Bobby Keefe's assortment of curves proved too much for McCredie's Giants yesterday, and the Tigertown rooters who were present in force had their innings, and certainly took advantage of the occasion to elaborate on the merits of the Tiger aggregation. The Portland fans made every effort to hawl the visitors down, but the besting given Bert Jones took most of the heart out of the local rooters. It was the most enthusiastic crowd present at a game in many a day. Keefe was pitching in his best form, and for a while it began to look as though he would shut Portland out without a hit or a run, for not until the seventh inning did a Portland fan negotiate the base, Keefe mowing 13 batters in a row, before Walter McCredie secured the first safe hit on the part of the home team. Nothing resulted from this hit, for Keefe speared Mitchell's liner and doubled the manager at first.

Tacoma got busy with Adelbert in the third, and the Tacoma chorus chanted something about "What happened to Jones." There were tall doings on the part of the Tigers in this chapter. Casey started the fireworks with a two-bagger. Graham was hit with a wide one, and Bobby Keefe sacrificed, advancing both a notch. Doyle singled, scoring Casey and the captain, and going to the keystone himself on the throw to the plate. Showhan hit safely to left, and Doyle registered. The next two men were retired, and the Tigers let up on Bert Jones until the sixth when he pitched to first, and Lynch laid one down to Schlafly that he had beat, but Larry threw it wild to first, which caused a diamond mass meeting, for Keefe was supposed to send McLaughlin to score on the throw to the bleachers, but after some discussion Mac was sent back to third, from whence both he and Lynch scored on Keefe's two-bagger secured off Ely Cates, who was sent in to relieve Jones when no one had yet been retired for the inning. Cates landed the first two batters who faced him, but failed to fool the awkward pitcher.

With two out in the local's half of the eighth, McLean hit for two bases and scored. Cates hit to right. This was all for Portland, although they had three men on the paths in the ninth through a wild streak on the part of Keefe and Mitchell's hit, but they were left.

The Tigers bunched four hits on Ely Cates in the ninth, scoring two runs after two were out. Teddy Corbett will pitch today for Portland, while Jack Fitzgerald will work for Tacoma. Bobby Eagar will catch his first game for Portland should he arrive this morning, as expected, for McLean is in need of a rest in order to allow his hand to mend. His throwing hand was swollen so badly yesterday that he could hardly hold the ball, and his arm and throws can be attributed to this injury. The score follows:

SEALS LOSE IN BOTH GAMES

Hits Bunched in Morning, Ten Innings in Afternoon.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—By a combination of circumstances and hitting when it counted, Los Angeles won both games today. In the morning contest Gray allowed the locals but four hits, which netted two runs. In the afternoon game, with the bases full, a fly over Wilson's head by Flood and a two-base hit by Dillon scored five runs. A run in the sixth and ninth made the score 7 to 2.

In the afternoon Los Angeles could not touch Williams until the eighth inning, when he allowed three hits and two runs. A wild pitch in the ninth tied the score, and two hits and two runs in the tenth made the score 6 to 4. Wright was batted freely, and passed the men.

IRVINGTON RACE MEET

FRANK ST. D. SKINNER SAYS IT WILL EXCEL.

Declares That Every Record on the Track Will Be Broken This Season.

Frank St. D. Skinner, who will be presiding judge at the Irvington race meeting, which will begin July 22, made a hurried trip from Seattle yesterday for the purpose of consulting with A. H. Diamond, president of the Multnomah Fair Association. Mr. Skinner is assistant associate judge at the Meadows, and he speaks very highly of the class of horses that are racing at Seattle and of the consistency with which they are winning. Accompanying Judge Skinner was Harry Green, the well-known horseman. Mr. Green came here to take time by the proverbial forelock, and selected the stalls in which he will quarter his string during the meeting.

Accompanied by President Diamond, Judge Skinner paid a visit to the track. He was pleased to find the track in such splendid condition, and predicted that Portland would have the greatest race meeting in the history of the Northwest. "Such men as Diamond, Sam Jones, and, in fact, all of the owners and trainers are anxiously looking forward to the Portland meeting. Aside from the rich stakes of which they are in hopes of winning, they are anxious to see the Lewis and Clark Exposition. The meeting last year at Irvington was a success from a racing standpoint, but this year the Portland race-gaugers and even the visitors from the East, will have a chance of seeing horses of high class running in the open air. Owners are convinced now that the northern trip is most beneficial to their horses, and from now on I look for less horses shipped East than ever before. The feed, water and the atmosphere seems to agree with the thoroughbreds, and a northern trip, even though they are raced several times a week, seems to rest up the horses. With anything like this, they are in hopes of every Irvington track record broken during the coming meeting."

President Diamond had a force of men at work on the grandstand, the stalls have been renovated and white-washed, the fences and paddock painted. Drags and harrows are constantly at work on the track, and it will be lightning fast on the opening day.

LACROSSE MATCH ENDS A TIE
Tacoma and Portland Put Up Fast and Spirited Game.

Talk about the whirl of excitement in a three-act melodrama, where the "villain" seeks every body within reach and fights to a finish, with nobody hurt! This wasn't in it with the rapid-fire, double-action-repeater-sort-of-same put up yesterday morning at Recreation Park between lacrosse teams representing Portland and Tacoma. For four quarters of 15 minutes each, 24 athletic young men raced over the diamond, checking, shooting, battling against each other, and exciting in combination play, with the net result that each side won four games and that the contest ended in a heart-breaking draw, with honors even.

The small crowd that attended got their money's worth and share of fun. One man, who said he was 70 years old, stated he has not laughed so heartily for a long time. "I laugh when they seek each other with their lacrosse sticks, and when two players fall in a cloud of dust," he explained. The play was so evenly divided that it would be unfair to single out any one single stick-handler for commendation—all the boys did well. Some did better than others. Two or three men held the ball too long and did not pass until too late, and there often was a tendency to bunch the men around both goal posts, leaving the center exposed, but that pass. It all went to make up the rollicking, enjoyable match, and it is a pity that more spectators were not present. It was an error to say that

OLYMPIA SENDS GOOD MEN
Clever California Athletes Are Now in Portland.

The Olympic Athletic Club of San Francisco will be represented by three clever boxers, who arrived in the city last evening. They are Robert Lumley, the light-weight champion of the Pacific Coast; Willie Dwyer, 125 pounds, and Al Kaufman, a lively heavy-weight, who is the champion of the Olympic Club. The boxers were accompanied by John J. Gleason, the leader of the Olympic Club and Dewitt Van Court, boxing instructor. The boys will train at the Multnomah Athletic Club. They have been in training for the past two weeks and are in splendid fettle.

John J. Gleason stated last evening that he expected the boys to make a good showing; that he appreciated the fact there were good boys in the Northwest and he had so informed the representatives of the winged "O" that they had their hands full.

The boxers are pupils of Dewitt Van Court, who taught Jimmy Britt, Sam Berger, Frankie Nell, Champion James J. Jeffries and George Finnegan. Explaining the club's export of the Olympic Club is also here to represent the club. He has already won the hard handball championship and is a strong candidate for the first honors in softball. On the 22nd the Olympic Club's crack swimmers, J. Scott Leary and Francis Galley will be here to compete for honors. Leary is one of the fastest short-distance swimmers in the country and Galley holds records for long-distance events. Thomas Bacon and Pete Sunberg will represent the club in fancy and high-diving.
