

LIGHTS ON AT FAIR GROUNDS

Brilliant Electric Display by Night Out at the Exposition.

EFFECT MOST BEAUTIFUL

It Surpasses the Expectations of Electricians, Fair Officials and the Crowd Which Gathered to Witness Spectacle.

A startling, entrancing and bewildering tribute was paid to American electrical genius last night when the lights were turned on at the Exposition grounds. With the exception of the Government building and a few state structures all the buildings were included in the magnificent electrical display.

The effect surpassed even the utmost expectations of the electricians and the fair officials. All those who witnessed the display last night were unanimously of the opinion that the electrical arrangement of the Exposition in beauty and completeness is something never before equaled in Exposition.

The buildings stood out bold and prominent as the electric lights were arranged so as to make a complete outline. The immense dome of the Agricultural building was particularly beautiful and entrancing as it was fairly studded with lights.

Part of the Trail was lighted and shined to good advantage. The Bridge of All Nations, which spans Guild's Lake, was fairly covered with lights which extended clear to the surface of the water. Along the railings the electric globes were stretched, the lights extending beneath the structure producing a new effect as they were reflected back by the water.

In the lake in front of the terrace a few of the submarine lights were tried, producing golden and silver hues. When the water was disturbed by oars in the hands of the workmen who were in the lake in boats it looked as though the water was afire and filled with sparkling gems.

About 50,000 lights were turned on last night which is more than the total number of lights burned in the City of Portland. When all the wires have been connected there will be 100,000 lights in the display.

Monday the Government building and the few remaining state buildings will have been connected.

The lights at the Exposition grounds were turned on at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon so as to give the electricians time to remedy any defects that might appear. However, the system seemed to be perfect. A few of the lights did not burn at first, but they were speedily replaced by others. The circuit was shut off at 10 o'clock. The lights are turned on all at the same time by means of a central switch.

LONG HORSEBACK JOURNEY.
Two Men Would Ride From New York to Portland.

Jack Minnick, the Texas cowboy, and Will Rogers, the greatest trick roper in the world, who have recently made such a sensation in the Madison-Square Gardens in New York, through their thrilling feats of Western horsemanship, want to attend the Lewis and Clark Exposition, and with that view have written to the Fair management stating they are anxious to make the trip from New York to Portland on horseback. Minnick and Rogers have just completed their engagement in New York, and in the communication to the Fair officials state that they have heard so much about the Exposition that they would like to attend it. They say that they would rather ride to Portland on horses than travel on the railroads. They have estimated that they can make the journey from New York to Portland in less than 26 days. It is decided to have them come on their horses within a few days, so that they will arrive at the Exposition in August, when the Fair will be in full progress. It has been learned that the New York friends of the cowboys propose to give them a big send-off when they leave for Portland. A banquet will be given them at the Waldorf-Astoria immediately before they start for the West.

They will be attired in full cowboy dress and at every town they pass through they will stop long enough to acquaint the people of the nature of their journey and their destination. Minnick and Rogers, after selecting their route and the nature of the country through which they will travel, say that they can make on an average about 25 miles a day. They will ride their horses until they are thoroughly exhausted, and then they will purchase new mounts, so as to minimize the delays they will have to experience. Fresh horses, ordered in advance, will be waiting for them at the different towns they pass through.

Jack Minnick is one of the most widely known characters of the Southwest, and is said to be the opening exercises of President Roosevelt whom he met when the Chief Executive was on one of his hunting trips in Texas. Minnick is famous as a rider, and is said to be one of the best all-around shots in America. He also has gained considerable notoriety through bronco-busting, in which he has no superior. The two cowboys ask that their expenses be paid, and the Fair officials are negotiating with them.

FOR FAIR DAY JUNE 1.
Mayor Williams Asks All Citizens to Attend Opening.

