

CUPID'S ARROWS STRIKE VICTIMS

Portland Girl Becomes Bride of William E. Empey in Los Angeles.

ROMANCE ENDS IN WEDDING

Lillian Gallagher Visits the Metropolis of Southern California, Where She is Led to Altar by Armour's Agent.

That delicious little rascal who is usually pictured with wings and a bow and arrow, and who is known to the world as Cupid, has ensnared a Portland girl. Even as a child she was a wanderer in strange places, so Cupid, who tradition says, is blind, has led this Portland girl through the fantastic world of romance and back into the world of reality, where things are of a rosy hue because of the journey.

Cupid's victim is pretty Lillian Gallagher, daughter of M. J. Gallagher, United States Inspector of Customs, who resides with his family at 118 Bancroft street. About a month ago Cupid whispered in Miss Gallagher's ear: "You better go and visit friends in Los Angeles." And then, in a quick aside, Cupid talked to himself something in this fashion: "I've had your case on my docket for the past five years, but rush of business has prevented me from attending to it. Now I'll make up for lost time." Miss Gallagher listened to Cupid's hint and hesitated. Being a woman of course hesitancy meant loss. Cupid won.

William E. Empey's Recollection.
About the same time Cupid whirled away on his baby wings to Los Angeles, and there he entered the apartments of William E. Empey, and caused that gentleman to clean out his trunk. While Mr. Empey was engaged in doing this he found a mice nest in one corner, built out of slips of paper chewed from old letters that had been at the bottom of the case. The mice nest suggested a home and comfort and all those things. Mr. Empey removed the mice, and then, out of curiosity, began to examine the nest. In it he found a bit of paper. There was scrawled upon it a remnant of a signature. The signature brought to Mr. Empey's mind thoughts of other days. He remembered that a little less than five years before, when he was treasurer of the Alhambra Theater, of San Francisco, he met a Miss Lillian Gallagher, of Portland, Or., who was visiting friends in the city. They had taken a mutual liking to each other and had corresponded for a time, but Cupid had been too busy to bring about a culmination of the match. When Mr. Empey remembered this he began to think. The more he thought the more he concluded he would like to meet Miss Gallagher again. He sat down to his desk and wrote to the girl. In time he received an answer in Los Angeles, where he had removed on account of business duties.

They Meet in Los Angeles.
Without telling Mr. Empey that she was going to Los Angeles, Miss Gallagher again. He sat down to his desk and wrote to the girl. In time he received an answer in Los Angeles, where he had removed on account of business duties.

Escaperoing is the finest product of the Scuppernon, a native grape, identified with the earliest settlement of the country. It is a delicious, refreshing white wine, moderately sweet, but with sufficient natural fruit acidity to make a perfect table wine, having an exquisite fruit aroma and "bouquet." W. J. WARSHIPS AT FAIR
Pacific Squadron Cruisers to Be Sent. TO TAKE TURNS IN HARBOR
Secretary of Navy Morton Advises Exposition That Various Vessels Will Be Ordered Here During Summer.

That several of the warships of the Pacific squadron will be in port during the Lewis and Clark Exposition, is the intelligence communicated to the Exposition headquarters yesterday by Secretary of the Navy Morton. He does not state just what boats will be sent here, as he is unable to decide at this time. Emergencies may arise that will necessitate a redistribution of the fleet, and the only thing that Secretary Morton is able to state with certainty is that several of the finest cruisers will be sent here for stays of varying length.

This announcement is especially pleasing to President Goode and his staff, as it was thought for a time that warships were going to be at a premium as far as the Exposition was concerned. Recently orders were issued to the United States steamship Boston to come here for the opening ceremonies, but as that was the only war vessel to receive such orders it was feared that the others were to be needed elsewhere in different cruises.

War vessels in the harbor will be an unusual attraction and something entirely new to expositions. As comparatively few people have ever had the experience of seeing one of Uncle Sam's fighting vessels, their presence will be especially interesting. While in port the cruisers will keep "open house," and visitors will be welcome at all times. Small launches will afford communication with the mainland, as the boats will anchor well out in the river. The position of the boats in port will leave them in plain view of the Exposition grounds. A number of pleasant functions will be given in honor of the officers and crews of different boats.

RIOT AT AN OMAHA SCHOOL

Scholars Try to Keep Japanese From Entering the Building.
OMAHA, April 17.—The hundred pupils of Lowell School in South Omaha, today revolted as the result of the presence of two Japanese boys in the school. The two Japanese are sons of strikebreakers at the packing-houses, who were brought to this city during the strike a year ago. A number of the larger pupils lined up and refused to permit others to enter the school buildings. A force of police was called and it required an hour to restore order.

Members of the Graduating Class Receive Their Diplomas as Doctors of Medicine

The commencement exercises of the 1905 graduating class of the Medical Department, University of Oregon, were held in the High School Assembly Hall last night in the presence of many friends and guests of the graduates.

Judge M. C. George, who delivered the annual address took occasion in a humorous way to point out to the new doctors just what was expected of them and what they might expect, and incidentally advised the audience of what they might expect from all doctors, including the graduates. To his mind the medical profession was the most learned of all, but he thought a trouble often found in the graduate was that he had acquired too much knowledge. "Still," the speaker said, "when he gets toned down and that does not take long, he is a mighty useful member of society and we are always glad to have him with us." Judge George then reviewed the history of medicine and surgery, showing its rapid development of late years and its effect on the world.

The degrees were conferred by Professor F. L. Campbell, president of the university, and as the black-gowned wearers of the mortar-board stepped up to receive their diplomas they were greeted with hearty applause. Dr. O. S. Einswanger in his presentation of the Saylor and the anatomy medals called attention to the high and unusual distinction achieved by Joseph A. Applewhite in having won both medals. The anatomy medal is given to the student securing the highest average in that branch of the science, while the Saylor medal is awarded to the student with the highest average in all classes. It is the first time in the history of the medals that both have gone to the same student.

In his charge to the graduates Dr. George B. Story urged a strict observance of the ethics of the profession and the necessity of further advancement by continuous study and thought. The valedictory was delivered by John C. Ross, M. D. The programme was interspersed with musical selections rendered by the Spizner-Konrad orchestra.

Those receiving degrees were: Joseph A. Applewhite, A. B.; R. S. Armes, J. B. Bilderback, Ph. G.; Robert Tilden Boals, Henry B. Day, Roscoe Field, Robert Griev, Albert Chester Hanson, Thomas W. Hester, B. S., LL. B.; Harvey O. Hickman, George Wright Hill, William Wilson Pratt Holt, A. B.; Jacob Frederick Hosch; E. Lloyd Irvine, Cora B. Lemon, Fred A. Llesuallen, Bertha Taylor Patton, Fred Peacock, Merritt Edmund Reitzel, John C. Ross, Thomas W. Ross, J. Howard Sively, Harry Archy Start, A. B.; Frederick George Ulman, Ph. G.; Glenn Wheeler, Percy Joseph Wiley.
