Scott Sues Insurance Company.

ALLEGES BROKEN CONTRACT

Corporation Declares It Finds Shortage.

IT NOTIFIES HIS SURETY

Interesting Fight in the Courts Promised to Determine If Corporation May Change Its Policy Towards Agents.

Blair T. Scott, ex-manager of the Washington Life Insurance Company, is in New York City instituting suit against the company for alleged breach of contract. An inspector of the company has just left Portland for New York City after making the statement that there is a shortage of $400 in Mr. Scott's accounts. Mr. Scott has resigned his position, and Harry B. Scott, his brother, who also held a position with the company here, has been discharged and is at present on a health trip in California. Such is the present aspect of the trouble between Blair T. Scott and his brother on the one side, and the Washington Life on the other.

Friends of Mr. Scott tell a plausible story in his defense. Scott had a contract with the Washington Life which made his earnings dependent on the amount of business done by the Portland branch. Mr. Scott applied his energies to such an extent that business fairly rolled into the office and money into Mr. Scott's coffers.

Change in Company's Policy.

Recently the more important life insurance companies announced that they were going to adopt a new policy, which would change contracts with agents and divert the larger part of the earnings of branch offices into the pockets of the companies. In other words, they began to realize that the agents and managers had too much of a good thing under their present contracts and were making more money than the companies desired they should make. It was apparent that these companies were willing to allow the agents and managers to make a great deal of money while the business was being gathered, but desired the lion's share of the profits after this work was done.

The Washington Life was one of the companies who announced this change of policy. Some of the managers and agents let the matter pass as a matter of course. Others refused to deliver their contracts. Blair T. Scott was one of these. He told the Washington Life that the contract had been made in good faith and that if there was money in it for him he ought to get it, especially as it was his energy that caused the success of the business in Portland and vicinity.

The Washington Life came back at Mr. Scott. The company alleged that he had not adhered closely to the rules and regulations of the company, that he had discounted premiums for the sake of getting business and did so contrary to the rules as laid down for managers of districts. They further alleged that he did not follow the rules of the company, and that as these agents were laboring under Mr. Scott's policy, they were liable for the breach of discipline. It was further alleged that monthly reports were not made, and were padded by Blair T. Scott, and that his brother, Harry B. Scott, was aiding in all this work.

Account Held Up.

Recently Mr. Scott sent a monthly report to the home office of the Washington Life, which was padded with the provisions of his contract with the company and not in accordance with the company's announced change of policy regarding their position with agents. The company refused to honor the report and held it up, writing to Mr. Scott for an explanation at the same time stating that the report was padded. At this time Mr. Scott had on hand $400 belonging to the company. When he received the company's reply he refused to forward the money, alleging that the company, under the old contract still in force, owed him more than that amount. Other letters passed, and Mr. Scott gave up his position with the company. At the same time the company sent an inspector to look over the accounts and books in the Portland office.

This inspector was Superintendent Vermilyea, of the New York branch. He came to Portland, inspected the books, stated to his company that there was a shortage of $400, and it is alleged, discovered other gross irregularities which he did not make public.

Bondmen Are Notified.

On February 22, Mr. Scott directed a letter to the National Surety Company, of New York, his bondmen, telling them that the Washington Life people had violated their contract with him, that he had refused to abide by their new regulations, and that they had refused to honor his regular statement, wherefore he had held up the sum of $400 on hand pending a settlement. He alleged in this letter that the company owed him money in excess of that sum.

On the same day Superintendent Vermilyea reported to the home office that there was a shortage, giving all other information he had on hand. Both letters reached New York City on February 25. On the day following, the Washington Life notified the National Surety Company that it had discovered a shortage of more than $400 in Mr. Scott's accounts, and that the National Surety Company, as Scott's bondmen, would be held responsible.

Scott's Brother Discharged.

About this time a letter came from the home office of the Washington Life, removing Harry B. Scott, who had been associated with his brother in the business. Harry B. Scott left at once for a trip through California. He is expected to return to Portland during the coming week, and has stated that he would go from here to his home in Pittsburg, Pa.

The National Surety Company directed its attorneys in Portland to investigate the affair. Murdoch and Moser are the attorneys. Blair T. Scott was conferred with, and almost immediately left for New York City, with the avowed intention of commencing suit against the Washington Life people to recover the amount he alleges is due him, and to get compensation for the breach of contract, which he avers has caused him loss of money and annoyance. Mr. Scott has advised friends in this city that the suit is progressing and that he will return to Portland about the last of the present month to attend to matters at this point. The suit is expected to be a lively one, and agents of other companies are watching it closely, as it may determine whether such contracts will hold in court and whether agents and managers are obliged to accept change of policy on the part of the company. It may also be shown whether managers may discount premiums against the company's orders so long as they do it without loss to the company in money. On the other hand, the insurance companies will probably fight the case hotly, as a verdict in favor of Mr. Scott might serve to give trouble with other managers and agents and prevent the companies from carrying out their change in policy.