Mayor George H. Williams has issued a call for "Fair Day" June 1. It is as follows: "To the people of Portland: I, George H. Williams, Mayor of Portland, do hereby request and urge the people of this city to attend the opening exercises of the Lewis and Clark Fair on Thursday, the first day of June, and help to inaugurate this grand centennial celebration with their unbounded and enthusiastic support. The world will have knowledge of what we do upon that day."

CORTEYOU WILL COME.

He Will Visit Exposition Later in the Summer.

When George B. Cortyou, Postmaster-General, shall visit the Lewis and Clark Fair, he will be received and entertained by the Republican State Central Committee, of which Frank C. Baker is chairman. Mr. Baker has notified the members of the committee, and they will assemble at Portland to greet the visitor. Mr. Baker extended the invitation to Mr. Cortyou two months ago, and the latter at that time signified a desire to be in Portland for the opening of the Fair, but is unable to come so soon, and has postponed his visit until later in the summer.

The members of the committee and their respective counties are: Baker, J. H. Altman; Benton, E. R. Bryson; Clackamas, T. F. Ryan; Clatsop, John Fox; Columbia, Harry West; Coos, W. J. Butler; Crook, William Wurzwiler; Curry, Delos Woodruff; Douglas, A. C. Marsters; Gilliam, C. A. Dammann; Grant, P. J. Benson; Harney, George W. Cleveland; Jackson, L. Hamilton; Josephine, J. C. Campbell; Klamath, H. H. Van Valkenberg; Lake, W. A. Massingill; Lane, L. T. Harris; Lincoln, G. G. Dalaba; Linn, Percy H. Kelly; Malheur, I. W. Hope; Marion, H. D. Patton; Morrow, Fred Woodruff; Multnomah, Frank C. Baker; Polk, R. E. Williams; Sherman, J. B. Howford; Tillamook, A. J. Stillwell; Umatilla, Lee Moorhead; Union, J. F. Baker; Wallowa, E. A. Holmes; Wasco, T. H. Johnston; Washington, N. Barre; Wheeler, H. Halstead; Yamhill, J. M. Crawford.

Government Building Ready.

To insure the completion of the Fair on the time specified, June 1, the opening day, additional day forces of men are being employed on the grounds at the Exposition and the Trail. With this exception of a few minor details, the Government exhibit is practically complete. All the scaffolding has been removed and a force of men is engaged in cleaning up the grounds.

In the main structure the floors are being scrubbed for the last time, and all the departments have their exhibits installed. The painting and gilding of the building and exhibits and putting on the finishing touches.

The Fisheries exhibit is complete in every detail and ready for the reception of the crowd and sightseers. The fish are all in excellent condition, very few of them having become diseased or dying on the long trip from Washington to Portland. It was the longest trip on record, and it was expected that many of them would not survive. The Government officials are hoping that when the Exposition opens they will have a successful trip back to Washington.

Olympia Women Choose Hostess.

OLYMPIA, Wash., May 25.—(Special).—At a mass meeting of Olympia society women tonight, called to select a hostess for Olympia week in the Washington building, at the Lewis and Clark Fair, Mrs. A. H. Chambers was elected by secret ballot, receiving 88 out of 120 votes cast.

Mrs. Chambers was formerly Miss Connolly, and comes from the well-known pioneer Washington family. While not a native of this state, she has resided in Olympia 20 years. She is the wife of a leading merchant, who is also a Puget Sound pioneer and is a sister of Sheriff Thomas Connolly. Mrs. Chambers has long been a leader in Olympia social functions.

Militia to Boost for Tacoma.

TACOMA, May 25.—(Special).—At a special meeting of Company A, Washington National Guard, tonight it was decided to attend the Lewis and Clark Exposition at Portland in a body. The officers and members of the company are all enthusiastic boosters, and intend making the trip continuous "boost" for Tacoma. Extra drills will be held each week from now on to bring the members to the highest degree of efficiency in the drill and target practice.

Special drills will be held at the target range south of South Tacoma, giving practical demonstration of the extended order drill under conditions similar to actual warfare.

