Heard in the Rotundas

"The Grande Ronde Valley is one of the most peculiar sections of the state as well as one of the most profitable," remarked M. L. Causey, landowner and fruitraiser at La Grande while sitting in the lobby of the Imperial yesterday. "On both sides of us the country is covered with sage brush, that is, where it has not been cleared off, but formerly only 'rabbit'' brush grew in the Grande Ronde Valley. I was there over 20 years ago and there was not the least bit of sage brush while the country surrounding was covered with it.

"It may be a little hard to believe, but it is nevertheless true that the soil in the Grande Ronde Valley extends to a depth of more than 60 feet. The soil found at that depth is apparently the same as that found on the surface. It is very rich. It makes excellent farming land. It is very rarely, in other parts of the state, that you will find the soil extending downwards more than two or three feet. In boring for a well the other day a petrified log was encountred at a depth of 275 feet. The bark of the tree was petrified."

Mr. Causey is the citizen of La Grande who some time ago erected a glass building near the depot station at that city in which are displayed the many different varieties of fruits and grains raised in that vicinity. At night the building, which is 40 feet in length, is lighted with electricity so that the people passing through on the trains can see the exhibit. He owns several hundred acres in orchards and this Fall expects to plant fruit trees on 1000 acres more. They will be mostly apple trees.

"The Polk County delegates made quite a sacrifice to attend the Oregon Development League convention," remarked Walter Lyon, of the Independence West Side Enterprise, at the Imperial Hotel the other evening. "This is our busiest season up there in Polk County, and all of us are needed at home. The hops are just coming up, and nearly every man, woman and child in that county, who has no other work to do, has been pressed into service in the hopfields.

"Independence is growing as rapidly as any town in the state," continued Mr. Lyon. "So many houses are undergoing construction that the lumber yards are unable to supply the demands. There are lots of people living in tents who have been compelled to adopt this mode of living until they can produce lumber to have a residence erected. Most all the houses that are going up are frame. There have been several creditable business blocks built in Independence recently."

"We are going to hold a big reunion of the graduates of our school June 18 to 21 when we hold our Twenty-third Annual Commencement," remarked President E. D. Ressler of the Monmouth Normal school at the Imperial Hotel yesterday afternoon. "We expect to have at least 700 graduates attend the commencement and we are preparing to entertain and take care of that many. The graduates of the institution will be represented from every county and every town of importance in the state.

"Why, even the railroads are interested and we have been given to understand that those who attend the commencement will be given a reduction from the regular rates. We have been leading up to this affair for several months quietly informing the graduates of the school that such a reunion would be held and all those who have received our communications have become very enthusiastic. There are about 20 graduates of the Monmouth school in Portland and nearly all of them have promised to attend. W. D. Fenton, of Portland, who is a graduate of the school, will be one of our most prominent speakers. About 60 schoolars will graduate from our school this Spring."

"The Government always makes it an especial point to have all the exhibits installed and ready for display at the opening of any exposition it happens to participate in," remarked Milton Brown, chief special agent of the Treasury exhibit, at the Imperial Hotel the other night. "It was ready at the Paris, Buffalo, Chicago and St. Louis expositions, and you can feel assured that when the gates open for the Lewis and Clark Exposition the Government will be fully prepared and there will be no more work of installation to be done. The cars, loaded with exhibits, have been a little slow in arriving, but more are coming in every day so we have no reason to feel apprehensive so far as the Government is concerned."

Gladden Returns to Attack on Standard Oil.

ABHORS REBATE SYSTEM

In Addressing Congregational Clergy He Again Denounces Acceptance of Rockefeller's Money for Missions.

BOSTON, April 27.—Rev. Washington Gladden, of Columbus, O., moderator of the National Council of the Congregational Church of the United States, left for the West this afternoon after a day's visit in this city, during which he read a paper before a committee of clergymen in protest against the acceptance of a gift from John D. Rockefeller by the American Board. This address was made public today. In an interview Dr. Gladden said that he intended to carry on what he terms "a campaign of education" on the subject of receiving money for religious or missionary purposes as suggested by the Rockefeller gift.

