The prospect of a period of practical iffleness to extend into Wednesday of next weekhad much to do with the someolent conditions which developed. Transactions were of no significance, both by reason of their small volume and the trifling effect on prices.
The selling at the opening was based immediately on professed doubts as to the extenof the settlement effected in the Northwestern railroad dispute. The drop of 5 points of the continued unsettlement of the situation.

United States Steel stocks were also a weight upon the market, and the disruption of the steel rail pool was the eubject of much discussion as bearing on the trade situation. It was believed that the dissolution of this agreement would open the way to saided competrive effort which would be likely to feed to rielding prices and to withholding of orders. It was urged also that the abandonment of some agreements in other hranches of the trade was likely to follow.
The United States Steel stocks were less responance to the later improvement in prices

The United States Stoel stocks were less responsive to the laine improvement in prices than the majority of stocks.

The amnouncement of additional small bank faftures from the West have a bad impression, owing to the recent conjunction of a number of such cases. It is fest to be probable that recent disclosures of banking operations resulting in the acquisition of unfortunate holdings has hed the effect of attimulating a closer scrutiny of scurify and collineral on the part of the financial institutions all over the country.
