

LITTLE, NAKED, DIRTY CANNIBALS

What Wakefield Has to Say of Igorrotes and the Exposition.

ARE NOT NEEDED AT FAIR

Director of Concessions Declares That Their Absence Will Not Be Noted So Far as Management Is Concerned.

It is not such a great loss after all, according to John Wakefield, director of concessions at the Exposition. Of course, it would be interesting to have the Igorrotes camped on the grounds to satisfy the curiosity of the patrons of the Exposition who might desire to see what their South Sea brethren looked and acted like, but they were nevertheless "dirty little naked cannibals" in the estimation of a majority of the board of directors, and would not be of a great advantage to the success of the Fair, as might be thought. The Fair is an assured success anyway, and therefore it is not necessary for the officials to bow to the mandates of any single concessionaire which makes it probable that the negotiations are at an end on the part of Dr. Hunt, Mr. Moody and the Fair Board.

"I think the whole thing is a scheme to get advertisement and thus tell the amusement managers of the country that the Igorrote Exhibit Company with 50 natives is in Seattle and ready for any good offers that may be made to the managers," explained Mr. Wakefield yesterday. "I think they have given Mr. Felder, who has been in Portland since last January expecting to have a share in the concession, the cold hand, and that the new company has been formed to that end," continued Mr. Wakefield.

"How about the $20,000 supposed to have been deposited here and the $500 in Manila for expenses which is said not to have reached Dr. Hunt?" was asked.

"I saw a copy of the original agreement between Mr. Hunt and Mr. Felder, and there was nothing said in it about those details," was the response.

"They say that you insist upon their depositing $20,000 in gold as a guarantee that they will fulfill their share of the contract, and that they consider the sum excessive," it was further suggested.

"We did not do anything," corrected Mr. Wakefield. "Last November it was stipulated in the original agreement in St. Louis that the sum should be deposited here as a surety that they would bring the men here on time. Now they have arrived with their men and such a request would be nonsense. Besides the terms of the original agreement were never lived up to and are not in force."

"Mr. Moody seemed to think that the Exposition could not get along without the village; that the Igorrotes would be of great benefit as a means of exploitation, and that he should not have to pay the bonuses asked of other concessionaires, all of which is a mistake. The Exposition is now an assured success and is not dependent on the attractions of any one concession for help. Eight months ago the Igorrotes would have been good for purposes of exploitation, but now the time is too late and, lastly, I do not see why the Igorrote company should not pay for its concession the same as the other citizens, who are to have attractions at the Fair."

Hunt and Moody are annoyed because they were required to pay 25 per cent of their gross earnings for the privilege of showing while the concession was offered to Felder for a year, as he suggested. There was silence at the other end of the line. "They have letters stating that the concession would better be secured through Felder because he could get it for 15 per cent when it would cost the others 25," was added.

"Has Other Offers."

"I don't know what letters they have or have not got, but the response I think it is a scheme to raise a big hullabaloo and have the fact that they are here advertised over the country. I understand that the concession was offered to Dundee and Thompson, the proprietors of Luna Park, at Coney Island, to show 50 Igorrotes there during the Summer. He also has been offered $1000 a week for 14 weeks to take the concession at Delmona Gardens, at St. Louis. It appears to me, therefore, that the Moody-Hunt combination has been formed to give Felder the cold hand and to make it look as if they men East for exhibition purposes. I think as a result of the advertising they will receive they will be sought by all the amusement managers of the country and the offers they will get will do away with any possibility of their coming to the Fair. The majority of the board does not think they would be a great benefit to the Exposition anyway, as they consider them a band of dirty little cannibals. Mr. Moody refused to accept the old contract, and President Deode told him to make a proposition, which he said he would do. They are not the only persons who can get Igorrotes, for we could have a village here by June 10 if we desired it, but I think the matter will be dropped."

Therefore visitors to the Exposition will not be able to wiggle their toes in union with the tom-tom's beat, or allow the screech of war or the rattle of death to plant cold chills upon their spines in opposition to the glare of the midsummer sun.