Exhibit From Pacific University.

PACIFIC UNIVERSITY, Forest Grove, May 25.—(Special).—W. F. Fletcher, one of Pacific's instructors, who has been taking graduate work in Columbia University, New York, during the past year, has been selected to take charge of Pacific's exhibit at the Lewis and Clark Fair.

The finishing touches are being put to the exhibit, which will be completed before the opening of the Fair. It has a credit to the institution. Its preparation has been in the hands of Professor J. R. Robertson.

Installation of Pictures.

The work of unloading the pictures from the cars to install them in the Museum of Arts began yesterday morning at the Exposition grounds. The hanging of the pictures and the installation of the exhibit will be rushed forward night and day, under the supervision of E. Alex. Bernstein. The readiness of the Museum for the opening day is assured. Electricians are completing the wiring of the building.

Eibert Hubbard Will Come.

Eibert Hubbard, in a telegram received yesterday, announced his intention of visiting the Lewis and Clark Exposition. He telegraphed to the Fair officials stating that if October 5 was designated as Roycroft day he would be in attendance. In accordance with the request, October 5 will be known as Roycroft day. Eibert Hubbard, of East Aurora, N. Y., is the famous editor of "The Philistine."

National Guard Encampment.

The annual encampment of the Oregon National Guard will be held at Gearhart Park, commencing July 12 and lasting for one week. Adjutant-General W. E. Piner stated yesterday that an order to this effect will be issued at an early date. After returning from the encampment the troops will probably spend some time at the Exposition grounds. Everything is advantageous for a splendid encampment this summer.

Students in Competitive Drills.

Students at Hill Military Academy held the annual military exhibition and competitive drill at the academy armory last night before a large crowd of spectators. Dean Hays, of Moro, Or., was awarded the gold medal for the best all-around drill. The directors of the Multnomah Club have decided to close that club upon the opening day. Establishments who have for sale the Lewis and Clark Fair state that they have been Worthington was appointed chief deputy by Zoeth Howser when the latter took the oath of office December 7, 1897. Worthington served through Howser's administration and was reappointed by W. F. Matthews, serving in the same capacity until yesterday.

J. A. Wilson was also an office deputy under Howser, retaining the place when Matthews went in. Jacob Proebstel has also seen considerable service, having been appointed by Howser and retained by Matthews, while L. N. Blowers was comparatively new, having been appointed about a year ago to the position made vacant by the resignation of A. A. Roberts.

Breathing of the Hindoos.

Dr. Emily Noble, of San Francisco, lectured last night before the members of the Portland Camera Club. Noble first thought of giving an illustrated lecture on India, but, owing to the lantern being out of repair, she gave an informal talk instead on the breathing of the Hindoos. Dr. Noble declared that she visited India and took with her something like six tons of machinery, for the purpose of studying diseases, but she declared that she found the natives knew better how to stay well than Caucasians knew how to get well.

PETITION SEEN IN

Plan to Abolish Saloons Near Fair Started.

MANY SIGN THE DOCUMENT

District Not So Large as Was at First Reported in Which It is Designed to Stop Liquor Sales by the Initiative.

Petitions bearing the names of 2144 voters in the City of Portland were filed with the City Auditor yesterday afternoon by those interested in the movement to close saloons in the vicinity of the Exposition. The petitions and the proposed ordinance will be submitted to a special meeting of the Council to be held at 10 o'clock this morning, at which many of the supporters of the measure will be in attendance.

To secure proper consideration by the Council, it was necessary that the petitions have at least 2500 names of voters, but the backers of the movement deemed it advisable to be on the safe side, and secured 2144 signatures. Several more petitions are still out among workers, and these it is expected will have about 200 more names, which may be added to those already in the hands of the Auditor before the Council meeting this morning. Special efforts have been made to secure names, the eligibility of which is being questioned, and those who have been circulating the papers believe that a very small percentage will be thrown out. Even to defeat the purpose of the petition would be a great success. Several more petitions are still out among workers, and these it is expected will have about 200 more names, which may be added to those already in the hands of the Auditor before the Council meeting this morning.

