SEVEN BROTHERS MEET FOR FIRST TIME IN THIRTY-SIX YEARS

READING FROM RIGHT TO LEFT ARE THE SEVEN BROTHERS-W. H. COOPER, AGED 71 YEARS; D. J. COOPER, AGED 69; J. S. COOPER, AGED 64; J. C. COOPER, AGED 60; R. D. COOPER, AGED 55; J. E. COOPER, AGED 53, AND E. W. COOPER, AGED 53.

Seven brothers, hale and hearty, dined togethar for the first time in 36 years yesterday at the Imperial Hotel. They were here attending the session of the Oregon Development League. Their two sisters were present at the dinner, and around the table tales of years were told, and old incidents recalled. Although the ages of the "boys" range from 71 to 53 years, they were as playful and happy as children.

The brothers represent the Coopers, one of Oregon's most prominent families. All are delegates to the Development League, from various towns in the state. W. H. Cooper is aged 71. and is from Stayion, where he is engaged in the business of har-nessmaking. D. J. hain from The Dalles. He is aged 40, and is a farmer.

J. S. Cooper, the well-known independence banker, is aged 64 and has the dis-tinction of being a member of the legislature. J. C. is aged 60 and is a surveyor at McMinnville. R. D. is a hopgrower at Independence, aged 55. J. E. is a stockman at Albany. His age is 55. E. W. is J. E.'s twin, and is engaged in the mercantile business at Independence.

All of the brothers are blest with excellent health, and are enjoying life to the fullest extent. They have lived in Oregon for from 37 to 42 years. Of five sisters born but two survive. They are Miss Patience Cooper of Portland and Mrs. E. J. Gildow of Silverton. The parents are buried at Zena, Or.

Frederick Cooper, great-grandfather of the brothers and sisters who met here yesterday, fought with General Washington through five enlistments, being with the army at the surrender of Cornwallis. W. H., D. J. and J. E. served in the Union Army during the rebellion. J. C. has held the office of department commander of the G.

during the rebellion. J. C. has held the ornce of department commander of the d. A. R. of Oregon. "We had a great time at luncheon today." said J. C. Cooper, spokeaman for the brothers, after the group was photographed. "The family had not been together before for thirty-six years. That was a long time ago, when father and mother were allve. We met then at Salem. We have all been moderately successful in business, and none of us have ever been in the penitentiary. J.