Referring to the report that the American Missionary Association, the Congregationalist home mission organization, was about to receive money from Mr. Rockefeller, Dr. Gladden stated that he had just received a letter from President Bradford, of the association, in which the latter declared that money had not been solicited from Mr. Rockefeller nor had Mr. Rockefeller offered any.

Dr. Gladden answered several of the declarations made by the prudential committee on behalf of the American Board, repeating arguments previously made by him in interviews, particularly with reference to the contention that the money should not be accepted because of Mr. Rockefeller's connection with the Standard Oil Company, which, Dr. Gladden said, "is a matter of common knowledge and has frequently been convicted, sometimes out of its own mouth, of transgressions of the laws of the land.

"A Judge of the United States District Court was quoted as having denounced the Standard Oil Company's system of rebates as 'gross, illegal and inexcusable,' as being 'so wanton and oppressive that it could hardly have been accepted by an honest man having due regard for the rights of others.'"

Dr. Gladden reviewed at length the history of the Standard in various states, where he said there had been violations of the law, and, he asserted, "the company has played continually with stacked cards and loaded dice."

The company's alleged system of rebates was condemned as an "abhorrent practice," and Dr. Gladden added:

There is nothing more startling nor more ominous in American history than the fact that such a tremendous industry has been permitted to go on year after year with no interference by the Government. Of this kind of extortion Mr. Rockefeller has the credit of being the inventor.

We are asked why we single out this man (Mr. Rockefeller) for reprobation. If the answer has not already been given, it is enough to say that we did not single him out. It was the prudential committee who singled him out by soliciting his donation. We object to his donation. We object to his gift because it is now before us for judgment. It is said that there are others from whom a gift would be equally objectionable. Even if that were true, no gifts have been offered by these others, and it will be time to decide about them when they are offered. If we accept in our Christian work the alliance of the Standard Oil Company we can refuse no other alliance with oppressors and despoilers of the people. To say that we will not testify against this iniquity because others are nearly or quite as heinous is practically to say that we will testify against no iniquity; that in the presence of all this wrong we will shut our eyes and seal our lips. If the church wishes to regain its hold upon the people who heard its master gladly, it must keep itself free from such alliances as these. Failure here will be the costliest blunder the church ever made.

THE KNEISEL QUARTET.

Place They Hold in Hearts of Portland Music Lovers.

The following was taken from "The Morning Oregonian" after the last appearance of the Kneisel Quartet in Portland:

"The return of the Kneisel Quartet to Portland, under the auspices of the Musical Club, was the occasion of an ovation last night, such as is seldom witnessed here. It is now a year since this quartet, which stands without a peer either in the Old World or the New, made its first visit to this city. That it then won for itself a firm abiding place in the hearts of Portland music-lovers was proved indisputably by the warm demonstration last night. When the four artists appeared before the big audience crowded into the First Baptist Church, all in the room rose to their feet, a pretty compliment that is commonly extended them in Eastern cities. The deafening applause that rent the echoes of the building furnished additional proof of their welcome. Recalls followed quickly on one another's heels after the various numbers, until people forgot to count. The reception was certainly a most cordial one, such as indicated discerning enthusiasm on the part of the people of Portland."

They will be heard at the Marquam Grand Saturday night, direction Lois Steers-Wynn Coman. Seats now selling.

State Good Roads Meeting.

The State Good Roads Association will hold a convention at Pendleton May 16 and 17. R. W. Richardson, secretary of the National Good Roads Association, who is in Portland, having recently arrived from Omaha, Neb., will attend the convention and work in conjunction with the officials of the organization in making the meeting an unprecedented success.

John H. Scott, of Salem, president of the State Good Roads Association, yesterday decided upon the dates when the convention would be held. The large attendance from Pendleton to the Oregon Development League Convention was partly due to the desire of the citizens of that city to create an interest in the convention. Citizens of Pendleton are very enthusiastic, and will hold regular meetings preparatory to the convention.