ALMOST APRIL'S RECORD

Thermometer Records Maximum of Nearly Eighty-Five Degrees.

With all the country beyond the Rocky Mountains half-frozen, Portland had yesterday one of the hottest April days in its history. The thermometer ran up all afternoon, and by 4:30 had reached a maximum height of 84.5. This was approaching the record for April, a temperature of 87 towards the very last of the month was recorded several years ago.

The morning was ideal, for Easter, and all the pretty frocks and hats which were to come out on the occasion appeared. The churches were filled at all services, and during the afternoon great crowds filled the trolley-cars to go to the Fair grounds and elsewhere.

Some of the wiser ones realized early that it was going to be pretty warm, so they got out of town and made the hillsides bright with the gaudy colors of their clothes. Summer had come, indeed, and even the gardens looked like June, with the budding roses and the petals of the wistaria flying in the air. All the flowers seemed to come at once in a rush, and

NO MORE LICENSES

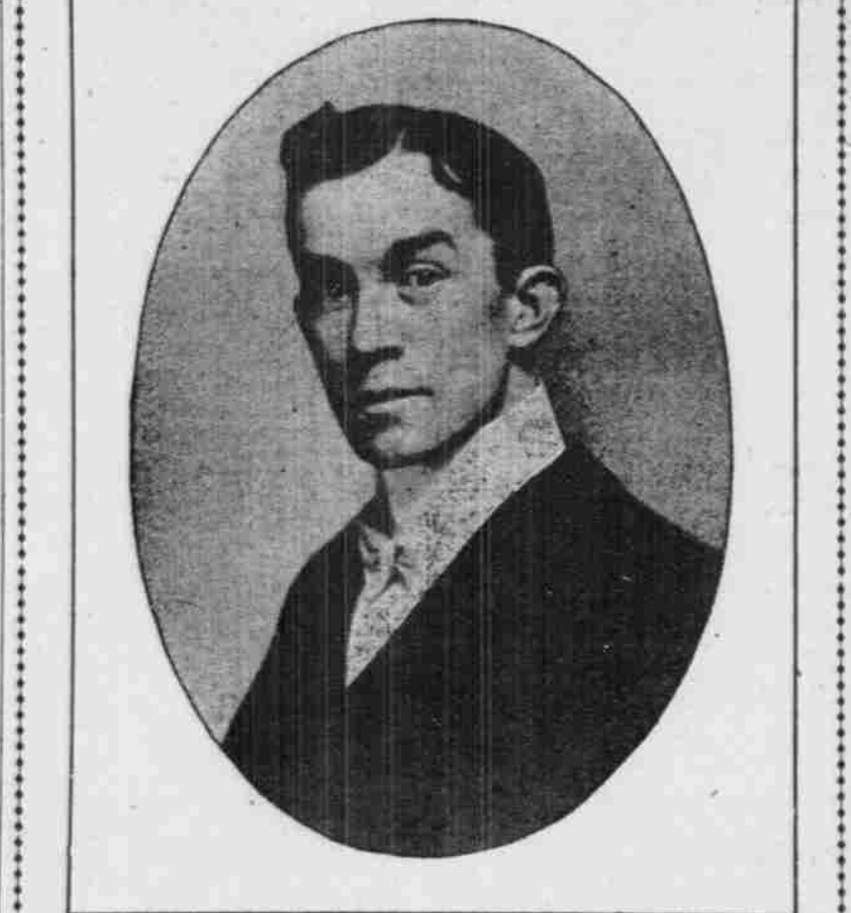

Councilmen Will Oppose an Increase of Saloons.

UNAWARE WHAT THEY DID

Express Surprise That Twenty-Seven Permits to Sell Liquor Near the Fair Grounds Had Been Granted by Them.

