—M. Bouthron, first secretary of the French Embassy, had a long conference with Foreign Minister Lamsdorff this afternoon, and M. Bompard, the French Ambassador, is hurrying back from Paris. France, instead of displaying jealousy at the initiative taken by President Roosevelt with a view to bringing Russia and Japan together for peace, has apparently warmly welcomed it and will give it cooperation. No further definite development is now expected until President nent is now expected until President Roosevelt returns to Washington from his trip to Virginia. Statements in the dispatches that the President's sole aim is to bring the warring powers together in direct negotia-tions have been confirmed. There has been no undertaking on his part to apprise Russia of the Japanese terms, nor it is believed to find a preliminary basis for negotiations. The main obstacle to the President's efforts hus been removed with the Emperor's acquiescence in his

Notwithstanding the progress already made a great deal of skepticism is mani-fested in certain quarters as to the re-sult of President Roosevelt's efforts. The ublic seems rejuctant to believe that the Emperor could have assented to any-thing like a movement toward peace. Some cynics even try to create the impression that Russia only seeks to ascertain Japan's terms and then, by flaunting the hard conditions imposed in the faces of the representatives of the people when they meet, to arouse the whole nation to Such talk, however, is more irresponsi-ble chatter. The Emperor has cast the ble chatter. The Emperor has cast the die and will make peace if Japan's terms be such that Russia can accept them with dignity. The Emperor, it must be pointed out, has not sucd for peace. He has only ented to a proposition submitted by the head of a friendly power, and the matter officially goes no further than that Russia, now as ever, is ready to see if a common basis can be reached.

His choice of those he will drop will have an important bearing upon the points carned by Eugene and Corvallis. For instance, if he drops out of the half it will greatly increase O. A. C's chances of victory, for it will not only give Greentrack. Coach Hayward asserts that Miller will take second in the quarter, but if he should fall to do this, it will count three more points for Corvallis instead of two. Coach Keller asserts that Lounsberry will take first in the high jump, and if he does it will hurt the Eugene team. Shanks in the mile is rather an unknown quan-tity, but he is almost sure of a good be taken by Sweden in view of what has place.

Friessell, Oregon's star man who won 20 points in the contest with the University of Washington, is suffering from a split muscle, and may be unable to fulfill expectations. He will skip the 100-yard dash and will ceter the broad jump and the 220-yard dash. His con-dition then will determine whether he will continue in the meet. Kuykendall has a sprained ankle, which will trouble him in the pole vault, broad jump and hurdles, if not keep him out of some of these altogether. If these two men fail to do their stunts property, U. of O. loses. With Eugene and Corvallis evenly matched in the preliminary estimates the victory may go to either by a good score, especially in view of the fact that the high jump, pole vault and hurdle races are events in which sure winners often

"The conflicts of interest between rival producing regions, manufacturing and trade centers are so ferce," he said, "that the programment that permits itself to be no government that permits itself to be drawn into them can stand up under the sectional feelings thus aroused unless that government shall settle these conflicts upon some hard and fast mechanical basis, which permits of no exercise of judgment or discretion. The Interstate Commerce Commission developed certain mechanical and hard-and-fast rules for settling conflicts of localities and of interests—the doctrine that rallway rates must be based on 'commercial considera-tions,' as well as the doctrine that no person may be deprived of the advantages accruing to him by virtue of his geographical position, or, conversely, that no person may be relieved of the disa-bilities under which he labors by virtue of his geographical position. These do trines result in rates made on the basis of distance. Therefore, the important de-cisions of the Commission have generally been made by mesns of the application of the distance tariffs."
