

CITY NEWS IN BRIEF

THE OREGONIAN'S TELEPHONE. Counting Room, Main 667. Managing Editor, Main 656. Sunday Editor, Main 655. City Editor, Main 166. Society Editor, Main 625. Composing Room, Main 643. Superintendent Building, Red 2828. Post Office, East 61.

AMUSEMENTS.

EMPIRE THEATER (12th and Morrison).—Matinee at 2:15 and evening at 8:15. "Our Rock." STAR THEATER (Park and Washington).—Continuous vaudeville, 2:30, 7:30 and 9 P. M. GRAND THEATER (Park and Washington).—Continuous vaudeville, 2:30 to 10:00 P. M. BAKER THEATER (2d and Yamhill).—Continuous vaudeville, 2:30, 7:30 and 9 P. M.

FOUND HOOD RIVER APPLES IN GERMANY.

George and Fred Schwartz, who formerly operated a woodwork manufacturing establishment in East Portland, have just returned from a seven-months' sojourn in Switzerland, Germany and Italy, where they went for the former's health. After spending a short time at the Hotel de Ville in Paris, they traveled over these countries, including trips to the Alps. George Schwartz says he was surprised to find Hood River apples in considerable quantities in Germany. The apples, he said, came in barrels and were in good condition. Being a close observer, Mr. Schwartz was able to contrast methods of living in the country visited with his adopted home in America. "The people there," he said, "depend on America for fruits. There is little farming in my old home. Everybody either operates a factory or works in one. In the Alps I found houses lighted by electricity. Every stream of water is harnessed and turned into water-wheels manufacturing electric power. European countries cannot afford to have trouble with the United States, as they are dependent on this country for nearly everything they need. Mr. Schwartz said he could not think of remaining in the old country after having lived in Oregon. It had been twenty years since he and his brother came to America.

Mrs. ADOLPH ASHOFF INJURED.

Mrs. Adolph Ashoff, wife of the chief of rangers of the Cascade division, while riding from Ashoff to Sandy Saturday night to meet Mr. Ashoff, who was returning from Portland, was injured in an accident caused by the horse she was driving running away. She was thrown out of the buggy and rendered unconscious for a time, but no bones were broken. The accident occurred near the farm of Mr. McGubin, who picked Mrs. Ashoff up and carried her to his home.

CONFERENCE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

At 1:30 P. M. today, the annual meeting of the Oregon Conference of Missionary Society, of the Evangelical Association, will meet in Grace Church, Lents. This will be followed by the annual meeting of the Sunday School and Tract Union. This evening Bishop E. C. Breyfogle will lecture in Grace Church under the auspices of the Young People's Alliance. Conference proper will open tomorrow where Bishop Breyfogle will deliver his address.

WILL LET CONTRACT FOR HALL.

The Woodmen of the World Hall Association of Mount Tabor will let the contract this evening at the hall on Base Line road for the erection of a fraternal hall on West avenue. The ground formerly occupied by Oriental Hall was purchased by the association some time ago and here the new structure will stand. The new building will contain a banquet hall and lodge room and will be one story.

A TREAT FOR TOURISTS.

TRIP THROUGH COLOMBIA RIVER GORGE TO THE DALLES AND RETURN SUNDAY NEXT. ALL DAYLIGHT RIDE. WORLD'S GRANDEST SCENERY. PAST SACHRETS' ASSOCIATION EXCURSION. FARE ROUND TRIP $1.50. TRAIN LEAVES UNION DEPOT 9:30 A. M. STOPS MADE AT PROMINENT POINTS.

DEATH OF ROBERT McDONALD.

Robert McDonald died at his home, 775 Alameda avenue, last evening of gangrene, which resulted from the amputation of one of his limbs about a year ago. He was 59 years old, and had been in the employ of Smith & Watson for the past sixteen years. A wife and several children survive him. Funeral will take place this afternoon from Holman's undertaking chapel.

PROFESSOR C. L. HOOVER IMPROVING.

Professor C. L. Hoover, principal of the North Central school, who is sick at his home, 78 East Salmon street, is slowly improving. Mrs. Hoover, however, is not expected to recover. She was reported weaker yesterday than at any time before. Professor Hoover will be able to resume his work at North Central school this year.

DON'T MISS SEEING ALL THE GRAND SCENERY.

TO THE DALLES AND RETURN DON'T FORGET! STOPS MADE AT PRINCIPAL POINTS. $1.50 ROUND TRIP. TRAIN LEAVES 9:30 A. M.

MINOR SISTER CLIMBING.