The story of granting 27 licenses to saloons within a small radius of the entrance to the Lewis and Clark Centennial grounds has caused a small sensation. Hardly anyone believed that so many permits to sell liquor had been issued, and even the City Councilmen were very much surprised lavished what is ordinarily scattered over the whole Spring upon the Easter Sunday.

WANT WOMAN INSPECTOR

Ladies Will Ask Board of Health to Provide Salary.

The ladies of the city who have been responsible for the crusade of cleanliness recently inaugurated among the grocery stores, meat and fish markets and the creameries of Portland will meet with the City Board of Health today to take up the recent action of the Council in passing Fiegl's ordinance providing for the appointment of a woman as meat inspector at a salary of $65 a month.

The members of the liquor license committee were asked yesterday about the issuance of more licenses, and three of them expressed themselves as being decidedly opposed to granting any more.

"You may say for me that I am not in favor of granting another license for a saloon near the Fair grounds," said Councilman Sherrett. "I was somewhat surprised to learn that so many had been granted. Although I have always attended the meetings of the liquor license committee and have probably signed all of those issued, I have paid but little attention to them further than to investigate their references. The people do not want so many saloons near the Exposition, and I shall not vote for another license, and I shall use my influence to persuade the other members of the committee also to refuse."

"I have not given the matter much thought," said Councilman Fiegl. "However, I want to be quoted as saying that no more licenses will be issued if I can help it. It is a shame that so many saloons are out there already, and I, for one, am willing to make an investigation of those established, and if a possible excuse can be found to cancel half of them. There ought not to be more than two or three within a mile of the main entrance to the Exposition. This Fair means too much to Portland to have a lot of visitors come here for a visit and leave with the idea that the city is composed principally of saloons."

"I don't think that the committee will grant another license," said Dr. Sandford Whiting. "It will not if my influence counts for anything. I think that too many have already secured licenses, and I shall vote against every application for a license to conduct a saloon near the Fair grounds."

"Many of the saloonkeepers who have secured the licenses for liquor-selling near the Fair grounds are strangers in Portland, and have come here with no intention of remaining long after the Exposition closes, consequently it is reasonable to suppose that they will not take the interest in conducting a place that men would who have made this city their home for years."

COURT TO DECIDE TUESDAY

Judge Bellinger Will Then Give His Opinion on Abatement Plea.

The land fraud situation will remain unchanged for another 24 hours, and neither Senator Mitchell, and his fellow defendants nor the Government attorneys will know until Tuesday morning the decision of Judge Bellinger in regard to the Mitchell plea of abatement.

Owing to the importance of the decision and the great number of cases cited in argument the court has decided to give its decision on Tuesday morning, instead of Monday as was at first announced.

Cherish Deeds, Not Bones.

PORTLAND, Or., April 23.—(To the Editor.)—"To live in the hearts of those we leave behind is not to die."

Why, in view of twentieth century enlightenment, should the bones of John Paul Jones (no poetry intended) be carried across the waters of the Atlantic from the secure and peaceful spot where they have lain for a century? There is something disgusting in the account of the digging up of his "remains" and the subjecting them to scrutiny and measurements, and all that a few poor bones may finally be deposited in this country. What's the difference, anyway? Do we cherish bones rather than deeds?

I do not believe that either sentiment or patriotism prompts such display. The patriotic American will always revere the name and deeds of John Paul Jones, and will not care where reposes his dust, and true sentiment finds its full fruition in the thought of him as one of the immortals.

Now, here comes one of the progressive, patriotic men of Portland, who wants the bones of Captain Lewis dug up, jolted across the Rockies and deposited in the city park. Nay, nay; let them lie in Oak Forest, where the trees sing an everlasting dirge. "What matters where the blossoms wither and die, the fruit followeth in due season; and if this digging up business continues, the cause of cremation will gain many new converts."

We love and cherish deeds, not bones, and if all that remains of mortality be safely buried, why disturb the thought that merciful nature has intended to carry on for a century or more? Nothing is lost, and can ever die, and true sentiment shudders at the thought of the desecration of the work of kindly nature. HELEN N. PACKARD.
