Through the gates of the Exposition there burst yesterday an enthusiastic crowd that swept away conventionalities and threw itself into the winds of a joyous day of happy, glorious, riotous fun. The several individuals who made up the aggregate were badges which placed them from Roseburg and Cottage Grove, in the State of Oregon.

Whatever doubt existed prior to yesterday that Roseburg and Cottage Grove were upon the map was dispelled when this happy band of rosters dashed along the boulevard and hit the Trail. They had money to spend and they spent it. They were out for a good time and they had it. The crowd was small, comparatively speaking, but it made itself apparent, and even the California Promotion Committee, whose members crowded the Centennial, had to step occasionally and give the Southern Oregon people room.

Owing to the small attendance from the two cities the services in the auditorium were cut, and immediately thereafter the exhibit buildings were invaded. The visitors took great interest in the forestry building, and in every moment showed unbounded loyalty to Oregon in general, and Southern Oregon in particular. Ridges were worn, and uncouth comments of bits of fougé wood and metal were distributed to those who desired them.

"There are not many of us," said H. M. Collins, a mining engineer living in the vicinity of Roseburg, "but what there are count. People from our section of the country are going to visit the Fair every day, and whenever they feel like it."

WILL TEST BLACK SANDS.

Government Will Experiment With Hope of Discovering Platinum.

A pack of testing the black sands of the Pacific Coast for platinum and other precious metals will be instituted at the Exposition grounds within the next few days. The apparatus for these important tests that may result in the founding of a new and highly valuable industry on the Coast is nearly all on hand and the end of the week is expected to find another carload here. It was shipped from Eastern points ten days ago.

WILL DISTRIBUTE FRUIT.

Visitors at Exposition Will Be Given Free Samples.

Beginning tomorrow, fresh fruits will be distributed to all applicants with the compliments of the State of Oregon in the morning 200 cases of strawberries will be taken to the horticultural booth at the Agricultural Palace of the Lewis and Clark Exposition and the applicants will distribute them. When the supply is exhausted it will be immediately replenished.

The State Commission has provided for the fruits and has decided to keep up the hospitable practice until the close of the Exposition. Commissioners G. T. Harry, J. H. Albert and George Conner, comprising the committee on horticulture, made the suggestion to the Commission at Saturday's meeting, when it was favorably acted upon. Yesterday the necessary arrangements were made for distributing the fruits.

As soon as strawberries are out of season, cherries and apples will be secured. Plums, peaches and pears will then follow in turn. By July visitors will be permitted to secure apples, cherries and plums free. Contributions from Oregon fruitgrowers will be received by the Commission, and these making donations will be permitted to placard their fruits. This will afford an excellent opportunity for fruit sections to gain much excellent exploitation with very little cost.

LECTURES ON LEWIS AND CLARK

Wisconsin Professor Has Made Thorough Study of Great Expedition.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—(Special.)—Professor Reuben Gold Thwaites, head of the department of history in the University of Wisconsin, has informed the state university authorities that his course of lectures at the Summer school in Berkeley will deal with what he calls the "western phase" of American history. Professor Thwaites, however, secured possession of five volumes of manuscript notes by Captain Clark, together with other valuable notes of the journey into Oregon, and from these has compiled the first complete and authoritative account of the notable expedition.

ACROSS CONTINENT BY AUTO

Exciting Race With Leader in Idaho and Other in Wyoming.

A report received yesterday morning by the Press Bureau of the Exposition indicates that the automobilists who are racing across the continent are having exciting times in Wyoming and Idaho. "Old Scout," the leading machine, was sighted at Soda Springs, Idaho, five days ago. In a sprint to reach Pocatello it ran up against the Portneuf River and, as the water was too high to ford and the bridge had collapsed with a bay wagon a week before, it started along the banks of the stream looking for a crossing. While thus engaged it went into a hole and the machine was damaged, but managed to reach Pocatello. After some adjustments it started out afresh.