The Council will meet at 10 o'clock, and receive the petition. Unless something unforeseen occurs, the proposed ordinance will be ordered submitted to the voters at the election to be held on June 5, in accordance with the provisions of the Charter. It has been rumored that efforts will be made to have the Council sidetrack the measure in some way, but this is also deemed improbable by those in charge of the movement.

"I would like to have it understood that we are not putting the prohibition line a half mile from the Fair grounds," said E. G. Miller yesterday. One of those active in the circulating of the petitions. "The grounds extend to Twenty-fourth street on the east, and to Therman street on the south, and we simply want two blocks further in both cases, to Twenty-second street on the east and to Raleigh street on the south. It does not seem to me that this is very unreasonable."

"Other great fairs have been without saloons at the entrances, and the Lewis and Clark Exposition should be likewise. People who have been at the Eastern expositions would soon notice how the liquor traffic was carried on right in the gates of our Fair. This certainly would be an undesirable condition."

"I do not have much doubt but that public opinion will secure the passage of the proposed ordinance when it comes to the vote. I believe that the majority of men in the city will vote favorably for the measure and secure the abolition of the objectionable places."

If the proposed ordinance is carried by the people at the June election, 23 saloons will be put out of business. Of this number, 12 have been established for more than six months, and 11 have been established this year, apparently, it is claimed by the persons interested in the ordinance, for the Exposition trade only. The names and locations of the saloons follow:

Wife Sues for Divorce.

Edith McCorquodale has sued A. Mac-Corquodale, traveling passenger agent for the O. R. & N. Co., for a divorce because of cruel treatment. They were married in Portland in 1902, and have resided in Colfax and Spokane, Wash. Mrs. Mac-Corquodale avers that her husband has been cruel to her, and does not care for their children. She also alleges that he permits her to do the heavy work about the house, and in various ways has ill-used her.

Many Witnesses in Divorce Trial.

Yesterday was the third day of the trial of the divorce suit of Hattie E. Mansfield against Claude H. Mansfield before Judge George. The case is expected to come to a close today. About 20 witnesses have thus far been examined and the matrimonial life of the litigants has been very thoroughly exposed. The Mansfields are contestants over the custody of two minor children and land near Detroit, which contains valuable hot springs. Mrs. Mansfield is endeavoring to convince the court that her husband has treated her cruelly and he attacked her reputation.

Joe Young, who is under indictment for shooting Kaspar Van Dran, was released on $10,000 bonds yesterday, signed by Thomas H. Richardson, Valentine Kolb and Louis Dick.

City Offenders Before Municipal Judge Hogue.

Four saloonkeepers were before Judge Hogue yesterday, charged with having kept open their establishments on the day of the primary election. Each was ready with an excuse, more or less laughable.

One was sick and sitting in the front door of his saloon, awaiting the arrival of a physician. Another was so accommodating to his tenants that he opened his saloon door to let them in, that they might get their mail.

Still another had a plumber in his establishment, installing a new beer pump, and the fourth was confronted by two men so thirsty that to deny them a drink would have been cruel and inhuman.

All but one of the defendants were discharged, but each was told he must never again be guilty, even of technical violation of law.

F. Fuog's saloon, Taylor street, between Front and First, was found open by a trollyman Wendorf, who had been to investigate A. Anderlini's establishment.

"What does this mean?" asked Wendorf of Fuog, who was seated in the front door of his establishment.

"Why I'm sick and am awaiting for the doctor to come," was the calm reply. "Well, you can't keep your saloon open today, said Wendorf. "Will you close, or not?"

"I'll close," said Fuog, and he did so immediately. Judge Hogue and Deputy City Attorney Fitzgerald thought Fuog was not guilty of a very serious offense; he had never been before the court previously, and he was dismissed, the admonition to be careful in the future.

