His name is Mitchell, and they call him Mike. Last night he should have slept upon a bed of roses and arisen this morning to a bath of champagne. For yes-terday this man Mitchell slapped a ball on its face with such harshness that it fiew out into the left cabbage patch for four sacks and allowed the Giants again to down the Commuters. The verdict was

Likewise, there is a man from Oakland known as Hogan, who last night should have slept upon a stone slab with the other dead ones and arisen not at all. For Hogan pitched an atrocious game and caused his companion behind the bat to say things usually represented in print by a dash and an exclamation point. From the first inning that man Mitchell had the Commuters going. Atz started the trouble by getting a hit off Hogan. Van Buren followed in the footsteps of Atz, and the Commuters grouned. On top of those two hits, Mr. Hogan allowed Householder to walk. Hogan began to get nervous. He grew so nervous that he walked Papa McCredie and forced in the lirst run of the game. That wasn't enough, and so Hogan allowed Mitchell to hit through the shortstop, but McCredle was a little slow and got nabbed at second. In the interval the Commuters did some thinking. One run, several hits and a few walks was pretty had for a starter. In the second there was nothing doing, and in the third the Commuters took a bracer and went after McCredie's men. Lohman started things by getting a hot one to McCredie, who took time to think twice, and let Lohman get to the three-quarter post. Two other gentlemen passed the way of the ordinary, and then Kruger hit over second and brought Lohman back for the first score on the Oakland side of the sheet. The Giants died gallantly in their half, but they died, nevertheless. Thus things remained until the seventh.

Then the Commuters got busy again. Loh-man placed a hot one in right field and made the first post. Hogan handed Pitch-er Jones a hot one, and Lohman got caught at second. Van Haltren delicately placed one near third, got caught at first, and had the because and had the pleasure of seeing Hogan smile pleasantly at second. It looked bad for the Glants. It looked worse when Cruger slammed one out for a counte of sides and brought Hogan across the plate. The Glants took a deep breath, but it was d without any damage being done to the Commuters.

In the eighth, the men from Oakland smiled and allowed themselves to be placed in the cemetery regularly. But the Glants were not through, if the Com-muters did think so. McCredie got a hit and landed at first. While McLean was making up his mind to toss up a fly, the Judge stole second without a fear of a policeman. Then Mike Mitcheil stepped into the batter's box and spat upon his hands. Out at the half-way station was the manager leading to the state of the manager leading to the state of the manager leading to the ma the manger, longing to get back home. Pitcher Hogan tossed Mitchell a nice one. Pitcher Hogan tossed Mitchell a nice one. There was a tremendous smash and a lop-sided thing that was once a sphere-salled through the atmosphere in the direction of Portland Heights. The Judge hopped around the rest of the area of pped around the rest of the way and Mitchell followed him for the sport of the thing. The mob howled gloriously, and thing. The mob howled gioriously, and then the Commuters awoke to the fact that something was wrong, and that the game had slipped from their hands like an eel. They tried hard in the ninth, but not a bit of encouragement did they get not a bit of encouragement did they get beyond the fact that Pitcher Jones took pity upon Pitcher Hogan and allowed him to walk. That was courtesy on Jones' part, for the next moment he twisted two puzzlers over the plate, and then allowed Van Haltren to trim up a nice small one, which Atz. Schlafiy and Mitcheli doubled up and put a finish to the hopes of the ommuters. This is how it happened:

NEW YORK, May 25.—Delhi, last year's champion "miler," carried the Keeno colors to an easy victory this afternoou at Gravesend, in the Brooklyn Handlcap. The speedy son of Ben Brush thereby enriched his owner in the sum of $15.000, while Ostrich, from the Boston stable, captured second money, $2500, and Graziallo, the Columbia stable's candidate, won third money, amounting to $1500. About 20,000 persons were on the grounds, the attendance being somewhat less than the average on handlcap days because of the advance in prices at the gates.

Delhi was favorite in the betting, and carried thousands upon thousands of public money. As good as 4 to 1 could be had against his chances at first, but the flood of wagers forced his price to 5 to 2

The Oregon supporters will not be disheartened without Friessel, however, for the other men, with the exception, of Henderson, are in the pink of condition. Henderson will not be able to enter the meet due to a badly sprained ankle, sustained in the Washington-Oregon contest. His absence from the team will give Corvailis first in the high jump and second in the broad jump, unless Miller, a freshman, makes a better record in competition.

Several Oregon students will accompany the team, and they anticipate a close score. Upon the outcome of Saturday's contests rests the final decision for state supremacy when the leading colleges meet at Salem, June 19, for it is conceded that Oregon Agricultural College and Oregon have the strongest teams.

OLYMPIA, Wash., May E .- (Special.)s every County Fruit Inspector, Road Supervisor, Fire Warden, Game Warden supervisor, Fire Warden, Game Warden and every other county, township, precinct or district appointive officer serving without authority of a constitutional law? This is the question raised by a decision of Judge Johner, of the Superior Court of Skagit County, which the Attorney-General is asked to pass on by State Horticultural Commissioner A. Von Holderbeke

The Fruit Inspector of Skagit County was not paid by the commission, and he brought suit against the county. Judge Joiner held that the law authorizing this pointment was unconstitutional because ction 5, article 11, of the state constitu-on requires that the Legislature shall provide for the "election" of all county, township, district or precinct officers. While the decision affects only Fruit Inspectors specifically, the same line of reas spectors specifically, the same line of reas-oning would throw out of office every one of the hundreds of appointive minor offi-cers in this state.

The Attorney-General will decline to go into the question, as it is not the province of his office to pass upon the decisions of Judges of the Superior Court. He recom-mends that the only satisfactory method of finally determining the question would be to appeal the case to the Supreme Court.
