Oregon ploneers thronged the Exposition grounds yesterday, and viewed with interest the wonderful buildings and exhibits that have been erected in memory the two explorers that first blazed their way from the Mississippi River to the Pacific Ocean, and made it possible for the sturdy men of the Eastern States to cross the plains and settle in the great Northwest great Northwest.

The vast wealth and resources that are represented in the Exposition brought a full realization to the minds of the immigrants of the 80s, of the part they played in the development of the three great commonwealths that were formed out of the territory of the "Oregon Country."

Yesterday's gathering in the Auditorium was probably the largest meeting of pio-neers that has been held for many a year. The assembly hall held the biggest year. The assembly hall held the biggest crowd that has been within its doors since the opening of the Fair, and a conservative estimate placed the number present at 150. The gray-haired veterans presented a notable spectacle, assembled as they were, to celebrate the 23d annual reunion of their association and to listen to the annual addresses of

To you I extend a hearty welcome The Exposition is held primarily to celebrate the discovery of this country. You pioneers of Oregon have made this Exposition possible. We have called together an exhibition of the resources of old Oregon with other states of the Northwest. We have also a very fine collection from abroad, and the Gov. fine collection from abroad, and the Government also has helped by sending the finest exhibits ever shown at any Expo-

The pioneers built here three great states from the original Oregon Country, which, when I first saw it, was nothing but great forests and rolling plains. Huge standing timber covered the area of what is now Portland. Trails were out through the forest. These trails turned into roads, and now we have the I anisontinental railways. We pioneers are glad to be here, and wish to thank you for the reception we have been given.
