MRS. SMITH AS A WITNESS

Actress' Sister Refuses to Answer Many Questions Lest She Incriminate Herself -- Nan Expected Marriage.

NEW YORK, April 28.-After a day of nteresting developments, both the proseof Nan Patterson, indicted for the alleged murder of Caesar Young, the wealthy bookmaker, almost a year ago. The prosecution finished its case just before the adjournment of the court, and later Mr. O'Reilly, of coursel for Miss Patterson, notified the prosecution that his side would submit no defense and would jest on the contention that the state had failed to make any case. The plan had been under consideration for some days, but was only decided upon at a conference today between the counsel for Nan Patterson and her aged father.

ision means the speedy conclusion of the young woman's third trial. When the case is called Monday, to which date the trial was adjourned today, Assistant District Attorney Rand will immediately begin the summing up of the case of the state.

ides this, the succession of events the court's denial of a motion to dismiss the indictment; the testimony of the prisoner's sister, Mrs. J. Morgan Smith, in which she made some interesting statements, but stood on her right to refuse te answer questions, on the ground that the answers might incriminate her; Mr. Rand's promise to quash the conspiracy indictments against Mrs. Smith if she would answer his questions; the protest of the counsel for the actorize to the court that Mr. Rand's merciless method of questioning was "badgering the witnessen." and the rejection again by the court of the much-quoted letter of Mrs. Smith to quences if Young did not see her sister.

Young Would Not Marry Nan.

The direct examination of Mrs. Smith, which was not completed yesterday, was resumed today. Mrs. Smith testified yes-terday that Miss Patterson had expected Caesar Young to get a divorce from his wife and marry her. She, herself, believed that Young intended eventually to marry her sister until last May, when Leslie Coggins told her that Young did not intend to carry out the agreement. Miss Patterson became greatly excited when Coggins' statement was repeated to her, Mrs. Smith said.

Taking up the examination where it was interrupted by the adjournment last night, Mr. Rand asked:

"Did not Coggins tell you that the best thing Young thought Nau could do was to accept Matt Trimble's offer of mar-"He did not say anything like that to me," replied Mrs. Smith.

"Did Miss Patterson say that the cause of her emotion was that Coggins had mis-

"And yet you described her as 'frantic' ad desperate'?"

"When you wrote the letter to Toung were you in a state of feeling brought on by what Nan had told you?"

Yes, my sister is not responsible for "Did that letter represent truthfully the state of your mind?"
"It did."

"Did it represent Nan's state of mind?"

This question was not answered. Mr. Rand here offered the intercepted letter which Mrs. Smith sent to Young, which was ruled out vesterday, and again it was rejected by Recorder Goff.

Mrs. Smith's Story of Fatal Day.

Mrs. Smith said that when Miss Patterson procured a divorce from her husband all her expenses in the proceedings were paid by Young. The witness, detailed the movements of herself and husband and Miss Patter-son on the day before Young's death, at Shanghal. They went to the races, where they saw Young, and returned to their apartments in New York about 7 P. M.

"Did you and your husband visit ern's pawnshop that night?" asked We did not," the witness answered.

Mrs. Smith described the movements of the trio that evening, and told about Nan's going out to meet Young late that night, and her return home about 2 o'clock the next morning. About 7 o'clock that morning, she said, Young called on the telephone and said he wanted to meet Nan. Nan was asjeep, and the witness did not want to wake her. Toung called again a little later and repeated the request, and within a few minutes called a third time. Mrs. Smith then told him that Nan had got up and was on the way to meet him.

Fears to Incriminate Herself.

In the course of his examination, Mr. Rand asked Mrs. Smith if she had pos-sessed all the information she has testified to in this trial all the time since she left New York last June. Mrs. Smith replied that she would like to answer the question, but feared it would tend to de-trade and incriminate her, as she is under indictment for conspiracy.