While driving in from Sandy yesterday, A. Menig encountered what seemed to be a cloudburst. The rain poured down in torrents, so that the plank road between Sandy and Pleasant was afloat. It did not last long, however, and the rain had done. The downpour seemed to be confined between these two points.

TWO NEW SAWMILLS.

J. H. Weaver is completing a new sawmill on one of the tributaries of the Clackamas river, near Sandy, which will be in operation later in the season. Near Kelso, Jonsrud Bros. are completing a sawmill, which will soon be in running order. The lumber will be taken out to the mill a short time ago.

O. R. C. MEMBERS ARE CORDIALLY INVITED.

to visit the Oregonian tower, where an excellent view may be had of the business part of the city. The tower will be open to the extreme top of the tower, which is 200 feet above the sidewalk. Take the elevator to the ninth floor.

MAY HAVE NEW CHIEF OF POLICE.

It is considered likely that St. Johns Council will confirm the appointment of Matt Gardner as the new marshal. Mayor King submitted Mr. Gardner's name at the last meeting, but the Council declined to act.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN ARE CORDIALLY INVITED.

to attend the exhibition of Oriental Rugs at our rooms, No. 613 Washington street, today (Wednesday), from 11 A. M. to 4 P. M. They are unique. S. L. N. Gilman, auctioneer.

BOYS AND GIRLS' AID SOCIETY.

The 20th annual meeting of the members of the Boys and Girls' Aid Society of Oregon will be held at the parlors of the City Hotel of Charleston, Tuesday evening, May 10, 1905.

SISTERS OF MERCY CARD PARTY.

The Sisters of Mercy have heard that many of the invitations for the card party today have not been received. Upon asking at the postoffice where the congestion of the mail with election literature must be the cause, the Sisters beg their friends to come, as invitations were sent to all. Tea will be served from 4:30 to 6 o'clock.

RAILROAD CONDUCTORS, ATTENTION!

Don't fail to secure your luncheon at Taylor Street Methodist Church from 11:30 to 1:30 tickets 25c. The pastor extends a hearty welcome.

STEAMER ALLIANCE HELLS FROM COAST.

Steamer Alliance hells from Coast Street dock for Coos Bay and Eureka Wednesday night, May 10, at 8 P. P. Baumgartner, agent. Main 861.

HELP! HELP! WOOSTER QUITTING BUSINESS.

ACME OIL CO. oils. Phone East 189. Why don't you buy of Wooster?

DON'T EXPECT ANNEXATION

Mount Tabor Residents Think It Will Be Defeated in Portland.

Leading Mount Tabor citizens do not expect that annexation to Portland will carry in the city at the June election. There is much opposition in Portland against taking in more territory at this time. The official declaration of the Municipal League against taking in a slice of Mount Tabor also confirms them in the belief that it

THREE NOTED CROOKS APPEAR IN COURT

AND ARE BOUND OVER

When Deputy District Attorney Haney concluded his case against William Barrett, Fritz Dhein and Herman Dehm, the three noted crooks, he said it was not necessary for him to have counsel.

That there is nothing but worry and trouble in a life of crime, is amply illustrated in the case of Barrett, Dhein and Dehm. All of them have spent much time in penitentiaries, workhouses and jails. Dhein, especially, who is now 31 years old, has spent almost half of his life behind prison bars. He is gray of hair and pinched of face, bearing strong evidence of the torture of a criminal life. Barrett is aged 25 years, and has served many years in a convict. Dhein is 27 now. Three years of that he served in a Michigan workhouse, for snatching a tray of diamonds.

The days for extensive criminal operations are over, said Chief of Police Hunt, in speaking of these three noted crooks. "A man who goes into the criminal business, and is in jail in most of his days in jail in this age. The telegraph, the railroads, rogues' galleries and detective staffs organized in every large city, make it impossible for criminals to operate long without capture."

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE

Evil of Legal Separations Should Be Restricted by Law.

NORTH YAKIMA, Wash., May 8, 1905.—(To the Editor.)—I have watched with special interest the divorce cases which have been going on for more than a year; first taken up by the Episcopal Church, and now generally participated in by other churches. The frequency of divorces has brought derelict and scandal on our State, and is acknowledged and deplored by all. But how to prevent it, is the question. To say that God sanctions all marriages that are made through the power of the affection—love. Then we can say, "What God hath joined, let no man separate." How long can we continue along these lines? Every day brings to light some great discovery, which requires us to move onward, and each in turn to live, to thrive, to blossom for a time; then to be crowded back, to prove its worth, or to be left behind. But not by marriage and divorce. I like the poor, they are "always with us."

