

HE CREATES NEW FOREST RESERVE

One of President's First Acts on Return Home Relates to Oregon Lands.

MORE YET TO BE CREATED

Proclamation Sets Aside Chesnimus District in Wallowa County. Others Will Bring Total to Over 10,000,000 Acres.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, May 12.—After two years and more of investigation by the Forestry Bureau, the President has decided to establish several new forest reserves in Oregon. One of the first things he did today when he went to this office was to sign a proclamation creating the Chesnimus reserve in Wallowa County, embracing about 20,000 acres of land. When he gets down to it, he will sign proclamations creating other reserves in Oregon. Just which will be created first is not announced, but it is a fact that the Blue Mountain reserve that has been the cause of so much controversy is to become a reality in the near future, and there is no reasonable doubt that the President will also establish the Wallowa, La Grande, Morrow, Mary's Mountain and Warner Mountain reserves, together with several additions to the Cascade. It is also possible that a reserve may be created to embrace the public lands in the Rogue River country, though this is not so certain.

Over Ten Million Acres Reserved.

Upward of 10,000,000 acres of public lands in Oregon are now temporarily withdrawn from entry, the withdrawals having been made at the request of the Forestry Bureau. Since their withdrawal those lands have been carefully examined and the Forestry Bureau is now able to state positively what are timber lands, what are agricultural, what areas should be reserved, and what should be restored to entry. In every instance the precaution has been taken to include in the new reserves only lands that can properly and consistently be reserved, namely, lands that are timbered, lands that will, under care, become timbered, and lands which embody the headwaters of important streams. Agricultural lands, as far as possible, are being eliminated. Grazing lands are not necessarily eliminated. Since the lieu land law has been repealed it is possible without danger to include private lands within reserves, and this is being done more generally than would have been the case had the lieu land law remained in force.

It is impossible to state accurately just how much land will be embraced in the various reserves in contemplation in Oregon, but, roughly estimated, the aggregate area, including the Cascade reserve, will be in the neighborhood of 10,000,000 or 11,000,000 acres.

Townships Within Limits.

The Chesnimus reserve, created today, includes the greater portion of the withdrawal made two years ago, which embraced sections 1, 12, 23, 34 and 35, in township 2, range 41, all townships 3 and 4, range 41; all townships 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, range 40; all townships 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, range 40; the west half of township 2, range 40; and all of fractional township 48, all north and east.

This reserve lies north and east of Wallowa Valley, is for the most part mountainous and is fairly well covered with timber. Within its limits are the Joseph River, Chesnimus Creek, Elk Creek, Crow Creek and numerous tributaries of the Wallowa and Grand Ronde Rivers.

Too Costly for Construction—State Blocks Yakima Project.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, May 12.—In a letter to Representative Jones, F. H. Newell, chief of the Reclamation Service, reiterates what has heretofore been stated in press dispatches, that the Reclamation Service, which once regarded the Palouse project as the most attractive in Washington, now doubts its practicability because of the apparently excessive cost. The fact that the underlying ground and gravel would not hold water would necessitate lining the reservoir and canals with cement, which, in Mr. Newell's opinion, makes the project too expensive to be built at this time.

Mr. Newell strongly intimates that, if the state perfects its selection of 55,000 acres which it wishes reclaimed by the Sunnyside Canal Company, the Government will not undertake irrigation in the Yakima Valley.

He repeats that the adoption or rejection of the Okanogan project depends upon the result of an examination now in progress.

New Rural Route at Chehalis.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, May 12.—Rural route No. 2 has been ordered established June 15 at Chehalis, Lewis County, Wash., serving 816 people and 117 houses.