In the meantime the office of the Washington Life in this city is in charge of the stenographer and bookkeeper, who has been in the office for years and is well acquainted with the routine of the business. A new manager is expected from the home office at an early date.

NO CLOSED DRAWS.

Bridge Controversy Seems About Settled.

The demonstration given by the rivermen that they could and would aid in the avoidance of long delays to bridge traffic has had the effect of settling the late controversy and agitation raised by some of the citizens. It is not thought now that any further attempt will be made to enforce the closing of the bridges for any specified time during the day and the rules prepared by the steamboat owners under the guidance of their captains and pilots in regard to approaching the bridges are being put into effect.

County Judge Webster, with the purpose of adjusting the matter with fairness to both sides, has considered the question of closing the bridges very carefully and, while averse to expressing any decision at this time, it is to be seen that he thinks favorably of the proposal proposed by the rivermen. When interviewed yesterday, he said:

"I cannot say yet just what definite action will be taken in regard to the bridges, and it will be some little time before we announce our decision. We do not want to do anything that will place a severe hardship on any one and will therefore not decide hastily."

"Will you give the suggestion of the rivermen a trial?"

"That I cannot answer until the matter has been talked over with the Commissioners," was the reply.

Will Furnish Relief.

"But do you not think that this proposed action of the rivermen will furnish a great measure of relief?"

"That I cannot answer until the matter has been talked over with the Commissioners," was the reply.

"I certainly think it will. In fact, it has been demonstrated that such is the case in the past few weeks, and I am inclined to think that it would prove to relieve the delays on the bridges to a very great extent. I think that in all probability this remedy may be given a trial. You understand, of course, we are not anxious to close the bridges if it will work a serious hardship on river commerce, but yet at the same time we want to help the people who have to cross the bridges. We must recognize that both sides have rights."

Thinks Controversy Ended.

C. F. Swigert, who is a strong opponent to closed bridges, said:

"I am glad that the matter has been adjusted, as anticipated. I say adjusted, because I think the controversy is ended. The rivermen have demonstrated that they can materially lessen the delays occasioned by open draws, and if they will only make the people who use the bridges to a very great extent, I think that in all probability this remedy may be given a trial. You understand, of course, we are not anxious to close the bridges if it will work a serious hardship on river commerce, but yet at the same time we want to help the people who have to cross the bridges. We must recognize that both sides have rights."

Captain A. B. Graham, speaking for the rivermen, is pleased with the outcome. He affirms the willingness and the determination of all rivermen to aid in every possible way to avoid delays to the bridge traffic, and only asks that the people should bear in mind that the river work is performed under conditions of the weather and current.

"I am glad," he said, "the people will see that we are doing all in our power to avoid inconvenience to them."

Rules for the Boats.

Instructions to captains and pilots of freight and passenger vessels, and signals for bridge draws at Portland, Ore.:

First—Weather and water conditions favorable and signals for draw closed.

Second—When a vessel is in position to pass through, if for any cause you are delayed after signal has been given, reverse signal, then inform bridge tender to close the draw.

Third—When a vessel has passed through the draw and an approaching vessel would cause unnecessary delay, do not signal, but wait until approaching vessel has passed, as draws will not remain open longer than five minutes at one time.

Fourth—Remember at all times, to avoid unnecessary delays to bridges, the interests of others must be considered and respected.

SEEN FROM THREE VIEWPOINTS

Leading Economists Discuss President's Railroad-Rate Policy.

BOSTON, March 10.—The President's Railroad Policy was the general subject of discussion at the dinner of the Economic Club of Boston tonight. The principal speakers were Judge Peter S. Grosscup, of Chicago; President David Wilcox, of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad Company, and Interstate Commerce Commissioner Charles A. Prouty. Each commented at length upon the President's views regarding the regulation of interstate commerce rates. Mr. Prouty defended the proposed National legislation, Mr. Wilcox vigorously opposed the interference of the Government in the rate question and declared it impossible for a small body of men at Washington to properly settle what the railroad rates of the country should be. In conclusion, Mr. Wilcox said:

The remedy lies in the vigorous enforcement of existing statutes, which will prevent rebates and discriminations, and resort by the Commission directly to the courts without dilatory preliminaries, so as to secure expeditious legislation by only one branch of the Government which is qualified to administer justice and determine the rights of property."

Mr. Grosscup said he saw serious danger in the whole question unless it was handled delicately, not only by President Roosevelt, but the railroad men.
