Gigantic Robbers Praised for Liberal Gifts to Churches-Christianity Must Enter Into Industry and Trade.

COLUMBUS, O., April 2-Rev. Washington Gladden, D. D., of the Council of Congregational Churches, preaching at the First Congregational Church today on "The Christians of Today," said: "The Christian of today is beginning to get a new idea of what it means to carry his religion into his business; he has found out that it signifies an earnest ef-fort to make his business not only a means of gain, but an instrumentality of

'Andrew Carnegie said some years ago for instance, that a man might be as selfish as he pleased in the accumulation of a fortune, if he would only be benevolent in the distribution of the fortune after it was made.

"That is not the best theory of the business man's responsibility. His great-est opportunities for benevolence are which come to him in his business. It is while he is making his fortune, not after it is made, that he must prove himself a Christian

"Giffs, no matter how munificent, of money that has been heaped up by ex-tortion and trickery are not Christian benefactions. Some of the most gigantic robbers that the world has ever known men who have accumulated hundreds of millions by wicked methods—are by some persons praised and flattered for their liberal gifts to churches, colleges and missions. Such an estimate does not represent the Christianity of today.

The Christianity of today distinctly sees that the Christianization of the great realm of industry and traffic is the most urgent problem now before it. It is a tremendous undertaking, but not too arduous for the all-conquering grace of him who has banished infanticide, abolslavery and lifted women to an equality with man. "The state is just as truly a divine institution as the church is, and the Governor, the Mayor, the superintendent of police, the member of the Legislature or the City Council or the School Board is just as much a minister and servant of PARIS BUYS RUSSIAN BONDS London Stock Exchange Not Affected by Contradicted Peace Rumors.

LONDON. April 2.-Business on the Stock Exchange last week was very quiet, attention being largely occupied with the aettlement. The Japaness loan received much attention. Saturday evening ended the second day of age case of Delia B. Keen, of Cedar Mill, against Susan Reynolds Keen for $25,000 damages for alienation of the affections of her former husband, W. B. Keen. Testimony was introduced by the plaintiff showing that Keen had left his wife and gone with Mrs. Keen No. 2 when she had been widowed but a very short time. The plaintiff admitted that she had frequently had little disputes and alter-cations with her bushand, but that they COTTON-DEALERS IN TROUBLE had always patched up their difficulties until after Mrs. Reynolds had hired Keen to look after her business. She testified that she had acquiesced in her husband making a trip to Wasco, Sherman County with the widow, and said that she was willing because it would give Keen a chance to see the country free of ex-pense. Letters from Mrs. Keen No. 1 to Keen were introduced by the defense which went to show that she wanted the husband to come home, Keen and his wife had a large family, and after the death of Reynolds Mr. Keen was the subject of much criticism was held and tar and feathers left at the home of Mrs. Reynolds. ST. PHTERSBURG, April 2.-(12:50 M.)-Emperor William's speech at Tangier and prospective developments therefrom engross the attention of the Russian newspapers almost to the exclusion of peace discussion. Her treaty relations with France and the friendly attitude of Germany during the war place Russia in an awkward position. Neverthe-less, the difficulties of floating farther loans in France and the absence of assistance, on which unofficial Russia at least had vaguely counted, incline the scales somewhat in favor of the western neighbor whose benevolent neutrality and frontier piedge enabled Russia to place in the field a Manchurian army so well

SIMPLON TUNNEL IS OPENED Swiss and Italians Embrace in the World's Longest Bore.

ROME, April 2-The Simplen tunnel, he longest in the world, was inaugurated this morning, when from the Swiss and Italian sides the first trains passed through, meeting at the center, where there was an Iron door which originally prevented the overflow of a torrent of hot water and which was today opened for the first time. The weather at the entrance to the tunnel was Springlike, though the surrounding mountains were covered with snow, but once inside the the temperature became very high. Engineer Bradau, who had directed the work on the tunnel, conducted the Italian train, which part of the way was lighted by miners with lanterns.

The train from the Italian end was the first to reach the Iron door, but a little later the train from the Swiss side was heard on the other side of the door. There was a brief time spent in communicating through the door by means of hammer-ing, and finally the door was knocked down amidst frantic applause and cries "Long live Switzerland" and "Long tally." Bands played the Italian royal march and the Swiss anthem, and the two parties embraced and kissed each other. Engineer Bradau shook hands with Engineer Rosemund, the director of the work on the Swiss side, and the Italian Bishop Noveara embraced the Swiss latter then preached a short sermon in the course of which he said: "The church blessed progress." In the name of God he then blessed the tunnel.

CROWDS IN THE FAIR GROUNDS Thousands Spend Sunday at the Exposition.

Sunday crowds never tire of walking about the Fair grounds and staring up at the fast-bolted buildings. The citizens of Portland are proud of their Exposition and weekly they go out to admire. About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, long enough after church was out to give the revival-stricken city time to eat luncheon or a midday dinner, the throng began to come and the turnstiles clicked off the men, women and children until there were 5000 within the gates.

They came and remained, sat on the road staff railings and the grass and told one another what fun it will be when the gondolas are on the lake this Summer and the moon comes over the water, and gondollers sing "Finiculi, finicula," and they agree with him that this world was never made for melancholy, but for fun and folly. But there was not even a Trail as yet and the Venetian Adriatic effect had still to be dreamed. There were, however, plenty of real things to be seen, the best f all, the people who came to look Remington's cowboys was about the first thing the crowd came across as it wandered into the grounds. "Is not that silly?" said one young lady several weeks ahead of the season, in blue down to her stockings. "But I sup ose they were riding after Indians when comebody took a snapshot of them. Oh, ho, look at the horse on this side. Doesn't he look like the tin ones they have on top of barns, with all his feet in the air, and a stick holding him up?

"But I don't think that's very nice." she rattled on, pulling at the arm of her escort in modish brown, "What's this? The property of the State of Oregon, State Commission, What's all that nonsense? That is not the name of the building, is it? Liberal Arts, you say? What are they? Liberal, liberal? It must have something to do with tariff or labor unions, hasn't it? Now, quit laughing at I don't know, I was only guessing. But the misses in blue or in any color did not form the bulk of the crowd or anywhere near half. Their conversation was interesting, especially when some of them what the California missions had to do with the four wings of the Cali-fornia building. But when they heard that claret punch would be served on the inside, they concentrated their attention on that and on themselves and were

The fathers of the families with dressed and starched small images of themselves and their mothers who would rather have been at home, these were the fel-lows who walked about with conscious civic pride, and said: "We are going to have as good an Exposition as anybody." They had been to church and had dined. Business was good with them and it promised to be better on account of the Fair itself. They could afford to lean back on their heels and speak of "our Exposition." They belonged to the body Exposition." They belonged to the body of Portland citizens who once in their lives had gone into a public enterprise with enthusiasm and now saw it on the verge of a success far beyond anything they had dreamed of. They looked about the grounds, perfectly satisfied and ex-pressed the belief that it was a good When the sun popped down behind the hills and the shadows from the buildings were cast over the lake, these good citi-gens walked slowly and comfortably home. Some had to crowd into streetcars, but the public is used to that and does not mind. The dominant feeling in every breast was pride at what "we" did.
