KNOCKED OUT BY SINGLE SHOT

Survivor of Cruiser Ural Tells of Havoc It Wrought.

TOKIO, June 5.—A survivor of the cruiser Ural, who is a brother of the chief editor of the Russ and apparently as well educated, said: "The second and third squadrons joined at the island of Koh Tron, off the coast of French Indo-China. Our Admiral knew that the Russian fleet was strongly guarded, but should a Pacific route have been followed, a neutral port would not have been available in case of disaster, so it was determined to risk the Tsushima route. Nothing important occurred till daylight of the morning of May 27, except the appearance occasionally of Japanese ships far out on the horizon.

"Our ships advanced in five rows, the Jemchug independent on the right extremity, the second-class battleships in single line formation in the second row, the cruisers in the third, the Ural bringing up the rear and the first-class battleships in the fourth row, with the Souvovoff leading and the Kumozu independent on the left extremity. Entering Tsushima, the formation of our battleships turned slightly to the starboard for the purpose of protecting our cruisers.

"When three Japanese ships were first sighted, we fired, but the enemy's ships were beyond range. Suddenly four Japanese battleships and some cruisers appeared on the scene, sending in an incessant, vigorous fire, which proved very effective, and we were nearly thrown into confusion. Steadily, however, we found ourselves gradually pressed towards Okino Island. To force the passage north was impossible.

"The Ural was hit on the starboard side by a 13-inch shell, which penetrated and burst in the engine-room, smashing everything and causing the funnel and the masts to fall down. Owing to the shock the deck also was rent asunder in many places. The fish and bones of 500 men killed were scattered in every direction. The horror of the scene is beyond description. The Ural sank at 4 o'clock in the evening."

HOPE OF PEACE IS SLIGHT

Lies Between Underwriters and Junk Dealers.

WAITING FOR A CABLE

If Insurance Men Who Took Risk Agree the Vessel Will Be Broken Up for Old Iron.

Again the fate of the wrecked steamer Gen. W. Elder is up to the English underwriters. Captain MacFarlane is awaiting a cable from England before he announces the decision. The question is whether a bid to raise the Elder and put her on the drydock for the underwriters shall be accepted or the bid of a junk dealers syndicate to buy the vessel for what she is worth be taken.

Anderson & Crowe put in the bid to raise the Elder. Neither side will tell what the amount of the bid was, but it is believed to be fairly low. W. Brannon, representing Bards & Son, made the highest bid for the junk dealers, offering about $2000.

Together with a number of other shipping men, Anderson & Crowe have always maintained that Captain MacFarlane was not trying the right methods in attempting to raise the Elder from the rock near Goble. Probably $50,000 has already been spent by the underwriters in the repeated attempts to get the vessel off the rock. The insurance has already been turned over to the owners, the San Francisco & Portland Steamship Company.

CEAR DRINKS 175 YEARS OLD

Alliance Planks Last of Coos County Exhibit for Fair.

Planks cut from a tree 175 years old, but showing not a sign of decay except at one end, were brought from Coos Bay on the steamer Alliance which arrived yesterday morning. They are to form part of the Coos County exhibit at the Fair. The trunk from which the beautiful clear white cedar planks were cut was found prostrate on the ground. A tree six feet in diameter, and showing by the rings that it was over 175 years old, had grown upon the old trunk. Five tons of Coos Bay coal, which will make a pyramid outside the Coos County building, a fine collection of elk horns, and some bamboo grown on the North Coos River were also on the vessel.

Hulk of Hayward Sold.

From one of the fastest and most popular passenger boats of Puget Sound and then of the Columbia and Willamette Rivers, the old steamer Emma Hayward has fallen so low that yesterday she was sold by the Shaver Transportation Company to James Goble, owner of the steamers America and Republic, who will cut her hull into two barges. The Hayward was built here in 1871, and was taken to Puget Sound, where she ran for several years.
