

CLUBBED BY A R DOLGEMAN

William Edelman Twice Snaps
Trigger of Revolver at Herman Carlson.

ARRESTED AS A DRUNK

Patrolman Knocks Him Down With
His Club and Angry Crowd
Surges About, Threatening
Carlson for His Act.

When William Edelman drew a revolver from his hip pocket, pressed the muzzle against Patrolman Carlson's abdomen and pulled the trigger, scores of spectators in the Plaza block thought they were about to witness a murder. Twice was the weapon snapped. Then the policeman laid his assailant low by a powerful blow from a club.

Edelman dropped his revolver. It was seized by R. H. Price, an expressman, just as Sheriff Word rushed up. An examination of the weapon proved it to be unloaded. Edelman soon regained his feet. There was a closing-in of the eye-witnesses to the struggle, and some of the crowd that surged about cried out against Patrolman Carlson, charging him with cruelty. Sheriff Word and Mr. Price turned to the crowd, explaining that the policeman had been attacked by Edelman with a revolver, and most of the people quieted down. There were some, however, who made a demonstration, following the policeman and his prisoner to police headquarters, where they complained to Captain Gritzmacher, commanding the day patrol. They charged that Carlson used undue force, but when the patrolman made his statement he was upheld in the action by the Captain and ordered back to his beat.

There may be further trouble, it is said, as some of Edelman's friends declare he was mistreated. A charge of disorderly conduct was lodged against the prisoner and he was placed in a cell of the City Jail. He will be arraigned today before Municipal Judge Hogue. "I found Edelman sleeping off a drunk on the grass in the Plaza block," said Patrolman Carlson. "I tapped him on the soles of his shoes and he leaped up, applying many vile epithets to me, and making ready to fight. I cautioned him to move on and avoid trouble, as I thought he was merely intoxicated. To my surprise he drew out a revolver and pressed the muzzle to my abdomen. I heard him snap the trigger and tried to take the weapon from him. I thought if he snapped it again I would be killed. I then resorted to my club to knock him down. I thought, of course, the revolver was loaded, and I think if I had drawn my revolver and shot him I would have been justified."

George Wickland, who rooms at 32 St. George Hotel, was an eye-witness of the affair. He declares that Carlson treated Edelman so roughly that he was justified in using any means to protect himself. He states that Edelman was asleep on the grass and the policeman tapped him on the feet to awaken him. This not bringing immediate effect, the policeman grasped Edelman by the collar and threw him violently backwards. Edelman, still only half awake and stunned, swore at Carlson slightly and at that Carlson began to beat him with his billy over the head. Wickland called on him to desist, but Carlson continued, and Edelman drew a revolver from his pocket and attempted to shoot. The policeman escaping began even harder to beat his victim till the bystanders were afraid he would break his head. In the scuffle one of Carlson's fingers was badly hurt. Edelman was uninjured, although he claims to have been beaten into insensibility. He is a waiter in a North Bend restaurant.

DENIES HE STOLE LUMBER

J. R. Havelly Sued for Carrying Off
70,000 Feet of Lumber.

J. K. Havelly, of Brooklyn, finds himself defendant in a lawsuit in Justice Waldemar Seton's court for the sum of $250, alleged to be due in a complaint filed by J. C. Burke, charging him with appropriating 70,000 feet of lumber. It is set forth in the complaint that Mr. Havelly did "unlawfully take and appropriate to his own use 70,000 feet of lumber stored on vacant ground between East Tenth and Eleventh streets, in November, 1904." Mr. Havelly in his answer contends himself with a sweeping denial of every allegation in the complaint, and demands that the case against him be dismissed, with costs and disbursements of the suit. The case will be tried out today.

It seems that Plaintiff Burke stored a quantity of second-hand lumber from some old buildings on grounds owned by J. A. Strowbridge, Jr., and the latter in an act of charity and goodness of heart, similar to that displayed by Artemus Ward when he said he was willing to sacrifice all his wife's relatives to save the Union, posted a notice on this pile of lumber, "Free wood." Inasmuch as wood costs money, this notice appealed very strongly to the attention of Mr. Havelly and possibly many others, and the lumber slowly disappeared, and hence Mr. Burke wants damages.