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

HEAVY BONDS FOR THREE THIEVES

Barrett, Dhein and Dehm Are Held by Municipal Judge Hogue.

When Deputy District Attorney Haney made out a complete case against the three crooks, he said it was not necessary for him to have counsel.

That there is nothing but worry and trouble in a life of crime, is amply illustrated in the case of Barrett, Dhein and Dehm. All of them have spent much time in penitentiaries, workhouses and jails. Dhein, especially, who is now 31 years old, has spent almost half of his life behind prison bars. He is gray of hair and pinched of face, bearing strong evidence of the torture of a criminal life. Barrett is aged 25 years, and has served many years in a convict. Dhein is 27 now. Three years of that he served in a Michigan workhouse, for snatching a tray of diamonds.

The days for extensive criminal operations are over, said Chief of Police Hunt, in speaking of these three noted crooks. "A man who goes into the criminal business, and is in jail in most of his days in jail in this age. The telegraph, the railroads, rogues' galleries and detective staffs organized in every large city, make it impossible for criminals to operate long without capture."

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE Evil of Legal Separations Should Be Restricted by Law.

NORTH YAKIMA, Wash., May 8, 1905.—(To the Editor.)—I have watched with special interest the divorce cases which have been going on for more than a year; first taken up by the Episcopal Church, and now generally participated in by other churches. The frequency of divorces has brought derelict and scandal on our State, and is acknowledged and deplored by all. But how to prevent it, is the question. To say that God sanctions all marriages that are made through the power of the affection—love. Then we can say, "What God hath joined, let no man separate." How long can we continue along these lines? Every day brings to light some great discovery, which requires us to move onward, and each in turn to live, to thrive, to blossom for a time; then to be crowded back, to prove its worth, or to be left behind. But not by marriage and divorce. I like the poor, they are "always with us."

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

"What you've got us into by striking a woman, I told you not to hit her."

"Well, she made me mad, and I couldn't help striking her," Dehm replied.

However, as Harrington, going down the stairs from his office to the barroom, ran into Dehm and Dhein, as they were hurrying up from the scene of the robbery, he was able to identify them and to guard against them escaping by any such pretensions as the striking of his home imaginary woman.

Harrington was with Nicholson when the arrest was made on the sixth floor, and positively identified the two men as those he met rushing from the barroom.

When questioned by Nicholson and Harrington, the two prisoners positively stated that they had just come in from the hotel that night. They were very indignant at being arrested, they pretended, and Dehm was inclined to resist, but finally complied with the officer's request and was turned over to the police.

Deputy District Attorney Haney made out a complete case against the three crooks, he said it was not necessary for him to have counsel.

That there is nothing but worry and trouble in a life of crime, is amply illustrated in the case of Barrett, Dhein and Dehm. All of them have spent much time in penitentiaries, workhouses and jails. Dhein, especially, who is now 31 years old, has spent almost half of his life behind prison bars. He is gray of hair and pinched of face, bearing strong evidence of the torture of a criminal life. Barrett is aged 25 years, and has served many years in a convict. Dhein is 27 now. Three years of that he served in a Michigan workhouse, for snatching a tray of diamonds.

The days for extensive criminal operations are over, said Chief of Police Hunt, in speaking of these three noted crooks. "A man who goes into the criminal business, and is in jail in most of his days in jail in this age. The telegraph, the railroads, rogues' galleries and detective staffs organized in every large city, make it impossible for criminals to operate long without capture."

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE Evil of Legal Separations Should Be Restricted by Law.

NORTH YAKIMA, Wash., May 8, 1905.—(To the Editor.)—I have watched with special interest the divorce cases which have been going on for more than a year; first taken up by the Episcopal Church, and now generally participated in by other churches. The frequency of divorces has brought derelict and scandal on our State, and is acknowledged and deplored by all. But how to prevent it, is the question. To say that God sanctions all marriages that are made through the power of the affection—love. Then we can say, "What God hath joined, let no man separate." How long can we continue along these lines? Every day brings to light some great discovery, which requires us to move onward, and each in turn to live, to thrive, to blossom for a time; then to be crowded back, to prove its worth, or to be left behind. But not by marriage and divorce. I like the poor, they are "always with us."

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up to a recognition of their value. This can be done by a strong law, which should be enforced by the courts. The newspapers are flooded with similar cases, until they cease to shock us, proving to us that the divorce is a common thing.

As a free and independent nation, our laws must be sanctioned and upheld by public opinion; and with divorce, as with other evils, we should have a strong restraining law to enforce these laws, the people must be educated up