Only Bluff at Neutrality Maintained in Cochin China.

SPECIAL CABLE. HONG KONG, May 2.—It is learned from a reliable source that the steamers Eva, Dagmar and Bourbon, under charter by the Russian government, have been plying between Saigon and the Russian Baltic fleet, carrying to the latter full cargoes of flour, rice, lard, fish, vegetables, meats and enormous quantities of brandy and wine. The latter has been withdrawn as a sop to the neutrality reg-ulations, but the two former vessels are till engaged in the work. After the Bourbon has ceased her trips, she was held up by the French transports in the Suigon River and a crew of French marines placed aboard to "compel her to cease her trips." The two vessels which are stid in the service were allowed to go on their way unmolested.

It is reported that American and Ger-

RUSSIA OFFICIALLY IGNORANT

Does Not Know Squadrons Have Joined-Sore at America.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 1.-The Admirally here professes ignorance as to whether Admiral Nebogatoff and Admiral Rojestvensky have joined forces, but the impression prevails in naval-circles that the junction has not been effected. Indeed, some doubt is expressed whether Nebogatoff's division has yet entered the China Sea.

The Admiralty officials vigorously deny any intention of sending the protected cruiser Askold and the torpedo-boat de-stroyer interned at Shanghal to join Admiral Rojestvensky and some resent-ment is shown against the United States and Great Britain for having officially warned China upon the basis of Japan-cee representations in this case.

Russian Naval Expert Tells Reasons for His Confidence.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 4.—12:30 A.
M.)—Captain von Essen, the bero of Port Arthur, and one of the ablest of Russian naval officers, discussing with the Associated Press the coming naval battle in the Far East, took a rosy view of Rojestvensky's prospects, and asserted that he had a great advantage in many respects over the original tage in many respects over the original asserted that he had a great advantage in many respects over the original Port Arthur squadron.

Captain von Essen declared that the engagement between Togo and Rojestvensky was bound to be at long range. He smiles at the idea that the Japanese might be able to disorganize or damage the Russian squadron by tothedo attacks, pointing out the impotency of such tactics after the first surprise at Port Arthur.

Take the matter of telescopic sights

"Take the matter of telescopic sights for instance," said the Captain, "whice are almost indispensable in engagements at the extreme range now used The Port Arthur fleet was without them, and was unable to obtain the sights on account of the cutting of mmunications, while Rojestvensky's guns are all equipped. Furthermore, we know that Togo's ships were severely bounded in the battle of August 10. Without taking into consideration the unavoidable depreciation, and the fact that, though repaired, it was far from being good before the battle, the ord-nance of the Japanese ships suffered es-pecially, and, though some of the 12-inch guns may have been replaced, it is impossible that all can have been renewed. Some of the smaller guns on the ships actually went to pieces dur-ing the engagement. After the battle we found a large place of the smaller we found a large plece of the muzzle of a Japanese B-centimeter gun on bourd the Sevastoppi. The Japanese, however, were able to renew their secpable of building such guns.

"The battle will be decided by the inche guns," continued the Captain. "But may not Togo elect to conduct a harassing warfare with his torpodo-boats, in the hope of sinking one of the Russian ships," was asked.
"One of the lessons of the present war," replied Captain von Essen, "is the ability of warships to defend themndary armament, having a plant ca-selves against torpedo attacks during naval engagements. After the opening surprises, the Japanese torpedo-boat surprises, the Japanese torpedo-boat flotilla accomplished practically nothing until the last act of the naval drama, the torpedoing of the Sevastopol before the surrender of Port Arthur, and then it look five nights of continuous attacks under the most favorable weather conditions—snow squalls, etc.—to get one of the hundreds of torpedoes home against a stationary ship."

Captain von Essen commented on the high state of efficiency to which Ad-high state of efficiency to which Ad-miral Rojestvensky has brought his squadron during the long months of the voyage enstward, and said that the results of target practice with the big guns corroborated the opinion of British critics that the marksmanship of the Russians would be apt to surprise the Japanese. He discussed the possibility that Rojestvensky will not incorporate Nebogatoff's ships in his fighting squadron, but will leave them to cover the transports, but he frankly declared that he was ignorant of Admiral Rojestvensky's intention on this he voyage eastward, and said that the miral Rojestvensky's intention on time as well as on other points in the present situation in which the Admiral is