At A. Anderlini's saloon, Second and Taylor streets, Wendorf found what appeared to him as a peculiar state of affairs. The front door was closed, but the rear door was open. He entered, and found what appeared to be a barber shop. In fact, he was informed by a man who was there that it was such.

"I walked a little farther," said Wendorf, in telling of the case, "and found a curtain. I lifted it, and saw two men standing at the bar, being served by a bartender. 'What is the meaning of this?' I asked."

"These two men came in here so thirsty that they could not live longer without a drink, and I gave them a drink," was the reply. Anderlini stood on his splendid record of many years, showed he had never before been in any trouble, and his case was dismissed. Patrolman Croxford, who holds down an Albina beat on the day shift, testified that he found the door of G. Schmidt's saloon, Delay street, Sellwood street, open on primary day.

"I keep roomers," said Schmidt, in his own defense, "and the day several of them wished to get their mail, and I opened the door to let them in. No liquor was sold." Judge Hogue thought that some other Vigorous Health Is the Great Source of the Power to Inspire and Encourage—All Women Should Seek It.

One of the most noted, successful and richest men of this century, in a recent article, has said, "Whatever I am and whatever success I have attained in this world I owe all to my wife. From the day I first knew her she has been an inspiration, and the greatest help-mate of my life."

Mrs. Bessie Ainsley

To be such a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, to inspire him to make the most of himself, should be a woman's constant study.

If a woman finds that her energies are flagging, that she gets easily tired, dark shadows appear under her eyes, she has headache, dizziness, bearing-down pains, nervousness, white, irregular or the women feel so great at once to build up her system by a tonic with specific powers, such as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Following we publish by request a letter from a young wife: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham: I have been suffering ever since my child was born. I have suffered as I hope few women ever have, with inflammation, female weakness, bearing-down pains, nervousness, white, irregular periods, and have run orderly places. It affected my stomach so I could not enjoy my meals, and half my time was spent in bed."

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me what no other medicine could. It brought me health, new life and vitality."—Mrs. Bessie Ainsley, 611 South 10th Street, Tacoma, Wash. "What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Ainsley it will do for every sick and ailing woman."

arrangement might be made relative to the delivery of mail in that establishment, and was inclined to impose a little fine, judging from the fact that they were. However, Mr. Fitzgerald stated that Schmidt had always conducted a good record; had never been in any trouble, and he would be a good policy for the city to encourage such saloonkeepers. Hence the dismissal of the Schmidt charges.

Then came H. Breiter, who has a saloon at Russell street and Mississippi avenue. Patrolman Croxford found men in that place, drinking. Breiter explained that the only men he had there were plumbers. They had been installing a beer pump. He thought he was well within the law, he said, but he was fined $5.

"I do not feel like asking for heavy fines against these men," said Deputy City Attorney Fitzgerald. "They have obeyed the law pretty well for many years, and have run orderly places. As a matter of fact, the most violations of the primary-closing law were by persons who gave away liquor from blacksmith shops and such places. Many complaints were made to me, but as the law applies only to saloonkeepers, I had no way to get at the violators. As a general rule, the saloonmen kept the law well primary day."

A. J. Bartlett can thank Detective Snow for his release from custody. Bartlett was arrested by Detective Snow several days ago, and a charge of vagrancy was placed against him. He was discharged yesterday, when brought before Judge Hogue.

It developed that Bartlett, who is a young fellow, is a member of the Cigar-makers' Union, and was able to secure work here at the Fair. At first he was suspected of the theft of a watch, which was found in his possession, but he explained that to Judge Hogue and Deputy District Attorney Fitzgerald that he purchased it from an unknown man, "for the price of a feed."

S. Hanft, who was arrested by Patrolman Robert Smith on Wednesday, was discharged from custody when brought before Judge Hogue yesterday. He was accused of the theft of a watch, and upon paying to C. Fischer the value of the timepiece he was released. The complainant did not wish to press the larceny charge.
