Street-Car Ethics.

PORTLAND. March 29 .- (To the Editor)-Very little while suggestions are made in the press as to street-car ethics, and some neo suggestions are good. A day or two of these suggestions are good. A day or two ago a visitor to the city deplored the habit some of the ladius have of waiting until the car has absolutely stopped before they start to the getting-off end of the car, and thus detain all the other passengers. This is all wrong, and, while every lady flouid so com-port herself in public that also will not fail down, yet she is often seen striving a little to much to maintain a displifed appearance in Portland street-cars.
