President Heimrich Says That by July 1, Thirty Miles More Track Will Be Ready for Operation West of Deschutes.

SEATTLE Wash., April 14 - (Special.)-John Helmrich, president of the Great Southern Rallway, which yesterday deposited a $5,000,000 trust deed with the Washington Trust Company, of Seattle, said today of his building plans;

The Great Southern plans an imme diate construction of 45 miles of road, and 4s permitted under the terms of its articles of incorporation to extend into California and Washington. An extension as far as Bend, Or., is certain to be made as soon as the immediate construction work is completed. "Grading for 30 miles of track is completed, and the steel is on the ground for track-laying. Terminal work at The Dalles is under way, and by July 1 we will be ready to operate 30 miles of track. This extension will take the line as far south as Doror, the heart of a rich agricultural district. It has been estimated that it costs $2 per ton to move wheat out of that district, and the last crop reports showed 1,700,000 bushels raised annually. In addition, the district is rich in horticultural possibilities.

"The new line runs out of The Dalles west of the Deschutes River, with a maximum grade of 1.5. The surveys of the engineering department farther south show this grade will be decreased. highest point the new line will reach is of Stock Subscribed at Once. CENTRALIA, Wash., April 15 .- (Spe cial.)-The mass meeting that was to have been called for Wednesday night of this week to consider the electric railroad proposition did not meet. The promoters of the company stated that if Centralia was made the terminus of the road they would expect to have $50,000 worth of stock subscribed in Centralia at once. The committee of the Commercial Club that was to call the meeting decided that it wanted more time to consider. Centralis already has a better proposition in the field, and one that will probably get a road to the Big Bottom before any of the electric lines materialize. This is the line of the Eastern Railway & Lumber Company. This company has not made its intentions known, but it is said by Mr. Wilson, who is now building a two-mile spur from the Eastern's track two-mile spur from the Eastern's track to his coal mines, that the company has a scheme under way by which they can finance a movement to extend their road into the Big Bottom country, measures to keep it in the bill, the other House and the Governor must yield or, taking the other alternative, leave the state without the necessary cash to pay current expenses, while the money taxed from the people for that purpose lies idly in the freasury. To make such an altermative contingency an impossibility in this state guard against the looting of the treasury, thus safeguarding the welfare of the people, this clause was wisely incorporated into the superme and fundamental law. If strictly observed, it would go very far towards accomplishing its obvious and salutory purpose, and there would now be no necessity to order the referendum on this bill. Let it be remembered that every member of the last unlamented Legislative Assembly, before entering upon the duties of his office, recorded a solemn cath to support the constitution, including this provision. Yet it seems that neither their obligations as loyal citizens to obey and support the constitution, the supreme law, their official oaths, deference to the well-known will of their constitution, the form of the last under the provision in plain and flagrant diregard of this constitutional labilition.

I do not charge that all those members who I do not charge that all those members who wited to engraft these unconstitutional appropriations in the offl perjured themselves, but only that they violated their eaths.

Defending this bill in The Oregonian of March 25, Squire Parrar, Marton County's Senator, calls the institutions for which the appropriations complained of were made "established state institutions," and "legitimate state institutions." His evident contention being that they being state institutions the earne as the asylum, penitentiary, reform and blind school; that, therefore, appropriations for their support was properly and constitutionable the same as the support was properly and constitution bill as legitimate "current expenses of the state."

Are these schools really "state institutions."

it was a violation of the constitution to put them in the bill making appropriation for these purposes. If these institutions are really public institutions and entitled to be provided for in the general appropriation bills, as the asylum, penitentiary, reform school, etc., and traveler and trailroads and street-car then, in the language of the Supreme Court, the Legislature has no power to provide for their maintenance at any other place than the sample of the control of the contr
