular order of business promptly at noon, in accordance with a resolution passed restates that no bills would be acted on after that hour. The Senate worked until 1 o'clock.

A suspension was secured of this rule however, to mable each House to pick out one or two bills on the calendar. One of these was a bill drawn by Benator Van who, it was announced, was by variety, who, it was amounteed, was lying at death's door, as the result of a relapse. The bill bears the name of Hammer as the author, but it was Van de Vanter's bill, and the House consented to advance it on the calendar and passed it. The bill is of importance to Skagit and Snohomish Counties, and enables drain-age districts to extend their boundaries.

Goods Delivered to Lumbermen.

Prior to noon the friends of the railway commission made good on the last two of the lumbermen's bills that were in the contract by the terms of which the rail-way commission bill passed. To reach them it was necessary to advance the bills on the calendar, but this was ac-complished, the commission men and lum-bermen voting together. Both are Senate bills. One requires railway companies to weigh cars loaded with rainy weather particularly, in adding to the weight of the lumber or shingle cargo, while the trip through the mountains adds gravel and rocks to the load. The bill also requires the companies to weigh the cars separately and at a standatill. The the bill requires companies to weigh the side and end stakes used in holding the lumber cargo to the flat cars as car weight, and not cargo weight. A fight against both these bills was waged by Houston and defended by Fal-coner. The bills were passed.

Fair Fund 'Is Swelled The transfer of $7365 from the St. Louis Fair fund to the Lewis and Clark Fair fund was accomplished by the passage of the Senate bill by the House and the House passed the other bill requested by the Fair Commission, which prohibits scalping of railway tickets.

The bill appropriating $5000 for expenses of litigating the boundary dispute between Washington and Oregon passed.

A total of 24 House bills were passed by the Senate. Among them is Black-more's bill changing the name of School for Defective Youth to the State School for the Deaf and Blind. This change was made desirable by the passage earlier in the session of a bill creating a new school for the feeble-minded at Medical Lake, to which the feeble-minded inmates of the Vancouver school will be transferred.

Anti-Graft Bill Passed.

What is known as the anti-graft bil was among the House bills that passed the Senate. It prohibits employes from receiving presents for favors given or work done and is intended to do away with the increasing practice of making gifts to purchasing agents by those from whom articles or goods may be purchased. It includes within its pro-visions public officers and their em-

Hint That Kuykendall Had a Personal Interest in Drain Normal School When He Left Chair to Support on Floor.

SALEM, Or., March 9 .- (Special )-Referendum petitions demanding that the $1,000,000 appropriation bill be submitted to a vote of the people were circulated in Salem today, and, strange as it may they received the signatures many citizens. Because holding up the appropriation bill will hurt Salem more than any other part of the state it has been thought that no petitions for the referendum would be circulated here, and, if circulated, that they would receive few signatures

This supposition was not well founded. though it is still believed that the referen dum movement will have less encourage ment here than in other parts of the state. are chiefly men who have been advocates of retrenchment in public expenditures and reduction of taxes. Men who took a prominent part in the citizens' forced a reduction of expenses until the city lived within its income are alding ation bills. They are not opponents of the four-normal-school system alone, but believe the Legislature was extravagant in many ways and that the disapproval of the people should be shown.

These men object to the log-rolling method of passing appropriation bills, by which the Legislature made up omnibus bills which it was thought the Governor would veto and the people would not vote

Men who favor the referendum listen to the statement that holding up the appropriation bill will cost $100,000 in payment of interest and increased cost of supplies, and reply that 'It will be worth all it costs. The Legislature must be taught some time that this way of doing business won't go, and it won't cost any more to do it now than some other year.'

While the initiative method of settling the Normal School question meets with approval among men best informed upon state affairs, the leaders in the referen dum movement refuse to see in that a reason why they should deelst in their effort to defeat the omnibus appropriation bill. The fact that the friends, the Normal Schools express themselves as favorable to the initiative plan only serves to make the referendum leaders more determined, for they do not believe the friends of the Normals would help the initiative movement if it were sired to speak in opposition to raising the appropriations for the normal schools. Before the bill passed the House. In the first instance, the proposed appropria-tions were cut down about $30,000. In the Senate the figures were put back to the amounts the ways and means committee recommended. When the bill went back to the House for concurrence in the Senate amendments, Smith wanted to opnose concurrence, but was not recognized. In response to his demand, his written protest against the refusal to recognize him was entered in the House journal. -It is now alleged that if the raise in the appropriations had been discussed the House would have refused to concur.

There have been reforms in the manner was the practice to make all the ap-ropriations in one bill. At the last two sions the appropriations were separated to three bills, and at this session seven ills were prepared. Since the people ave secured the referendum power and nanifest a willingness to use it, it is mile certain that no more omnibus ag

Senator G. C. Brownell—I voted against the appropriation bill, as I thought the appropriations were altogether too heavy for a state having a population of less than 500,000. While I would be in favor of an extra session and be willing to attend without pay or mileage, still it might be a good idea, if it were not for the expense, to let the people use the referendum and sit down once for all on the extravagant appropriations that are made every year. Many of these are absolutely unnecessary, unjust and an outrage on the taxpaying public. on in any event. They say:
"You made every effect to induce the egislature not to pass the bill to which objection is made, and the responsibility does not rest upon you. After deliberately ignoring your wishes, the members have no right to ask you to call them together

Governor Chamberlain, however, take the view that if the Legislature will meet without expense to the state and pass laws which will prevent the state insti-tutions here from being crippled for want of funds, it will be for the best interests of the state to call a special session though he does not say that he will call a session. He may conclude that the in-terests of the state will be best subserved by letting the people vote upon the bill as the Legislature passed it at the regu-Representative Kay, of Marion County,

Representative Kay, of Marion Caunty, who fought the appropriations for four Normal Schools, says he is willing to sign a petition to the Governor to call a special session. The J. C. Ayer Co. Will Print Formulas of Medicines on Bottle

Having heard that the J. C. Ayer company had decided to give to the public the complete formula of each of its medicines, we interviewed the treescurer and general manager, Dr. Charles H. Stowell, in order to ascertain if this was true. Dr. Stowell said that it certainly was true, and that it was simply the conclusion of a plan which he had been working upon for a long time. the conclusion of a plan which he had been working upon for a long time.

When asked what effect it would have upon the proprietary medicine business if all houses were obliged to publish their formulas, he said, in his opinion, it would favorably affect the saie of all those medicines founded upon merit, all those preparations that were genuine medicines. On the other hand, he believed just as strongly that it would mean the complete ruin of frauds, fakes, and swindles.