The prosecutor then promised that if she would answer he would move next Monday to quash the indictment against her, but she declined to do so, until she had an opportunity to consult her coun-

Mrs. Smith identified a letter which she wrote to her sister. Harriet How-ell, of Washington. This letter was written from Teronto, and was said by Mr. Rand to contain a statement to the effect that Stern was there for the purpose of identifying them as the pur-chasers of the revolver, and that they would have to go away. The name Stern, Mr. Rand claims, is represented by the letter "S," and he attempted fo get a confirmatory admission from the witness. She declined to answer when the question was put to her, however, and again Rand offered to dismiss the spiracy indictment if she would re-

Attorney Levy, for the defense, broke in at this point with an objection to the methods which were being employed by the prosecutor. He complained to the Recorder that the witness was being "badgered," and ask that Rand be warned to proceed in a different way. Mr. Rand replied that he would not press for an answer, as he had no desire to confuse

Mrs. Smith said she learned of Stern's presence in Toronto through a detective, but declined to answer when asked it the detective had not told her that Stern had arranged to return to New York as soon as he maw her and her husband.

During the examination of Mrs. Smith this afternoon, the witness identified a ring and a bracelet which she said were her property and were pawned some time ago by her husband. Mr. Rand attempt-ed to draw from her an admission that they were pawned at Hyman Stern's shop on June 3 last, but in this he falled. Two renewal tickets which the prosecution produced, one for the ring pledged for $5 and the other for the bracelet pledged for $19, were dated October 4, 1904, and Oc-tober 29, 1904, respectively. which marked today's proceedings included the court's denial of a motion to dismiss given by Miss Patterson at the last trial, the indictment; the testimony of the pristhe dead bookmaker's widow. She was asked if she and her husband ever had ed a legal separation, but was not permitted to answer the question.

Motion to Dismiss Denied.

motion by Miss Patterson's counse that the case be taken from the jury and the indictment against her dismissed was denied by Recorder Goff after exhaustive nts by the defense and prosecution In his argument for dismissal Mr. Un-ger, of counsel for the defense, contender that the conspiracy accusation had prac-tically been abandoned by the prosecu-tion, which had failed to prove that J. Morgan Smith was the purchaser of the revolver. He further claimed that, as the case was admittedly one of circumstantial evidence, the testimony of Drs. O'Hanlon, Riggins and Phelps indicated saicide rather than murder. Replying to the argument, Assistant District Attorney Rand contended that, in view of the fact that the crime had been proved beyond all question of doubt, even if nothing was known of the relations of the defendant with Young and of her threats against Young the case ought to be submitted to the jury on the character of the wound, which could not have been self-inflicted. He insisted that he had proven beyond all doubt that Smith was in Stern's pawnshop on June 3, 1904, the day the revolver was sold. He had not expected the pawn-broker to identify Smith, as a man in that sort of business was reluctant to make

In denying the motion of the defense Recorder Goff told the jury that his ruling by them to the prejudice of the defendant.

COST OF REMOVING TRACK

If Railroad Bears All or Most of It, Irrigation Work Can Be Done, Otherwise Cost Will Compel Abandonment.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Wash ington, April 28 - Judging from surface indications, it is within the power of the O. R. & N. Ratiroad or the Harriman speople to say whether or no toe Government shall build the Palouse irrigation project in Eastern Washing-For some time the Governmen has been convinced of the feasibility of this project and anxious to undertake its construction, but could not proceed because of inability to make terms with this railroad for removal of its tracks from Washtucna Coulee, which is to be the principal storage reservoir.

It is estimated that it will cost fully $35 per acre to build the Palouse project irrespective of the cost of removal of railroad tracks. If the Government is compelled to bear the entire cost of track removal or even the major portion it will so increase the cost of the project as to make it prohibitive at this time. Under present conditions, land in Washington will not bear a cost exceeding $35 an acre for water. No such expensive project will be undertaken in any Northern state and in one instance only in California does the cost of irrigation exceed this figure. But under that project the lands to be reclaimed will, when irrigated, yield all the year round seven crops of alfalfa a year, so that a heavy cost can be borne,

If the O. R. & N., after further study, makes a concession and either stands the entire cost of removing its tracks from the reservoir site or assumes the bulk of that burden, the Palouse project. can probably be built, but, if the road insists that the Government shall assume the entire expense, the project must be abandoned, at least for several years to come. The Government is leaving expensive projects until the last for present conditions do not warrant extremely costly works.

The Reclamation Service is anxious to receive a generous offer from the O. R. & N. and final negotiations to that end are now under way. The outcome of those pegoliations will determine the fate of the Palouse project.
